Charlevoix man publishes book on presidential health

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Jay

MD.

Released in early October, Murphy's book, "What ails the White House," details the health histories of former presidents.

"It was always intriguing to me how (former) presidents would have fared if they would have had Twenty-first Century medicine at the time of their illnesses," Murphy said. "The U.S. presidency has spanned over 200 years and there have been great improvements over that time."

He added, "The treatments available to George Washington were primitive compared to what we have today."

Born and educated in what is known as the "Mother state of presidents," Murphy has always found American presidents fascinating.

"I grew up in Canton, Ohio and that's the home of eight presidents including President (William) McKinley," Murphy said. "When he campaigned he campaigned from the back porch of his home in Ohio."

He added, "I always grew up with (the history of) McKinley, and as I went on in medicine, I learned a little bit about medicine, but also the illnesses that affected the presidents."

Murphy's fascination isn't merely in the illness, but the effects of different illnesses on the role of the president.

"People ask me who my favorite president is. I think it's probably Andrew Jackson, the seventh president of the United States, he was elected first in 1828. What was intriguing was the health is-suces he had to overcome to become president," he said. "He was shot twice during his younger years — once during a duel and once during a street brawl — both times he suffered wounds that left him with chronic infections and he also had smallpox during the Revolutionary War which had probably a 25 percent mortality rate."

He added, "He was a military commander. He went off to many battles and had malaria and dysentery, which were very common illnesses of troops of that time, yet he survived all of that to become president of the United States."

Murphy said Jackson not only survived to the presidency, but transformed it by shifting more power from Congress to the executive branch, something which may not have happened if Jackson had succumbed to any of his numerous injuries and illnesses.

Murphy's second favorite president is Woodrow Wilson, the man who tried to form the forerunner to the United Nations.

"Wilson went to Paris to try to set up a League of Nations charter to try to prevent future wars," Murphy said. "And when he came back to his own country, the Senate would not approve this treaty without a lot of debate and compromise and at this time, Wilson's health began to deteriorate."

He added, "(He) went on a cross country train trip taking the League of Nations idea directly to the American people, but shortly after it began, he collapsed and went back to Washington and had a major paralytic stroke."

Murphy said the air of secrecy was such that only Wilson's wife, personal physician and stewards were allowed to see him.

"At that time he was a severely mentally disabled man and was not in a situation to run a country. His wife, Edith, was the only liaison between Wilson and Congress and his own cabinet," he said. "She would write directions to them and say it was the president's (wishes). It's amazing with the current media that Wilson was absolutely bedridden

Rayder football team falls at playoff opener

BY STEPHEN BELL
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

As Kingsley's running backs left Charlevoix's defenders grasping for air all second half, the Rayders' chance at the first playoff win in school history slipped through their fingers Friday, Oct. 27.

The Division 6 district semifinal game at Charlevoix was tied with the defending state champion, 14-14, at the half. Then, after the break, the Stags capitalized on two Charlevoix turnovers and saw their deceptive wing-T offense rumble for 327 yards and four touchdowns in a 42-14 victory.

The Stags, 8-2, will play at Suttons Bay, 10-0, for the district championship. Charlevoix finishes the season 8-2, its most wins since 1977.

"Our hope is a defense may be able to take away some things, but they can't take away everything against our offense," Kingsley coach Tim Wooser said.

In the first half, Charlevoix's best defense was its offense, which had scoring drives of 70 and 59 yards. The Rayders also took the opening kickoff 61 yards over 7 minutes, but it didn't end in a score as Chris Waha missed a 24-yard field goal attempt.

Charlevoix wasn't so lucky in the second half, as Waha, the Rayders' quarterback, lost a fumble after being hit by Kingsley's Brian Bott and Josh Croshy, and was intercepted by Nathan Ensmann.

Both turnovers led to Kingsley touchdowns, on a 3-yard run by Anthony Lawhead for a 26-14 lead with 6 minutes, 21 seconds to go in the third quarter and a 35-yard run by fullback Jeff Jamieson for a 35-14 lead with 10 minutes left in the game.

Lawhead also scored the first touchdown of the half, breaking tackles from 14 yards out to cap a 70-yard opening drive. Jamieson ran for a game-high 117 yards, all in the second half.

"We had to keep them off the field to have a chance, but we didn't with the turnovers," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said.

"We knew we had to make some defensive adjustments at half-time," Wooser said. "We either had to cover their receivers better or put more pressure on the quarterback. We didn't think we could cover them any better, so we had to pressure the quarterback."

As well as Kingsley played in the second half, Wooser said the game's turning point may have come in the first half. Trailing, 14-8, with 5 minutes remaining in the second quarter, Lawhead converted on fourth-and-1 for the Stags from their own 29. That kept alive a game-tying drive that ended with less than 20 seconds to go with a 2-yard play-action TD pass from quarterback Josh Wiggins to Bott.

"With the way Charlevoix was moving the ball, if we had punted then we could easily have been down two touchdowns at half-time," Wooser said.

Kingsley also scored on its first possession of the game, on a 46-yard run by sophomore JV call-up Nathan Ensmann.

Charlevoix took its only lead of the game with 6:17 left in the first half, on a 3-yard TD toss from Waha to Dan Swenor and a two-point pass to Darron Munson for a 14-8 advantage.

The Rayders' first touchdown came on a 4-yard run by Swenor, a senior, to make it 8-6 at the beginning of the second quarter.

Waha, a senior, finished the game 17-of-37 passing for 194 yards, Junior tight end Corey Gotshall led the Rayders with five catches for 65 yards.

"This team's goal was to win a playoff game," Jess said. "But I'm very proud of the season we had."

Islanders claim first district title, lose at regional

BY FRANK SOLLE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Beaver Island soccer team was one of just 16 teams in Michigan to make it to regional play last week.

The Islanders did something on Friday, Oct. 20, that no previous team from the Emerald Isle has done before — they won a district title.

The Islanders prevailed 3-2 in overtime against the host Big Bay de Noc Black Bears. The Islanders defeated Mackinac Island in a semifinal game to qualify for the district tournament.

Big Bay scored the only two goals of the first half, the second coming in the final minute of the half, putting the Islanders in a huge hole.

"That shot with a minute to go had me worried," coach Myers said. "In the past, I've seen Beaver Island teams fizzle out once they fall behind."

Apparently, coach Myers had much less to worry about than he thought.

Just six minutes into the second half, Islanders' freshman, Dereck McDonough, sent a corner kick high and towards the front of the Black Bear goal where senior, Jared Wojan, leapt and headed the ball past the Big Bay keeper to cut the lead in half.

Ten minutes later, a Big Bay defender lost control of the ball just outside the penalty area at their end of the field and the ball bounced right to the feet of Wojan, who took two steps into the box and blasted a shot to knot the score at two apiece.

Big Bay was handed a potential title-winning opportunity with three minutes to go when the Islanders were whistled for a hand ball, giving the hosts a penalty kick. But the Bears top scorer on the season sent the ball high over the crossbar and the battle continued tied to the end of regulation.

The Islanders put everything they had on the field for the first 80 minutes of play, then extended themselves for another six and a half minutes before junior, Brenden Martin, bent a corner kick high above and around a bewildered Big Bay goalkeeper, finding the far upper corner of the goal for the stunning winner.

The Islanders players and fans went wild.

"We've actually practiced that," coach Mike Myers said of the improbable winning shot.

But this was beyond practice, this was a district final, and Martin's kick was a thing of precision and beauty as the Black Bears keeper, defenders, and the Islanders front line watched in their respective despair and amazement before the official blew his whistle and pointed to the Green and White side of the pitch. Goal, game, title, champs.

"I'm so proud of these kids," Myers said. "I'm so glad they got to play this game. It was too much fun."

The district win put the Islanders in regional action Tuesday, Oct. 24 against Fairview at Suttons Bay. They beat Fairview 3-1 in the rain.

They returned to Suttons Bay on Oct. 26 for the regional final where they faced heavy favorite, Traverse City Christian.

While the Islanders played great defense for 74 minutes, the Sahers, who came into the game with a 23-1-1 record, exploded for three goals during a three-minute stretch during the first half, then repeated that feat in the second half on their way to a 7-0 win.

Meanwhile the Islanders had but a handful of scoring opportunities, the best coming late in the second half when senior Jared Wojan connected with the crossbar instead of the back of the net.

Despite the loss, the Islanders gained recognition and confidence through a grueling and overall successful tournament run.

"This is just a huge confidence booster for all our kids," said Beaver Island's superintendent/principal Kitty McNamara. "This just proves to them they are in no way hindered living here. It shows them they can do the same things anyone else can do."

With the tournament run complete, the Islanders close out this storied season with a 13-1 overall record, an undefeated regular season that included another Northern Lights League title, a district trophy and their spot in school and Island history secure for years to come.

City electors vote for change

BY JULIE WITTHOEF
EDITOR

The general election for the City of Charlevoix ended with the selection of a newcomer for city council, the reelection of an incumbent and the end of political life for a councilman.

At the Nov. 7 election, 1,276 city voters turned out, electing new first ward councilman Lyle Gennett, reelecting third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain and ousting by just nine votes, longtime councilman, Gabe Campbell.

Warmer fall weather characterized election day, when 53 percent of the city's 2,391 registered voters cast a ballot.

City clerk, Carol Oels, said she attributes the high voter turnout to this being a gubernatorial election, which also had hot state ballot issues like a proposed ban on affirmative action and approval of dove hunting.

Of the 827 first ward voters, 461 cast a ballot. Of those, 60 percent voted in favor of electing Lyle Gennett to a first ward seat.

The final vote was 244 in favor of Gennett and 165 for his opponent, Bill Haggard who has served six years on council during this most recent stint and served six years on council in the 1980s.

Gennett, 55, a former Charlevoix Fire Station shift commander and EMT specialist of 25 years, ran on a platform of favoring a change in city management and in moving the Venetian Festival carnival from its Mason Street location.

Gennett, who has no prior political experience, said he feels the outcome hinged on straight talk.

"I tell it like I see it. I went up and spoke how I feel and I think that pretty much says it. I'm up front on the issues. I think need to be solved. I've sat back and watched a lot over the years. I've looked and seen things I knew I thought were wrong. I feel deep down inside there needs to be change and someone has to do it. Hopefully, I can make a difference," he said.

While Gennett breaks in his seat, second ward councilman Gabe Campbell, who has spent 10 years as a councilman and two as mayor, will end his political career after being defeated by newcomer on the political scene, Greg Stevens.

The ultimate sacrifice

On Oct. 31, the community learned that Army Major Douglas E. Sloan, a 40-year-old Charlevoix man who was stationed at Camp Blessing, located in northeast Afghanistan's Pesch Valley, was the first Charlevoix soldier to be killed in operations in Afghanistan or Iraq. A memorial service for Sloan will be incorporated with Veterans' Day activities to take place at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11 in Veterans' Park, in downtown Charlevoix. Pictured above is a memorial assembled for him in Afghanistan. For the complete Sloan story, see page 11.

District One
With 1,341 votes, Republican challenger, Shirlene Tripp, 69, beat unaffiliated incumbent, Connie Saltonstall, 61, by 465 votes.

Tripp thanked both her opponent for running a good race and the people who supported her. "I think the first thing we should do as a board is get together, decide what direction we want to go down and do it," she said. "I think if we work together we can help save the county residents money."

She added, "I think our new board's going to work well together."

District Two
Republican, Chris Christensen, 35, who heat outgoing commissioner Randolph Frykberg in the August primary and ran unopposed on Tuesday received 1,150 votes.

"I'm excited. Let's get moving with the issues," said the youngest member of the board

Tripp, Evans win county seats

COUNTY

"I want to help make the commission more transparent," he said. "I think people need to know what's going on over here at the county level."

Christensen said he will do everything in his power to eliminate duplicity and waste in county government.

"I would love to see more people involved — I'd love to see a full house at every county commission meeting," he said.

Creation of a steering committee with the goal of acclimating new commissioners and the new county administrator is at the top of Christensen's to-do list.

Christensen can be reached at (231) 582-9827.

District Three

Republican incumbent, 66-year-old, Ronald Reinhardt, who was unavailable for comment, received 1,131 votes.

District Four

Write-in candidate, Victor Patrick, 68, was unable to defend the seat he held for nearly a decade against Republican nominee, Joel Evans, 66. Evans received 835 votes or 62.92 percent, while Patrick received 492 votes.

"I feel good, of course. Winning always feels good," Evans said. "For several years people have been saying 'No' to Vic Patrick and encouraging me to run and I ran this year. In the August primary, they said 'No' to Vic again and on Nov. 7 they said 'No' for a third time."

He added, "The majority of people in East Jordan and South Arm (Township) made their point."

Evans wished Patrick the best in his retirement.

"I hope he (Patrick) and his followers come to commissioner meetings and express their concerns," he said.

Evans said he will work to improve communication between the board of commissioners and the people they serve.

Evans can be reached at (231) 536-7073.

District Five

Republican, Bob Drebenstedt, 62, ran unopposed and received 1,382 votes. Drebenstedt beat outgoing commissioner Dennis Jason in the August primary.

The Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs director thanked all those who voted for him.

Drebenstedt said he will work to give the county employees and citizens a form of government they can believe in.

"We won't be changing our meeting dates," he said. "I'll have an open door policy with my voters."

District Six

Unopposed Republican incumbent, Shirley Roloff, 70, received 1,461.

Roloff said she is in good health and ready to continue serving the people of Charlevoix County.

The incoming commissioners will officially take their collective seats on Jan. 1, 2007.

City voters oust two council incumbents, keep one aboard

"They (voters) didn't think they were being represented right evidently," Campbell said.

Of the 738 second ward voters, 383 cast a ballot. Of those, 51 percent voted in favor of electing Stevens to his second ward seat.

The final vote was 179 in favor of Stevens and 170 for Campbell.

Stevens attributes his win to heavy door-to-door campaigning and his vocal stance on keeping the Venetian Festival carnival in downtown Charlevoix.

"Obviously half of them were looking for some kind of change," he said.

As a councilman, Stevens will have to resign his seats on both the city planning and housing commissions.

In the third ward, experience reigned over lifetime residency as incumbent Sherm Chamberlain was reelected by a large margin.

Of the 826 registered voters in the third ward, 432 cast a ballot, 60 percent of who favored Chamberlain over his competitor, Charlevoix native, Tonia Wells.

The vote breakdown is 258 for Chamberlain and 120 for Wells.

"I was pleasantly surprised. I thought it would be a little bit closer, but you just never know," Chamberlain said.

"I like to dig down and solve problems rather than making them. I truly feel that's what people want. They don't want petty politics, they want results."

Wells did not return calls by press time.

Voters also cast ballots for mayor Norman Carlson Jr. who ran uncontested. Carlson was re-elected by 937 votes.

Of the 12 city charter amendment ballot proposals, all but one passed.

Proposal 9 which if approved, would have removed wording that requires the city assessor to attend all Board of Review meetings, failed by eight votes. Under the amended scenario, the assessor, who is under contract with the Charlevoix County Equalization Department, would attend meetings only upon request.

Because it failed, Ochs said the charter will dictate the assessor attend all meetings.

Controversial Proposals 5 and 6, which will impact future city managers, passed. Proposal 5 eliminates the current provision for the city manager to be appointed to an indefinite term. The new wording requires appointment for up to a three-year term. Proposal 6 deals with severance packages and specifically limits them to no more than three months pay.

The next council election in November of 2007 will see first ward councilman Bob Timmis, second ward councilman Gene Beer and third ward council member Shirley Gibson's seats open up for two-year terms.

Start worrying about Homeland Security locally

EDITORIAL

Ask anyone what Charlevoix's number one industry is and you will get the same answer — tourism.

Visitors flock to Charlevoix during the spring and summer months. They enjoy the scenery, fudge and friendly local faces. But that's not why they are here. Almost all the people come here for the pristine fresh water resources — lakes Charlevoix and Michigan. Whether it's boating or beaching, Charlevoix visitors are drawn to the water.

So, it was shocking to us to hear that the Coast Guard, a group that is here to protect our way of life would propose a plan that threatens to contaminate our greatest resource, Lake Michigan.

The Coast Guard's plan is to allow machine gun fire on Lake Michigan to train for real world situations. An estimated 430,000 rounds of ammunition may be shot across the Great Lakes annually contributing 6,900 pounds of lead, 2,800 pounds of copper as well as unspecified quantities of zinc and antimony. That's more lead than any other industry on the Great Lakes is currently adding.

The "Preliminary Health Risk Assessment for Proposed U.S. Coast Guard Training Exercises" claims the exercises won't take place near potable water supplies and the concentrations of these lethal chemicals will not exceed human health and ecological values.

This claim is coming from a company that receives hundreds of millions of dollars in government contracts each year. Could there be a more blatant conflict of interest? While tourism would take a major hit if local lakes were no longer the picture of health, what will come of the $1 billion Great Lakes fishing industry?

Mercury levels in fish already have people limiting their intake, add in a side of lead and copper and fish consumption will plummet.

Supporters of the plan are the same people who would support anything that wears the Homeland Security sticker. We need to stop accepting the words Homeland Security as being synonymous with "It's good for you," and start asking questions.

Public outcry with regard to this plan thus far seems to be focused on the potential threat of stray bullets. But if our lakes and fish are useless, the least of Charlevoix residents' concerns is taking a bullet.

There has to be a better training plan out there. If NASA can simulate space travel, we're pretty sure there must be a way to simulate live combat on the water without harming the environment.

If you missed the Nov. 3 public hearing on the Coast Guard's Great Lakes live fire proposal at Charlevoix Public Library, your voice can still be heard. Public comments are being accepted. Send your thoughts to Docket Management Facility (USCG-2006-25767) U.S. Department of Transportation Room PL-401, 400 Seventh St. SW, Washington DC 20590-0001. Or by fax to (202) 493-2251. Comments must be postmarked on or before Nov. 13.

No date has been set when a decision on the Great Lakes live fire plan will be made. All comments will be reviewed by Rear Admiral John E. Crowley, commander of the Ninth Coast Guard District.

Get ready, the time to fight global warming is now

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

A wise person once said, "Nothing is as powerful as an idea whose time has come." I believe I have heard an idea whose time has come.

People who can't be identified as politicians do not generally have much of a chance at being believed, but if you can put aside the thought that Al Gore was once a politician and just listen to him as he talks about global warming in the film, "An Inconvenient Truth," you will at the very least learn a few things.

Among the lessons — global warming is very real, global warming is being caused by the large scale use of fossil fuels and halting or reversing global warming is as critical a social and economic problem as humanity has faced since the Great Depression in the

The preceding paragraph is not an attempt at the "politics of fear." There are very sound reasons to fear the effect of climate change on people and economies. A report commissioned by the British government predicts that as much as 20 percent of the world's total economic activity would be devoured by the effects of climate change if global warming is allowed to continue for another 10 years. The report further predicts droughts, flooding, widespread famine, skyrocketing disease rates and the extinction of thousands of animal species. These are not things that will happen in some distant and so unreal future, they will occur in the lifetime of most people now living. Global warming is an imminent threat as terrorism.

Do I have your attention yet?

It is important to understand some chemistry before the overall effects of global warming can be clearly seen, but it is not necessary to understand chemistry to be afraid of a potentially disastrous future. We all understand that fear can be a great motivator. It is a motivator that I am reluctant to use. However, it is increasingly clear that global warming will very soon disrupt the world we know in ways that we are only beginning to understand. The discussion about whether global warming is occurring is over. The discussion at present should be about what we are going to do to stave off a disaster that is almost certain if we do nothing.

Over the past couple of months, attention to the possibility of disastrous global warming has been more prominent than at any time in the past. Books, magazines, newspapers and the media generally have begun to acknowledge that a serious problem exists. I both hope and believe that people are gradually being convinced that this is an important idea, an idea whose time has come. Governments around the world are beginning to respond with both concern and practical programs and projects. We can encourage our government to be at least as proactive as other nations but what can a private citizen do about a problem that is so large and so daunting? I have a few suggestions. They involve developing a fear of energy use.

When I was a child in 1930s rural Minnesota, electricity had not yet arrived. Our family lived on a very low energy budget. A few quarts of kerosene provided a year's worth of light from a half dozen lamps. My children, by contrast spent their early lives in an environment where electricity was universally and continually available. Energy was their friend. Their expectation was that abundant light and energy was there at the flick of a switch. Global warming has become part of the cost of that expectation.

We, as individuals, use far more electricity and other petroleum based energy in our daily lives than is necessary or desirable. As communities, we suffer from the same overuse. If we could relate every expenditure of light or fossil fuel based energy to the fear of global warming effects, we might be less reluctant to consider what is widely called "conservation."

A very small portion of our universally available electricity comes from any source other than coal or natural gas, both major contributors to global warming. We must look to other ways to generate electricity (wind, solar, nuclear), but their large scale contribution is far in the future and the problem is now. Does turning off a light or using more efficient bulbs or appliances solve the global warming problem? Of course not. But we can change the world by developing the attitude that any and all use of energy fueled by coal, natural gas or other petroleum products is harmful or dangerous. Right now, energy is not our friend. Can we be made to fear energy?

We have to use considerable energy but we waste large amounts. Until knowledge arrives, fear may have to suffice as a motivator. Listen to Al Gore and others. Sometimes even politicians are right. Consider real information, not opinion. Be afraid, shut off that light, turn off your car, walk a few blocks and help save the world.

BELLS FOR HOSPICE

Editor:

To ring in National Hospice Month we asked local churches to ring their bells at noon on Nov. 1, to honor all who have died under hospice care during the last year, and in respect for their families.

As you may know, hospice is a group of organizations committed to improving end of life care and expanding access to hospice care with the goal of profoundly enhancing quality of life for people dying in America and for their loved ones.

to the editor

Considered to be the model for quality, compassionate care at the end of life, hospice care involves a team-oriented approach of expert medical care, pain management and emotional and spiritual support expressly tailored to the patient's wishes. Emotional and spiritual support also is extended to the family and loved ones. Generally, this care is provided in the patient's home or in a home-like setting operated by a hospice program.

Medicare, private health insurance and Medicaid in most states cover hospice care for patients who meet certain criteria. Health care professionals who specialize in hospice and palliative care work closely with staff and volunteers to address all the symptoms of illness with the aim of promoting comfort and dignity.

If you have any questions about hospice, contact us or visit the Michigan Hospice and Palliative Care Organization Web site at www.mihospice.org.

WHY STRAYS MUST COME TO THE SHELTER

Editor:

At least once a week I get asked why stray animals have to come to the shelter when someone finds them. The easiest answer to the question is that it is the written law. All animal control divisions and shelters throughout the state must comply when notified of a stray.

The more complicated answer involves a variety of reasons. Protection of the animal and the good Samaritan who has the animal in their possession are both important reasons. An unknown animal can present health issues ranging from contagious diseases to dog disease infecting your own animals and yourself as well. Perhaps worse, you are at high risk for receiving bites from the animal. A frightened, potentially poorly socialized animal is definitely more prone to hitting and causing serious injury to you and your family.

Another issue that needs to be considered is that the animal belongs to someone else that may have reported the animal missing to animal control or your local shelter. If a person does not deliver the animal to the appropriate agencies there is no way to check for lost of missing reports.

Bringing or reporting a lost animal to the shelter is the safest and most efficient action to take when you find a stray. When the animal comes to us we give it an initial exam, searching for any injuries, scanning it for a microchip which can expedite reunion with its owner and we place it in a safe, warm dry environment with beds, toys, food and water.

If there is no way of identifying the animal we place a lost advertisement in the local papers and hold the animal for a minimum of five days (state law requires four days). If the animal is not claimed the Humane Society takes possession of the animal at which time it is tested for appropriate infectious diseases, wormed and brought up to date on vaccinations before being placed up for adoption. All animals are evaluated in an ongoing process and are kept here for as long as they remain emotionally and physically healthy.

As a means of illustrating one of the problems discussed above, I would like to relate an incident that occurred recently. A gentleman came to the shelter to report a stray dog that he had in his possession. He had been holding onto the dog for over a week and wanted to be sure the animal would be cared for if he brought it to the shelter. After giving him a tour of our facility and explaining the procedure to him, he agreed that I should come and pick the animal up at his home.

He described the dog as somewhat small, looking like a Boston terrier or pug type, black and white markings. Much to my surprise, when I arrived, I was greeted by a long-legged tall hound and Dalmatian mix. When I arrived back at the shelter I searched the lost and found record that we keep and found a report dated over a week-and-a-half earlier for this exact dog. The owner was greatly relieved to hear that the dog was safe.

In summary, ask yourself, if your pet gets loose, do you want someone who you know nothing about, housing your pet or would you rather it be safe and secure, warm and well fed at the shelter? Also, to expedite the return of your pet, please license your dogs and have some form of identification on them and your cats as well.

'Christmas Tree Ship' author to speak Nov. 10 at Depot

Join author Rochelle Pennington at 7 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 10 for a program on the famous Christmas Tree Ship.

Pennington's visit, hosted by the Charlevoix Historical Society, is open to the public and free of charge.

Rochelle Pennington

Santa" and his annual voyage down Lake Michigan.

Pennington has authored two books on the Milwaukee, Wis. built schooner which delivered Christmas trees to Chicago, Ill. each holiday season before it was caught in "The Great Storm of 1912" and subsequently went to the bottom of Lake Michigan fully loaded with trees. To this day the ship is still loaded with its trees and is a popular Great Lakes dive site. Pennington will share present-day, underwater photographs of Christmas trees still visible in the ship's hold.

"It is a story that exemplifies the best of humanity," said Pennington. "At its heart we find courage, love, generosity, heroism and the importance of family and tradition. The moment I first heard the story of the Christmas Tree Ship I understood why it had endeared itself to so many people over the years and was still being shared a century later."

"The ship's final voyage was not to the bottom of the lake, but into the pages of history," added Pennington.

Pennington's children's book on the ship, as well as her 325-page documentary book, "The Historic Christmas Tree Ship: A True Story of Faith, Hope and Love," will be available for autographs following the program. The documentary book examines the legendary ship from every angle and includes more than 60 photographs, along with hundreds of citations from vintage newspaper clippings, spanning a period of 140 years.

Pennington's slide presentation will include many of the century-old photographs of Captain "Santa" Schuenemann, his family, and his ship. In addition, she will have a collection of recently acquired artifacts along with her to share with the audience including an ax used to chop the trees down, dishes, a medicine bottle, a spittoon, a clay pipe, and an ornament carved from one of the first Christmas trees raised from the ship in 1971 when the vessel was discovered. In addition, Pennington will be bringing a Christmas tree from the cargo which was raised more than 30 years ago.

Pennington's research was used to create a television program on The Weather Channel's Storm Stories. The program airs nationally each December.

Her multi-visual presentation will focus on the little-known facts surrounding this most loved story of the Great Lakes including the ship's mysterious disappearance, clues washed ashore in the decades following the vessel's demise, ghost ship sightings of the phantom schooner, artifacts raised from the sunken ship and mysterious omens believed to have cursed the ship immediately before it set sail on its final voyage on Nov. 22, 1912. She will also present photos of the "new" Christmas Ship which the Coast Guard has been sailing the past six years in memory of the original ship. The Coast Guard vessel sails from Cheboygan each December to Chicago, Ill. All of the trees on board the ship are given away free to needy families.

In addition to her Friday evening program, Pennington will be autographing books at Friske Orchard from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 11 during the orchard's Christmas open house.

Norwood mine: Insurance company won't cover township

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The lengthy saga between Wayne Wynkoop and several neighbors over the validity of his limestone mine has a new twist.

Norwood Township's insurance carrier, Midwest Claims Service, will not pay for the municipality's defense in a lawsuit filed by Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety.

"I have no idea what the defense will cost us," said Township Supervisor, Wynkoop, also named in the suit. "It's very premature. Based on responses from the attorneys it could go very quickly or the people behind it (Norwood citizens group) could continually drown us."

He added, "Reading the complaint there's no supporting documents to support their claims, but we have to respond to each and every one of them seriously."

Wynkoop said the township will be forced to use its contingency fund to pay for the defense.

When asked whether the township has the money to do so, Wynkoop said, "I am not confident. We have a budget where we allow X number of dollars for our attorney. If we run out of what we budget for the year, we do have the contingency fund and the board will have to approve to spend more money."

In a letter from Midwest Claims Service to Norwood Township attorney, Jack Turner, Midwest stated that, since the citizens group is seeking a reversal of the zoning board of appeals' decision to allow Wynkoop to operate his mine, there is nothing Midwest can do to help.

"Plaintiffs have sought the court's intervention requesting declaratory and injunctive relief. Please note that the plaintiffs are not seeking money damages in this matter," Midwest further stated.

Others named in the suit filed by the citizens group include the Norwood Township Board of Trustees, zoning board of appeals, zoning administrator and Wynkoop's wife, Micheline.

Norwood officials have until Nov. 10 to respond to the charges.

"We got a seven-day extension because there are so many complaints to respond to," Wynkoop said.

According to Wynkoop, who is taking a hands-off approach to the ease, Turner will appeal Midwest's decision not to cover attorney fees and court costs associated with the impending lawsuit.

After Wynkoop was advised by his and the township's attorney that he should distance himself from proceedings, he said, "Last week we appointed a representative to the township board to work as a go-between."

Norwood Township treasurer, David Leusink, will communicate concerns, questions and information between the township attorney and the township board.

The dispute

All legal authorities thus far have given Wynkoop the go-ahead to operate the mine which, according to Wynkoop, has been operated off and on for decades.

Wynkoop's neighbors claim the mine is, "incompatible" with zoning requirements because, as stated in the lawsuit filed, "There were various zoning ordinance restrictions on sand and gravel extraction from 1961 to present and limestone quarrying, crushing and washing have never been allowed under any of the ordinances as a use by right or by special use permit in the agricultural zone."

Opponents claim officials erred when they OK'd operation of the mine.

Wynkoop claims the mine has been in existence in various capacities since the American Indians mined chert.

Opponents claim the only proof mining existed on the property was a 1954 Michigan Department of Transportation proposal to remove 15,000 cubic yards of sand.

Furthermore, opponents claim, the operation has and will continue to cause negative effects on the enjoyment of their property while posing health risks.

In the lawsuit, the citizens group claimed Wynkoop has appointed people who favor his project to various township positions.

Wynkoop denied such accusations.

Timeline according to the lawsuit

August 2005, Wynkoop filed for a special use permit to mine limestone on a portion of his 100-acre property.

Dec. 5, 2005 Bill Gnotke, now chairman of the Norwood citizens group, asked the zoning administrator via letter to decide whether Wynkoop had a non-conforming use to mine limestone.

Jan. 5, 2006 Gnotke's letter is returned, unopened.

Feb. 8, 2006 Sadie Bartosik removed from the planning commission, the lawsuit cites her removal due to opposition to the mine — Wynkoop and the board cited dereliction of duty and destroying public documents for her removal.

April 17, 2006 Norwood Zoning Administrator, Johnathan Scheel, decided to allow Wynkoop to continue mining.

May 17, 2006 Citizens group filed an appeal of Norwood Township Zoning Administrator's decision to allow continued operation of the mine.

Oct. 12, 2006 Citizens group filed a lawsuit against Norwood Township, Wynkoop and other township boards and officials.

Oct. 19, 2006 Midwest Claims Service denied Norwood Township's request for defense attorney coverage.

Nov. 10, 2006 the last day Norwood Township officials have to file a response to the lawsuit filed by the Norwood citizens group.

Veterans' Day tribute planned for Doug Sloan

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Last week, news of the U.S. military's October death toll climbing over 100 made front page headlines of major daily newspapers and on Oct. 31, this faceless statistic became a local tragedy.

That day, the community learned that Army Major Douglas E. Sloan, 40, who was stationed at Camp Blessing located in northeast Afghanistan's Pesh Valley was the first Charlevoix soldier to be killed in operations in Afghanistan or Iraq.

His mother, Wendy Sloan of Charlevoix, said she knew as soon as an Army Major and Sergeant from Camp Grayling stepped out of their vehicle that her son was gone.

"I've always been prepared, his dad (Emory Sloan) is retired from the Coast Guard and was overseas during Vietnam. When you have someone in the military, it's something that you need to be aware of. But it doesn't really prepare you for this either," she said.

According to his friend and fellow Charlevoix resident, Jamey Spenceley, an interrogator, contracted by the U.S. Department of Defense stationed in Bagram, Afghanistan, Sloan was killed when his vehicle hit an Improvised Explosive Device that detonated.

"If the military was filled with Doug Sloans we would have been out of here a long time ago. I can't even explain how proud I am to have known him as a soldier and especially as a friend and how sad I am that he's gone."

FRIEND OF DOUG SLOAN
AND U.S. INTERROGATOR STATIONED IN AFGHANISTAN

At the time, Sloan was preparing to relocate to Bagram, taking a Captain who was relieving him around to surrounding villages and introducing him to locals.

"He was on his way out. Within hours he would have been on a plane out. He paid his dues—he was shot at, rained on, snowed on, dust blown. His replacement was there—that's what's so devastating," said Bob Drebenstedt, director of Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs.

In an e-mail, Spenceley wrote there was no small arms fire after the explosion, so talk of a possible ambush has been quieted. Sloan and his gunner were killed instantly. A third person in the vehicle died en route to the hospital while the driver is in Landstuhl, Germany recovering from his wounds.

Spenceley recalled just weeks before the incident when he visited Sloan. He wrote that his interaction with Sloan's soldiers said a lot about the man and soldier he was.

"He was what they call in the military a 'soldier's soldier.' A guy who leads from the front and would never ask his men to do something he wouldn't do himself," Spenceley stated.

"Doug was a hero, no question about it. He changed and saved a lot of lives while he was here. I know that for a fact. If the military was filled with Doug Sloans we would have been out of here a long time ago. I can't even explain how proud I am to have known him as a soldier and especially as a friend and how sad I am that he's gone."

Sloan's Sergeant Major at Camp Blessing told Spenceley, Sloan was like a sheriff in that area and the place was almost lawless before he arrived.

"He would go into these villages where Americans had never gone before and with the presence of a man who owned the place, he would clean up the bad and instill the good," Spenceley wrote.

He said that in one instance Sloan freed a young girl who had been held captive for years and assisted in her captor's trial and conviction.

"This would never have happened before Doug got there. He gave people the safety to do the right thing," Spenceley stated.

While Sloan was a hero overseas he was a local hero as well. On Nov. 1, flags across Charlevoix were lowered to half staff in recognition of his accomplishments and service.

East Jordan sewage spill doesn't impact Charlevoix

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

An East Jordan power outage that led to a sewage spill into Lake Charlevoix, had no impact on the waters surrounding Charlevoix and shouldn't happen at the local plant.

According to Scott Kendzierski, environmental health director with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, there is no concern that the 150,000 gallons of sewage that flowed into Lake Charlevoix from an East Jordan wastewater treatment pump has traveled beyond its source to Charlevoix.

The plume of sewage reached from the mouth of the Jordan River to Elm Point.

"A lot is naturally digested by various types of bacteria. The real risk is right at the source. It's a single release not a chronic release," Kendzierski said. "Any amount is of concern and we work proactively to address the situation."

On Oct. 25 Larry Chew, East Jordan's wastewater treatment operator, announced that half a day's wastewater collection had been dumped into Lake Charlevoix after the power failed at the city's main pump station. The city operates five stations, four of which flow into this main station located at the city's airport.

Chew explained that the power to this main station crashed some time between 3 p.m. on Oct. 24 and 8:30 a.m. on Oct. 25. When the pump station went down, its limited storage capacity was met and the overflow went directly into Lake Charlevoix.

The spill prompted the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to issue a week-long advisory warning residents to have no contact with water at the mouth of the Jordan River and near the boat launch near the East Jordan municipal marina. No warning about fish consumption was included.

Kendzierski said those who may have come in contact with the water could expect a physical reaction including gastrointestinal problems like diarrhea or an ear or eye infection.

Testing of the water by Kendzierski and his staff started just hours after the spill was reported and continues. The goal is to find E. coli levels below the 300 parts per million allowed by law.

The East Jordan spill prompted Chew to explore new station failure alert strategies. The alarm system will now have a battery backup and an automatic dialing system installed which will call necessary contacts to rectify the situation before it gets out of hand.

According to Jim Caldwell, superintendent of the City of Charlevoix wastewater treatment plant, the local main lift station is equipped with a backup generator which kicks on if power is cut. All the city stations are alarmed and equipped with batteries for backup.

The City of Charlevoix handles about 400,000 gallons of wastewater daily.

According to health department and local officials, an East Jordan power outage that led to a sewage spill into Lake Charlevoix, had no impact on the waters surrounding Charlevoix and shouldn't happen at the local plant. The area the spill impacted is marked above and extends from the East Jordan municipal marina to Elm Point.

New patrolman joins city police department

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Rounding out the crop of young City of Charlevoix Police Department patrol officers is the newest hire, Erin Evans.

Evans, 23, joined the city police department on Oct. 30.

He is the third 20 something to join the force. The others are Sarah Cooper, 22 who was hired in May and Matt Umulis, 24, who has been a patrolman since 2003.

City police chief, Gerard Doan said there are some advantages to having young officers.

"You can try and mold them to fit your department. Every department is different," he said.

Evans was selected from a group of 36 applicants. The selection committee included City of Charlevoix Fire Chief,

Erin Evans

Paul Ivan, Mackinaw City Chief of Police, Patrick Wyman, Charlevoix City Manager, Mike Wiesner and Doan.

"We were looking for a well-rounded individual we thought would fit well in this community," Doan said.

Each new hire goes through two weeks of intensive training before hitting the streets. After the initiation, Evans will be assigned the 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. shift.

Evans fills the vacancy created by Adam Dzwik who left the force in August. With staffing levels now at capacity, the local department includes five full-time patrol officers, a deputy chief and Doan.

Evans, who is single and has no children, is a 2002 Cheboygan High School graduate who earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice with emphasis on public safety and a minor in corrections from Lake Superior State University in Sault Ste. Marie.

His prior experience in police work includes a four-month stint on both bike and car patrol this past summer with the Mackinaw City Police Department. While there, he said the majority of his work involved alcohol related incidents.

"It's very similar as far as tourism goes and it's small town oriented," Evans said.

He added that he chose

Charlevoix as his next professional stop because he wants to live near lakes and enjoys small towns.

"I like to be involved with the community — to know everyone," he said.

His plans for the future include possibly joining the city's fire department and getting his Emergency Medical Technician's license.

Laurie Stewart

Laurie Stewart will serve as keynote speaker for the Zonta Club of Charlevoix Area Young Women's Day "Sights on Success" planned for Nov. 11 at

The event will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The young ladies who attended last year's event specifically asked that Stewart be invited back. Stewart will lead young women in the sixth through ninth grades from Charlevoix and the surrounding school districts with a new interactive program featuring topics of self-esteem, goal setting, confidence building, positive peer pressure and other topics related to young women.

There will be no cost to the young women attending this event. Lunch will be provided. T-shirts and goody bags are available to the first 100 registrants. Door prizes, including passes to Avalanche Bay will be drawn throughout the event.

To register, or for more information, contact Betsy Granstra at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, (231) 547-0982.

Live fire plan gets resounding thumbs down

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Dozens of people attended the Coast Guard's live fire proposal public hearing on Friday, Nov. 3, unanimously giving the idea a thumbs down.

Aside from Charlevoix citizens and dignitaries such as the mayor, representatives from Senator Debbie Stabenow's office and even an appearance and comment from Congressman Bart Stupak, people from as far away as the Upper Peninsula came to voice their concerns over the Coast Guard's plan to continue automatic weapons training on the Great Lakes.

"We have not communicated with you, the public, effectively enough about this change on the Great Lakes," said Rear Admiral, John E. Crowley Jr. in the beginning of the meeting. "I hope you leave...with a better sense that your Coast Guard has managed this change well. Managed it through standardization of equipment. Managed it through standardization of training. Managed it with an environmental responsibility and managed it through careful intergovernmental discussions."

John Haggard and his wife, Phyllis, chatted with several members of the Coast Guard and public prior to the public hearing portion of last Friday's meeting.

He added, "We're here to guarantee you that your concerns are important to us and will be carefully considered."

Following a presentation by Dr. James Maughan, the scientist who prepared CH2M Hill's risk assessment for the Coast Guard, Master Chief Pat O'Kelly, said a few words about the guns that have been and will be used.

Maughan outlined the information contained in his 80-plus page report. He said the amount of metals the Coast Guard will introduce into the water will not negatively affect the health of people or the environment. He also said no areas that will be used have been tested for preexisting levels of lead, copper, zinc or antimony.

The public comment period began with concerns from Stupak.

"It goes without saying that the Great Lakes are a great and well-known recreational resource. Many people depend on the Great Lakes for boating, fishing, drinking water," he said. "I've only been able to find one person who is for this proposal and many, many who are opposed to it. I'm troubled by three main issues. The first is the limited notice to the public."

Stupak said the Coast Guard's plan to communicate via marine band radio is not enough when considering public safety.

"The second major issue of concern I have is the fact that several of these zones are in high traffic areas of boats doing fishing and recreational activities on the Great Lakes," he said. "The third major concern I have is the environment. When I look at this five-year plan and see that the Coast Guard will be putting approximately 7,000 pounds of copper and lead into our Great Lakes. I'm not confident it will have a negligible result."

Public outcry heard at live fire proposal meeting

He added, "I request you have additional studies on the consequences of putting that (lead and copper) into the Great Lakes. The way it has been put to me a number of times is that we would not allow any industry in the Great Lakes to put 7,000 pounds of lead or copper discharged into our Great Lakes and we don't think the Coast Guard is justified in doing the same."

Carol Ward of Deer Lake said she was concerned with the lack of notice which will be given to the public prior to the live fire exercises.

"I hope information will be more forthcoming and accurate," she said. "I have not seen any analysis or any study that suggests the need for deadly force on the Great Lakes. If there is none, why is the change in policy permitting it? Is it possible to use fewer than the 34 sites proposed and locate them in areas that are not frequented by citizens for boating and fishing."

She added, "I do hope that the permanent zones will not become general training sites used by others — possibly the Air Force."

Dr. Mike Doyle, who represented Bay Mills College and Michigan State University, said of his many concerns, two were paramount.

"The ecological study that was prepared (by CH2M Hill) focused on recreational fish consumption and I'd like to note that the Whitefish Bay zone is located near the Bay Mills Indian community and many of the tribal members are subsistence fisheries people. They have a higher consumption of fish and indeed a higher risk of possibly absorbing more metals than recreational fishermen," he said. "The second issue I'd like to address is the issue of the St. Mary's River, which is adjacent to the Whitefish Bay...which has been defined by the EPA as an area of concern, which is a legal definition which means that there's been pollution of some sort and in this case the pollution is indeed heavy metal. The EPA has spent millions of dollars on studying and remediation on this system."

He added, "This has not been addressed in the study and I propose that this be looked at in more detail."

Randy Bond of Benzie County said, "Please tell me this is not true. Or do you have knowledge of threats that us mere mortals are not privy to? Perhaps Osama Bin Laden is planning a flotilla to attack Milwaukee. That would justify this project, or a direct threat from senior citizens sneaking into Canada to buy prescription drugs so they can afford to eat as well as medicate. This is a major threat to our benevolent pharmaceutical companies thus denying them their obscene profits."

He added, "However, if there are not threats, then this plan is as ill-conceived as anything this government has ever planned."

A representative of the Beaver Island Boat Company asked that the live fire zone be used in the off season to prevent them from being forced to add 30 minutes to their trip from Charlevoix to Beaver Island by going around the live fire zone.

The biggest proponent of the proposed zones, aside from the Coast Guard, was local resident, John Haggard.

Haggard said the only way the Coast Guard can learn to handle dangerous situations is by training.

"In order to protect our country, these young men and women need to learn to operate equipment safely," he said.

Local, Edith Gilbert, asked who is profiteering by producing the weapons and ammunition which will now go to the Coast Guard.

All official comments made during the hearing will be recorded at the office of Docket Management.

The final public hearing scheduled takes place today, Nov. 8 in Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Parlez-vous français? CHS students study French through NCMC partner program

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Samantha Shull

Despite a barrage of budget cuts by local schools, Charlevoix High School was able to maintain its French program by out sourcing to North Central Michigan College.

According to Charlevoix High School Principal, Gary Grundman, when former Charlevoix High School French teacher, Susan Kessler, retired last spring, school officials decided not to replace her.

"We have our third and fourth-year French kids enrolled in a four-hour college course," Grundman said. "We're paying for the tuition and this is probably the first college credit most of these kids will have on their transcript."

He added, "I feel good that we're meeting the needs of our kids and I'm glad they are able to take the biannual trip to France."

Grundman said the school saved approximately one-third of Kessler's previous salary by bringing an instructor over from North Central Michigan College, but said he wishes the school could have replaced her.

"I'm very disappointed we had to cut one of our second languages," he said. "But, so far we have been able to maintain a strong and diverse curriculum that puts us in a position to implement the new (rigorous) requirements."

Twenty-five high-schoolers, at $425.60 per student, are currently enrolled in the class for a total cost of $10,640 per semester. The school will see a savings of approximately $64,700 by farming the work out to the local college.

Charlevoix High School senior, Samantha Shull, said, while she isn't getting any credit for the class, she is happy for the opportunity to continue learning French.

"The University of Michigan doesn't count this as dual enrollment and most similar colleges have the same standard as far as I know," she said. "The school failed to tell the students that, so I'm just taking the class to learn French."

Grundman said, while it is true the University of Michigan won't accept the credits, most universities will.

"U of M has their own way of doing things," he said.

The way Grundman explained it, the kids taking the college level French course are no different than those who go to North Central and take it.

"If there's room, people from the Charlevoix area can take the class here instead of driving to Petoskey," Grundman said.

Shull said the class taught by the college instructor is much more demanding than the one previously taught by Kessler.

"There are huge changes," she said. "We're supposed to spend twice the amount of time at home working as we do in class. We have more homework and higher expectations."

For information on the availability of taking the French class in the future, call (231) 547-3200.

Hospice offers holiday grief support program

The Safe Crossings Program of Hospice of Little Traverse Bay will be holding a "Handling the Holidays" seminar on Nov. 16 at Charlevoix Public Library.

These are one-night support and education classes designed to help you and your family through the holiday season after the death of a loved one.

Because the holidays are traditionally times to celebrate and reflect on our lives, the loss of a loved one can change the holidays into a time of sadness and loneliness. Through sharing ideas, talking with others who are facing similar prospects this holiday season, and printed information, the seminar will address the concerns of those attending and help generate ideas about ways to enhance the holiday season for yourself and for those who love you.

Handling the Holidays will be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 16, at the new Charlevoix Public Library, located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

The sessions will be facilitated by Safe Crossings family counselors. To register or for more information, call Hospice of Little Traverse Bay at (231) 487-4825.

Using technology to track your ancestry

The Charlevoix County Genealogical Society will meet at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 11 in the lower level community room of the Boyne District Library, located at 201 East Main St. in Boyne City.

Genealogical researchers will give a demonstration of how to use Ancestry.com and Google to search for ancestors on the Internet. Attendees are asked to bring the names of ancestors and basic information about them to begin searching for family history using the Internet.

The meeting is free and open to the public.

Scovie's owners to add Caribbean hot spot to local holdings

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

A Caribbean breeze is expected to sweep through Charlevoix in March 2007.

While many may hope this means Charlevoix can look forward to a mild winter, it really means the taste buds of locals and visitors will soon be tantalized by the flavors of the Pacific Rim.

Last week, Scott and Vi Forreider, owners of Scovie's Gourmet, along with Scott's parents, Leonard and Joan Forreider, purchased the former Ferry Beach Inn, located at 230 Ferry Avenue, from Jack Strand.

"We want to bring something new to Charlevoix," Vi said. "This will be another place our regular customers can enjoy fresh ingredients."

"We want to bring it (Nanny's Ferry Beach Inn) back to its fullest potential if not exceed the potential it once reached."

They plan to continue to operate their successful Scovie's Gourmet at 111 Bridge St. with manager, Eric Wlodarczyk, heading up that operation and in March 2007 will open their latest endeavor.

The new restaurant will offer a lunch and dinner menu featuring dinner entrees ranging in price from $12 to $18 and a full-service tiki bar which will incorporate an extensive wine list. The menu will draw from Pacific Rim and Polynesian influences and will include items like Plantain nachos, jerk chicken, buffalo chicken, spring rolls and Dim Sum.

Their hours of operation will be from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday and the couple is exploring the option of a Sunday brunch.

The Forreiders will tackle the business venture in two phases. The first will be to renovate and open the restaurant, which seats 180 people, as well as overhauling the adjoining motel rooms. In the second phase, they will remove the third floor lodging and replace it with a banquet hall.

Rooms will be available to rent in December.

One important element of phase one is naming the restaurant. Scott and Vi have some ideas of their own.

but are looking for input from the community. A "name that restaurant" contest will award dinner for four to the person who comes up with the winning name.

"Think tropical, generic," Vi said. E-mail name proposals to info@scovies.com.

Scott estimated the new year-round restaurant will employ about 35 people.

They are planning an invite-only "soft opening" where guests will be given 50 percent off their food bill in exchange for attending and filling out a comment card. This will help them forecast problems before opening full tilt.

Scott's experience in the restaurant business started when he was 14 at the Birchwood Country Club, where he was a dishwasher. From there he worked his way up the ranks in the kitchen. He later went on to attend Northwood Institute in Midland and North Central Michigan College in Petoskey where he studied culinary arts and business. He is originally from the Petoskey, Harbor Springs area.

Vi, a native of central Indiana, is a self-taught restaurateur. She learned to bake from her grandmother and mother and learned to operate all facets of a restaurant during numerous apprenticeships. Before moving to Charlevoix in 2003, Vi opened 11 restaurants in one year in Phoenix, Ariz.

"I love the restaurant business, every day is something different," she said.

After leaving Arizona and relocating to Charlevoix, in April 2003 Scott and Vi opened the successful Scovie's Gourmet. The restaurant has evolved from a sandwich, coffee and pastry stop featuring beer and wine to go, to a bistro style gourmet bake shop with dinner, catering options and culinary gift items.

"It's a lot of hard work (opening the new restaurant) but we're very excited. It's because of the support we've had from the community that we are able to do this," Vi said.

Rayder basketball feels high and low of pay back

BY ALLEN TELGENHOF
SPORTS WRITER

They say that revenge is sweet. The Charlevoix Rayders found that out early last week when they avenged an earlier conference loss to Kalkaska, 63-51.

However, the Rayders were on the other hand of a pay back last Thursday, Nov. 2, as they lost to Boyne City, 67-60. Earlier in the season, the Ramblers suffered their first loss of the season to Charlevoix.

The loss dropped Charlevoix into a first place tie with Boyne with identical 11-2 marks in the Lake Michigan Conference. Both teams closed out league play this week as the Rayders played at Elk Rapids and Boyne traveled to East Jordan on Tuesday, Nov. 7. Results were unavailable at press time.

It was a back and forth contest against Kalkaska with the Rayders leading 11-7 after the first quarter. The second quarter saw five lead changes before a Desi Faust three-pointer as time expired tied the score at 22-22.

For the quarter, Charlevoix hit on just four of 22 shots. The third quarter was more of the same, with neither team leading by more than two until two Robin Petzak free throws gave the Rayders a 39-36 lead at the end of the period.

Charlevoix completed a 9-0 run in the beginning of the fourth quarter with the key play, a Lori Zimmerman rebound, coast-to-coast drive and three-point play. The run, which occurred in the last minute of the third quarter and first two minutes of the fourth, gave the Rayders a 44-36 advantage they would never relinquish.

Kalkaska was no closer than six points the rest of the way while Charlevoix led by as many as 13.

"Kalkaska was able to get their tempo most of the game," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "But in the fourth quarter we were able to get just enough quick points to make a little run and get a double-digit lead. Bethany Pearson, Tammy Potter and Lori Zimmerman all made some big baskets in the fourth."

Zimmerman led the Rayders in scoring with 16 points. Sophomore Tammy Potter had 14 points and 15 rebounds and Bethany Pearson scored 10.

Against Boyne, the Rayders were in another topsy-turvy game with multiple lead changes. The teams were tied 45-45 headed into the final period but Boyne pulled away in the game's final minutes.

"Boyne City deserved to win, there's no question," Haske said. "Our transition defense was very poor. Hopefully we'll learn from that because I'm sure we'll see Boyne back here in the districts."

Zimmerman led the Rayders with 15 points. Tammy Potter, Becca Madison and Bethany Pearson all scored nine.

TEEN SCENE inside the halls

The popularity of text messaging among teens

BY KIMBERLY WAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Kimberly Way

Once upon a time, cell phones were used for just that — phones.

Today, mobile phones are used much of the time for text messaging, e-mail, and navigation.

"(Text messaging) is so convenient," said junior Aubrey Way. "I can text (message) at nearly all hours of the day — I love it."

Whether you're having dinner with family, at the movie, or doing homework with friends, text messaging is always an option; however, timing is crucial.

At Charlevoix High, cell phones are prohibited during school hours. Officials find them to be distractions during times when schoolwork should be top priority. But cell phones aren't the only electronic device not allowed in CHS classrooms. Mp3 players are also on the list of "no-can-dos."

Upon receiving a new iPod Nano for her birthday, freshman Meagan Golovich wanted to bring it to school to listen to during her down time.

"I was (disappointed) that I couldn't bring my new iPod to school," said Golovich. "But rules are rules."

Officials at Charlevoix High School spend countless minutes during the school day asking students to remove earphones or cell phones from their person. It's an endless task.

Text messaging and music are top distractions in the classroom. Many students can be found sending texts to their friends throughout the day and are often seen with headphones strung through the neck of their shirts.

"It'll be a tough problem to solve," said Way.

But the school has hopes of enforcing these rules to perfection in the near future.

Kimberly Way is the writer and coordinator of Teen Scene. This page will appear the second Wednesday of the month in the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by e-mail at way_kim@hotmail.com.

Cool Cities process gets underway

BY JULIE WITTHOEF
EDITOR

The process to develop a clear marketing plan for Charlevoix's future officially got underway on Nov. 6.

In July, Charlevoix learned it is one of five recipients of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation's Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns grants. Other winners are Petoskey, Muskegon Heights, Oscoda and Tecumseh.

The grant assists in funding development of a market study of the downtown area, and of a five-year economic enhancement action strategy. Now, the first steps in creating those pieces in the local economic puzzle are being taken.

On Nov. 6, the Downtown Development Authority determined the first leg in the race to cool will be run by key community members who are part of a Cool Cities Process

Committee.

This group will meet for the first time at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 20 in city council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall. Scheduling and task assignment will be discussed.

The committee membership includes members of the Downtown Development Authority as well as 15 representatives from key sectors in the community like the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Public Emory is holding a 10th Mountain Division hat over his heart. County commission to decide administrator's fate

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will likely decide at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 16 whether D. Wayne O'Neal will become Charlevoix County Administrator.

While First District Commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, said the meeting was rescheduled because the original date, Nov. 22, was too close to Thanksgiving, Sixth District County Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, said the sooner O'Neal is hired, the better.

"We'd like to have him on board by Dec. 1," she said. "We didn't discuss it yesterday (Wednesday, Nov. 8) because the full board wasn't there (see the related story on page 12 in this week's Courier)."

Between now and then, Roloff said, she would like to meet one on one with the commissioners-elect and discuss why the current board feels there is a need for the new administrator position.

"They should know just what we're doing — the reasons why and the package we're going to offer him," she said. "I'm sure we will (address the issue) at the next meeting, unless they call a special meeting."

She added, "We should jump on this as soon as possible."

Newly elected District Four Commissioner, Joel Evans, is puzzled by the board's apparent sudden interest in his opinion on the matter.

"I don't know what's happened now all of the sudden that they want to meet with us," Evans said. "I had a commissioner who talked to me last night (Nov. 9). He was trying to convince me that this is the best thing we can do for the county."

Evans believes it is a good idea to decide O'Neal's fate after the new board takes office in January 2007.

"I'm against it right now, but I'm just one vote. We need to get Library, Charlevoix Public Schools and the retail community.

According to city planner, Gerry Harsch, this Process Committee will do a lot of the preliminary leg work for consultants with the firm, HyettPalma, who will formulate the market study and develop the action strategy.

From now until the end of January, the committee will conduct business and residential surveys, gather residential, business and parking maps and will look at the history of retail sales tax.

Because of the sizable task being assigned to the process committee, the Downtown Development Authority has advertised for a Cool Cities project coordinator. The position is a four-month term of employment for a candidate with a background in market and economic development who has community organizational and promotional skills. A wage was not determined.

Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns is a 50/50 match grant. Charlevoix city manager, Mike Wiesner, has estimated the project cost, not including the coordinator's pay, to be $30,000. The local $15,000 match will come from the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and is included in the group's 2006-2007 budget.

According to Harsch, the goal is to identify what exists, and what steps should be taken over the next five years to attract businesses and guide appropriate development.

Measurable results that will be tracked include the creation of new jobs and private investments in the downtown.

During the May grant application process, Harsch stated Charlevoix is in need of the Blueprints program because of its empty storefronts in the business district, its need to transition from a seasonal community to a year-round community and the stagnation of development on Bridge Street. He also stated that job loss from the decommissioning of both Big Rock Point and the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia make Charlevoix a worthy choice.

Don't let politics trump thankfulness

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

There are many derogatory labels attached to U.S. soldiers — baby killer, murderer, pig.

Most recently John Kerry, a politician of questionable judgment, in a botched attack on the president, basically said only morons join the military.

In addition to stupid comments by prominent figures and people already filled with unrelenting hate for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines, are the politicians who abuse our military resources by waging bloody campaigns for reasons other than protection of the nation.

After awhile, even moderate folks are more apt to oppose wars, conflicts and peacekeeping missions.

However, some people become so emotional over tumult, they begin blaming people who have no say in who or why they fight.

A soldier's post is apolitical, but it's easy to despise a person or idea when reduced to simplest terms.

So what is a soldier? Is he merely a man with a gun? Is he the mindless killer in a pacifist's nightmare? Is he more than boots, rifle, camouflage and canteen?

Of course, some of us don't want to take a closer look. It is much easier to hate something when kept unfamiliar. But make no mistake, these soldiers are someone's brothers, sisters, mothers and fathers.

And still some of us refuse to recognize the sacrifice.

Some of the faceless and nameless come home and some of them don't. Some of them come home healthy and some of them don't.

Soldiers promise to do as they are told — no questions asked — even if it means their demise. So offer these men and women fortunate enough to return from conflict your help, but save your pity and your contempt for those who deserve it.

Luckily my grandfather came home in one piece from action in 1950s Korea. I think he would have laughed at Kerry's joke — poor taste that it was.

Grandpa was a voracious reader with a brain that would shame Funk & Wagnalls and the New World Encyclopedia. He was a large man, easily 6 feet, 4 inches with a deep booming voice, though his gentle nature belied his imposing stature. Even in my adulthood the man towered over me.

With his great strawberry-blond beard and kind face, he was the spitting image of a Christmas card Santa Claus. And, when he smiled, he smiled with his whole face. Watching him laugh made you feel so good you'd have to fight back tears.

Aside from being an intellectual and the last word in general knowledge, grandpa was a camper, hunter, writer, craftsman and master storyteller.

He fathered seven children who gave him 22 grandchildren. We, in turn, gave him 13 great-grandchildren.

Other than the couple times I asked him, grandpa never talked about his wartime service. I'm sure he was grateful for the opportunity to serve his country and his family.

He enlisted over a half-century ago not because he was a Republican or a Democrat, not because he was a bloodthirsty killer and not because he wanted money for college. He joined the armed forces so he could help protect everything he held dear.

Years ago I began calling grandpa on Veterans' Day just to say thank-you for his effort so long ago. Of course, the focus of the conversation would always turn to how and what I was doing.

Shortly after his passing a couple years ago, a family member confided how much those calls meant to him. Leave it to grandpa to have more gratitude for being thanked than did the person doing the thanking.

I have many regrets in my life. I wish I wouldn't have waited so long to start that short-lived ritual of simply thanking him for having the courage to do what so many would not.

John Wayne said, "Courage is being scared to death, but saddling up anyway." Don't let politics prevent you from thanking someone you know for, "Saddling up."

Veterans' Day 2006 has passed, but it's not too late to pick up the phone, bake a dozen cookies for, or send a card to a veteran you know.

Thank educators this week for shaping future

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Nov. 12-18 is American Education Week.

The origins of recognizing teachers dates back to 1944 when Matty Whyte Woodridge, started writing politicians about the need to honor teachers. It wasn't until Eleanor Roosevelt stepped in, that Congress took notice. She persuaded the 81st Congress to proclaim a National Teacher Day in 1953.

American Education Week recognizes teachers and extended staff as well. This is a good time to visit with your child at school to be thanked for all of your efforts too, as you play an integral role in the education of your child. It's time to recognize the secretaries, classroom aides, maintenance staff, cafeteria workers, bus drivers and counselors who provide an invaluable service for all of our children.

I need to thank my mom for steering me in the direction of earning a teaching certificate. By age 14 I felt certain I would become an actress or artist. Mom was realistic and gently informed me that she would not financially support a daughter who chose to work on busy street corners selling her art or earn her living with her antics as a mime. Thus, I was strongly encouraged by both my parents to earn a teaching degree and establish a career that had stronger possibilities of security. I'm glad I listened and followed through.

I've never regretted earning that certificate. It has helped me in so many ways throughout all the new and different career paths I've taken. Teaching has a way of getting you organized. It helps you understand flexibility and it encourages you to have a sense of humor. It brings out your child-like side and strengthens empathy for change and expectation. What other career allows you to learn how to handle your liquid intake so you could finish a lesson without a bathroom break. What other career challenges you daily to remember who can eat snacks, what food items they're allergic to and how to diversify your approach to meet the needs of each child's learning style.

It is a career that recruits individuals ready to be prepared for threats not only from outside sources but inside as well. It's a job that expects performance and demands accountability by parents and the state.

When I think back on the people in my life who influenced me most, a teacher's name always comes to mind. When I ask my girls what they remember most about their education in Charlevoix, the Beaver Island trip, spring musical, Washington D.C., and the advanced biology trip are at the top of the list. The curriculum that was linked with these experiences remains with them as well. Lessons learned followed up with hands on experience are part of the "see it, say it, write it and experience it" philosophy. We are fortunate to have teachers in Charlevoix who feel the same.

LETTERS to the editor

CHARM ISN'T A LUXURY
Editor:

I want to give an update to all those who have been following the controversy over a hotel/motel/condo building proposed for a lot on Pine River Lane, in Charlevoix. The developer added to the plans a 10 foot by 15 foot room in the ground floor level, labeled lobby-office. This made the 32 unit, two bedroom suites a "hotel," under the zoning code.

The neighbors had continuing objections, namely that the building was stuffed into its lot, was too big and close to the street for the residential neighborhood, would generate too much traffic for an already crowded one-way street, and its commercial plainness would damage the value or "charm" of Pine River Lane as a residential neighborhood walkway to Lake Michigan, taken by thousands of visitors.

At Monday's meeting of the City Council, the city attorney advised the council that even if this area of Pine River Lane might be a residential neighborhood functionally, it is technically zoned commercial, and the council members should put aside all considerations of whether they "like" or "dislike" the project, also whether the project is "good" or "bad" for Charlevoix. Instead, they should think only on whether the project meets the technical parameters of the zone. Thus advised, recovery may not be possible. If we take an indifferent attitude toward Charlevoix's appearance, especially as seen by our visitors, surely the consequences will be negative.

EDUCATION

Teaching doesn't end when the bell rings as some may believe. Homework corrections, lesson plans, curriculum meetings, school committee reports and professional development keep teachers engaged mentally until bedtime.

Summers are spent in continuing education classes which are required in Michigan schools. Individuals who choose this procession do so because they care about children and our future. Other careers may offer the same care but none have the daily reward of a child's look of awe when they express that, "Ahh, now I get it" look when they understand how to do something new.

Great teachers, make great schools and better students. Involved parents make better role models and round out the picture of everyone working together. So this week we are thankful for everyone who plays an integral part in educating children.

This news columnist ends by saying, "Thank you" to my colleagues and dedicated parents who have the future in their hands.

Gayle Gennett is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

all but council member Gibson rubber-stamped the approval given last week by the planning commission.

As a result of questioning by the council, the members heard, definitively, that it was illegal for people to dwell (more than transient) in a building in the commercial district. However, this possible/likely development was thought to be not an approval issue but an enforcement issue.

I thank the citizens who spoke before the council, expressing their opinions about the dangers of over-development and the disarray of our zoning regulations.

Neither the Planning Commission nor the City Council seemed able to give much currency to the idea of loss of charm and unique presentation of the city to visitors as negatives for Charlevoix. I think a toxic mixture of development costs, sense of entitlement, political indifference and zoning mistakes may squander the value of the Pine River Lane neighborhood. I keep hoping something can be done to avoid an unnecessary waste.

Charm isn't a luxury for Charlevoix. In the overall picture, charm pays dividends. Charm should continue to be a part of Charlevoix's success. Charm is the complement to Charlevoix's natural beauty. Both can be destroyed by its citizens. As with global warming, I think there is a "tipping point" beyond which collaborative programs and events. Working together, we will be able to do many meaningful things.

How many fires did we prevent today? Each one that did not start.

CHARLEVOIX ATTACKS GLOBAL WARMING

Editor:

Thank you to the warm and generous citizens of Charlevoix.

The new library and city hall are gleaming examples of your commitment to education and civic progress.

I have recently made presentations on global warming to the Lions, Rotary, First Congregational members who attended the screening of "An Inconvenient Truth" and Charlevoix City Council. It is with my great pleasure that I can witness the inspiring leadership of this enlightened city at a critical point in history.

Around the world and right here in northern Michigan the impacts from global warming are undeniable. Lower lake levels, shorter winter seasons and diminishing snows threaten the once reliable tourist industries as well as fragile ecological niches. The once booming winter recreation industries have seen fewer visitors every year. Trout and whitefish which have already been reduced by invasive species are now threatened by warming waters. As cold water species, their habitat is projected to be reduced by a third.

Karen Lewis named Margaret Duerr Book Award winner

Karen Smith Lewis, volunteer curator of the Charlevoix Depot Museum and the Harsha House Museum, has been recognized by the Charlevoix Public Library with the fourth annual Margaret Duerr Book Award.

Beginning in 1999 Karen spearheaded the renovation of the Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House dining room and had the vision to organize important shows which have included "Charlevoix Artists of the Past," two highly acclaimed displays of historical quilts made by area women, "The Rosa Nettleton Exhibit" co-sponsored with the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, and this past summer's very successful "Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant" exhibit.

She has researched and organized numerous retrospectives focusing on families, occupations, industries and events from Charlevoix's past. Some of these included documentation of the fishing industry, athletic teams, marine and lighthouse history, needlework of area craftspeople and local Native American history.

Lewis' idea to begin an "Adopt a Painting" program at the historical society has resulted in dozens of original pieces of art being restored and hung at the Harsha House. Her contributions to the Charlevoix community make her a deserving choice for the 2006 Margaret Duerr Book Award.

the preservation of the history of northern Michigan is selected for this award, named for and first presented to Margaret Duerr, a devoted employee and long-time volunteer at the Charlevoix Public Library. Previous winners are Marilyn Boss and Clayton Smith.

Although Char-Em United Way kicked off its 2006-2007 fund-raising campaign a little more than a month ago, the group has already exceeded 20 percent of its $200,000 goal for the year.

"We are very pleased with the early results," said Martha Lancaster, Char-Em United Way executive director.

If the United Way reaches its goal, the Frey Foundation will award a challenge grant of an additional $20,000, the first of a three-year challenge grant to Char-Em United Way.

"Many new work sites have joined the campaign this year and many whom we didn't contact last year are back as full partners this year," Lancaster said.

The theme of the United Way Campaign is "What's Raised Here, Stays Here," emphasizing that nearly all the funds raised support local health and human service agencies. Char-Em United Way distributed over $103,000 to 33 health and human service agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Tax deductible donations can be mailed to P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770.

In addition to providing financial support to local agencies, Char-Em United Way works year-round in the community on initiatives such as the Day of Caring, Bom Learning Collaborative, 2-1-1, and the federal Emergency Food and Shelter Program.

Charlevoix Pointe project gets green light

BY KRISTINA HUGHES
STAFF WRITER

For years Steve Hansen enjoyed the views of the Pine River Channel and the interaction with travelers who often walk by his home.

But all that may change. Hansen believes the quality of life he relishes will be lost when a new neighbor moves in — a three story resort/hotel development.

After months of contentious meetings, Charlevoix City Council approved the Charlevoix Pointe Inn development Monday to the disappointment of neighbors who opposed the plan.

"I'm sorry that the city council has to take such a legislative approach to the decision. I still think that there was a way open for them to have a more empathetic approach to the neighborhood and town," Hansen said.

The council decided that the plans met the city's zoning ordinance. Councilwoman Shirley Gibson was the lone vote against the approval of the plan.

The Charlevoix Pointe Inn resort plan includes a three-story hotel with 30 hotel units and 34 parking spaces. The project consists of rooms designed with 800 to 1,300 square feet with living quarters, kitchenettes and different bedroom configurations. The hotel features a lobby and registration area on the first floor. The parking is underground. Pine River Lane is zoned commercial.

The property is owned by Julia Ann Bandfield, Randy Carey and Peter Carey and is part of the commercial service district. The developers, Travis Catt, of Catt Acquisitions of Gaylord, and his partner Drew Spanding, did not request any variances. Doug Mansfield, of Wells Mansfield Inc. of Traverse City, designed the project.

The city followed the recommendation of the Charlevoix Planning Commission, which approved the Charlevoix Pointe Inn resort plan.

City attorney, Jim Young, guided the council through the decision process. Young said the council should approve or deny the development based on the finding of the facts and standards in the zoning ordinance.

"It's not best for you to decide what is in the best interest of the people," Young said.

Young made the recommendation after the city spent money in court and lost both the Sunnyhank case and May Street case.

Second ward councilman,

Gabe Campbell, who had reservations about the plan, voted to approve it.

"It looks like our hands are tied according to the attorney. I still have reservations. But I didn't want to have another lawsuit for the city," Campbell said. "There still are more questions, but I have to go with what the city attorney says."

According to the architect, the project was designed with the intent to meet the zoning ordinance.

Roy Edgar, an attorney from Traverse City representing the developers, said he was hired to address the standards — standards he said his clients meet.

"I heard the city council was politicized and was not going to vote for it even if it met the standards," Edgar said.

But Robert Grzech, representing the parties opposing the plan, said the project did not meet standards in the ordinance. Grzech said the plan is privately owned which is defined as a residence.

Residences are not permitted in the C-1 district. Young said the ownership was protected under the Michigan Condominiums Act.

Grzech indicated discrepancies in the ordinance that he believed made the potential approval questionable. In one section, a hotel is defined, but that definition is not applied to the C-1 district. Grzech said the definitions should be broad-based.

Young said the Zoning Board of Appeals ruled that the hotel/motel definitions do not apply to the C-1 district.

Gibson questioned numerous issues — the definitions of hotel, and the condominiumized ownership. Gibson said the zoning ordinance is very, very flawed. "This ... is a manipulation of the zoning," Gibson said.

Grzech shared the precedent the city may set.

"The issue is whether this is what you want the city ordinance to allow," Grzech said.

Grzech said the planning commission admitted the plans were ugly, too big and too crowded, but since it met the zoning ordinance, the commission approved the plan.

Campbell requested that the board clean up discrepancies in the zoning ordinance.

"We have to change this because it's a disgrace. I've been harping on this for years. Everything in the gray area says 'Sam can't and Henry can,'" Campbell said.

After much deliberation, the council approved the plan.

Grzech did not comment on whether he planned to take any action on behalf of his clients.

Final three sentenced in school vandal case

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

The locks have been replaced, the water damage mopped up and the last three defendants charged in connection with an illegal entry and vandalism incident at Charlevoix High School have been sentenced.

On Nov. 7, Aaron William Hagen, 18, of Charlevoix was the last student sentenced in connection with the May incident. Hagen's sentencing in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court was based on a disturbing the peace charge. He was sentenced to serve nine months probation and perform 10 days of community service work. He was also fined $1,630. A possession of marijuana charge he faced that arose out of a search warrant police used to search for chemistry items stolen from the school, was deferred. If he keeps his nose clean, when the probation period has expired, it will be dismissed.

Prior to Hagen's sentencing was that of 18-year-old Charlevoix resident, Andrew Victor Kantola on the same disturbing the peace charge.

At Kantola's Oct. 24 sentencing he was given six months probation and 15 days of community service work as well as a fine of $1,040.

Jared William Kirby, 18, of Charlevoix also faced a charge of disturbing the peace and on Oct. 17 was sentenced to six months probation and 10 days of community service work as well as fined $860.

The charges faced by all three were reduced in a plea deal. They faced one count each of illegal entry and malicious destruction to a building, $200-$1,000. Hagen and Kirby also faced a one-year misdemeanor charge stemming from the alleged theft (Kirby) and later concealment (Hagen) of chemistry equipment from the school.

The other 11 teens charged in connection with the incident entered guilty pleas in early August and were sentenced in their respective cases.

Those 11 students received deferred sentences that included four to six months probation, five to 10 days of community service work, $200 to $300 in fines and costs and restitution.

Initially, authorities estimated that the cost to clean up the damage to the school could go as high as $10,000. However, the actual bill came to $6,090.54 to re-key the locks at the school and damage clean-up. The restitution amounts to about $300 per defendant.

A deferred sentence means that if the defendants complete all of the terms of their probation and stay out of trouble while on probation, the conviction is expunged from their records.

Authorities said in the early morning hours of May 26 a group of Charlevoix High School seniors used copies of a stolen master key to get inside the high school building. While in the building, at least some of the suspects allegedly plugged up the drains in several sinks, then turned on the water, causing the sinks to overflow.

According to Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, steps have been taken since to ensure an incident like this doesn't happen again.

At the time of the incident, the high school had one master key that opened every door at the school. Now, the three entrance doors are accessible by one key that can't be copied.

Security zones were also established at the school so if there's a problem an area can be quickly re-keyed.

"There's a message sent to kids all the time on this. Everyone understands what went on," Grundman said.

"We try to work with the kids and last year it just didn't work."

Outgoing, incoming commissioners butt heads together...and see if we want an administrator or not," he said. "I'm not against the (current) board or the fellow they're talking about hiring, but I think this new board ought to have a chance to see what they can do without a new administrator."

He added, "If indeed we see we can't run this county or we've made too many mistakes or spent too much money, then maybe we should hire one. I'm not against making Charlevoix County a better functioning courthouse — I think we can do that without hiring an outsider to come in and pay him $100,000 to give us advice."

Saltonstall said incoming commissioners are being approached because of their somewhat vocal opposition to hiring an administrator.

"We want to be fair to our candidate and not put him in a difficult situation," she said. "The administrator serves at the will of the commissioners. Of course, there would be a financial penalty against the county (for early termination of employment), but it's important that this process work."

Saltonstall cited Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon's alleged refusal to run for another term in two years as one of the main reasons an administrator is needed.

"We need someone who can follow through with these finances. This county administrator will have two years to work with the (clerk) and the finance department before (Brannon) leaves," she said. "This is a very important transition for the county and every (current) commissioner believes it's the right thing to do."

Saltonstall said some current

During the Wednesday, Nov. 8 County Board of Commissioners meeting, District Six Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, requested the board hold off on hiring or appointing anyone until a full board can meet. The board was light two members because District Five Commissioner, Dennis Jason, was in the hospital and District Three Commissioner, Ron Reinhardt, was out of the state.

board members originally didn't like the idea of hiring a county administrator, but changed their collective minds upon realizing how complex the inner workings of the county are.

Commissioner-elect, Chris Christensen, was also approached by a member of the current board in recent days.

"To me it just looks like another layer (of government)," he said, but added, "If you hire the guy, I've got a plan. If you don't hire the guy, I've got a plan."

Christensen said, at this point in the hiring process, he would not likely hire O'Neal.

"So, to me, that's a stalemate. The bottom line is, if (commissioners) are to a point where they're second-guessing their decisions, then don't do it," he said. "You're doing all this work on it for years and years and then all of the sudden you're second agrees a combination of a human resource and financial officer is needed, but wonders if hiring a County Administrator is the best way to remedy the situation.

"You'll notice that none of the people whose responsibilities are being lightened (by creation of the administrator position) are losing any money," he said.

Evans wondered why his opinion on the matter hasn't been acknowledged in the past.

"I brought up the issue that it would be wise to wait since these people are off the board. They should not be making decisions for a two-year contract when there are a lot of people against it," he said. "They have not given me a good reason why they want this (hire O'Neal) by Dec. 1."

He added, "I think communication was the problem in the past and I'm confident the county commissioners and the department heads can run the county."

However, Chairman of the Board, Victor Patrick, said letting the public decide this matter isn't an option.

"They talked about putting it up to a vote of the people, and it's illegal. You can't go for a referendum for decisions that are to be made by the board," he said. "It's (hiring an administrator) definitely something that's needed, but I'm not sure if the guy (O'Neal) is going to want to come into a situation like this."

When asked to speculate on the current situation, Patrick said, "I can't think of a reason why there's such turmoil."

Patrick said when he and two other board members originally were elected, they too were against hiring a county administrator.

"We weren't too sure we needed one at that time, but we hadn't walked a mile in our predecessor's shoes," he said.

Patrick said, if the full board meets at the Nov. 16 meeting, this could be resolved one way or another.

First District Commissioner-elect, Shirlene Tripp, was also approached.

"I said I was against it and we (new board members) never hid that fact," Tripp said.

Tripp likened the commissioner's desire to get her opinion on the county administrator right before they do the hiring, to closing the barn door after the horse has escaped.

"Shirley (Roloff) is wanting us to lean the administrator's way and if they hire him there's nothing we can do about it," Tripp said. "But, you've got to be able to work for your constituents."

Tripp said the incoming board members should have the right to decide whether a county administrator is hired.

Commission almost misses quorum mark due to heart trouble

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The heart health of two commissioners was blamed for the cancellation of the Wednesday, Nov. 8 Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting — though the meeting was reinstated minutes after cancellation when District Six Commissioner, Shirley Roloff arrived.

"All I had to do was have them (doctors) check it (new pacemaker) for the first time," Roloff said. "It's normal to do that every time you get one. They said everything is normal and in place."

She added, "I'll have to go back in a few months to get it checked again."

District Five Commissioner, Dennis Jason, was absent for a procedure which was not quite as routine.

Dennis Jason

"They (stints) are never planned. I had some complications and my physician sent me up to my cardiologist and they decided to do a procedure," said Jason, who was absent from the meeting. "I've had a couple open heart surgeries quite a few years ago and this was just a checkup on them."

Jason, who was home and resting the next day, said he doesn't plan to miss the next board meeting.

Jason said he is in good health and addressed the election of new board members.

Shirley Roloff

"We've got a new board and a new man coming on and we'll have to wait and see how it goes," he said. "I wish them luck and will help them in any way I can."

He added, "The county's going to be here for a long time in the future no matter who's here. We will need to work together to keep it running as smooth as possible. I've learned an awful lot in the four years I've been there and there is a lot to learn."

District Three Commissioner, Ron Reinhardt was out of the state the day of the meeting.

Appellate court reinstates Waltonen's sex charges

BY STEVE ZUCKER

Lloyd Waltonen

charges against a Charlevoix man accused in a drugs-for-sex scheme.

In a published opinion released Wednesday, Nov. 8, a three-judge appellate panel ruled that 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas should not have granted a defense motion to throw out the charges against Lloyd Joseph Waltonen, 43.

First degree criminal sexual conduct carries a maximum penalty of up to life in prison.

Waltonen was accused of handing out the painkiller Oxycontin to a woman he knew from an area bar. Authorities said after a couple weeks taking the drug, the woman developed a dependency on it. Police said that's when Waltonen began demanding sex acts from the woman in exchange for the drugs.

When he was arrested in February, Waltonen faced a host of drug charges, a prostitution charge, and eavesdropping charge and four counts of third degree criminal sexual conduct — a 15-year felony. But at his preliminary examination in March, 90th District Court Judge Richard W. May bound Waltonen over to circuit court on the more serious first degree charge.

The third degree charge involves sexual penetration involving force or coercion while the first degree statute adds the element that the victim was also injured or vulnerable because of age or incapacitation. The first degree statute also has a provision — under which Waltonen was charged — that includes "sexual penetration that occurs under circumstances involving the commission of any other felony."

Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara argued — and Judge May agreed — that the underlying felonies of the drug delivery formed a sufficient basis for the first degree charge.

However, in April, Waltonen's defense attorney Kerry Zahner argued to circuit judge Pajtas that the first degree charge was inappropriate because the victim had testified that it was "her choice" to engage in the sex acts with Waltonen.

Pointing to that statement as evidence that the acts were not coerced, Zahner contended that the "statute criminalizes what would otherwise be legal activity," Zahner said. "It doesn't make sense when you have consensual activity."

Even though force or lack of consent is not an element of the charge in this instance, Judge Pajtas agreed saying there wasn't enough connection between the sex act and the underlying felony.

Fanara filed an appeal on the judge's ruling and the case proceeded on the other remaining charges.

In June, Waltonen took advantage of a plea agreement in which he pleaded guilty to three drug charges and other charges. In exchange, several other charges were dismissed. He is now serving a term of 4 to 20 years in prison on the convictions.

In its opinion, the Court of Appeals held that because force or coercion is not an element in the charged offense, the issue of the victim's consent is irrelevant. The court further held that there indeed must be some connection between the sex acts and the underlying felony, as Judge Pajtas opined, but the court held that the circumstances of Waltonen's case provided a sufficient connection.

"... Before and during the sexual penetration the victim and defendant were operating under the knowledge and expectation that drugs would be delivered to the victim after the sexual act and only because of the sexual act," the court wrote.

The court also included a footnote to the opinion in which it acknowledged both the vagueness of the statute and the fact that its hands were tied to interpret the language as written and not to infer the legislature's intent.

"We cannot help but question whether the legislature actually intended the result we reach here today ... but we are curtailed by the language of the statute from reaching any other conclusion ... Technically, any time a person engages in sexual penetration in an adulterous relationship

... he or she is guilty of (first degree criminal sexual conduct). We believe the legislature, in drafting (this law), may have conceived of scenarios in which there was a violent felony involving an unwilling victim. We encourage the legislature to take a second look at the statutory language if it is troubled by our ruling," the court wrote.

Fanara said that she is "very pleased" with the decision and she plans go forward with Waltonen's prosecution, which she expects to resume in the coming weeks.

"Our office takes a firm stand on predators in our community," Fanara said.

Zahner, Waltonen's attorney, was not available for comment.

Hamilton pleads guilty to first degree CSC

STAFF WRITER

A Charlevoix County man whose trial on three sexual assault charges was set to take place Wednesday pleaded guilty at the last minute to spare the young victim in the case from testifying, he said.

Hayes Township resident Randall Scott Hamilton, 54, pleaded guilty Wednesday, Nov. 1 to one count of first degree criminal sexual conduct. The charge, which involves sexual penetration with someone under the age of 13, is punishable by up to life in prison. In exchange for his plea two other identical counts will be dropped. Hamilton also faces a habitual offender, second offense sentencing enhancement on the charge. Usually, such an enhancement increases the maximum possible penalty by one-and-a-half times. In this case it will increase the minimum sentencing guideline range Hamilton will face at the time of his sentencing on Dec. 1.

Hamilton was set to face a one-day bench trial before 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas on Nov. 1. But as the trial was set to begin, Hamilton decided to take the plea.

Randall Hamilton

In court last Wednesday, Hamilton admitted that he had sexually touched the young girl who was the victim in the case. He told the judge that he was taking the plea to spare the girl from testifying at the trial.

Family members brought Hamilton to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office late on Sept. 19 to turn himself in to police. Police said Hamilton admitted that he had sexually touched the young girl on several occasions since May of this year.

Charlevoix County Chief Assistant

Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara, who was the prosecutor in the case, said the girl first came to her parents with the allegations, who then confronted Hamilton. She said police interviewed the girl who confirmed Hamilton's admission.

In 1986, Hamilton was sentenced to a term of eight to 15 years in prison on a first degree criminal sexual conduct charge, also out of Charlevoix County. Fanara said that case did not involve a child. He was discharged from parole on that conviction in 1998. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery in Branch County in 1994 in a case that was originally charged as a sexual assault, Fanara said.

Fanara praised the work of the sheriff's deputies involved in the case and the young victim for having the courage to first come forward with the allegations and then to testify in the trial.

Health and safety officials prepare for pandemic

Public health and safety officers from four counties prepared for widespread illness by holding the Emergency Preparedness Mass Vaccination Drill on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at Charlevoix Middle School.

Jane Sundmacher, Marketing and Public Relations Coordinator for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan (formerly the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency) said, "As a health department, we're tasked with making sure we are ready for a mass distribution of medicine. We do these drills to check for readiness and see if there are any gaps."

Volunteers from the Charlevoix Builders' Club, Charlevoix High School's Occupational Health program as well as health officials from Emmet, Antrim, Otsego, Charlevoix and the Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Emmet Emergency Management participated in the event which lasted approximately two hours.

"Most health departments do drills, but we thought we would do a flu clinic while we were doing the drill," Sundmacher said. "This will actually be the third time we've done this drill. The first was in Emmet (County) The second was in Otsego (County) and now we're in Charlevoix (County)."

She added, "This is our biggest drill of the three."

From the Joint Information Center, which was established to allow news media to inform the public, Bert Notestine, health educator with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, said exercises intended to test and reinforce preparedness are "Very crucial."

Medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Dr. Joshua Meyerson, said, in a pandemic influenza situation, vaccinations would be given to essential personnel such as public safety and health care workers before being doled to the elderly and people with underlying medical conditions.

Meyerson wouldn't speculate on what the emergency preparedness drill cost taxpayers, but said, "The vaccine, people are paying

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

The food catered to the event was donated by a local company and volunteers from the American Red Cross, Community Mental Health, the Commission On Aging and LMS personnel were also on hand.

"This drill will allow us to test our capacity to provide a large volume of vaccine in a short time," Meyerson said. "It also tests the way different agencies and groups work together."

In a national emergency pandemic situation, the clinic would ideally be open on an ongoing basis until the needs of the public were met.

Notestine said the school was chosen for its central location in the Charlevoix area, its large parking lot and internal layout.

When asked whether people would be forced to attend the clinics in the case of a national emergency, Meyerson said, "Most people follow suit and do what's needed."

Joy Klooster, Vice President of Nursing with Charlevoix Area Hospital and the event's public information officer, gave some tips for what people should do in the case of a pandemic.

- If you get sick, stay home
 - Rest
 - Drink fluids
 - Avoid public places
 - If your condition worsens, go to the hospital
- "Certainly (people) should get their flu shot in late October or early November — it's their first defense," Klooster said.

Klooster said her staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital readied themselves for an increase of patients as soon as they were alerted of the pandemic during the drill.

High speed chase perp faces Dec. 1 sentencing

A man that entangled local law enforcement in a dangerous high speed chase through residential and school zones will be sentenced on Dec. 1.

On Sept. 14, an alert and concerned citizen placed a call to 911 regarding a reckless driver.

This call prompted police action that became a high speed chase in a Charlevoix residential area. When first spotted and clocked by radar, Marshall Ira Bell Jr. was traveling at 104 miles per hour.

As police closed in, the offender deliberately struck a police vehicle and continued his attempt to outrun the police. After driving 60 miles per hour through a school zone and striking a patrol car a second time, the suspect found himself in a dead end parking lot where he exited his vehicle and ran into the woods near the Belvedere Golf Club.

A K-9 unit was dispatched to the area and the suspect was apprehended by Charlevoix County deputies and City of Charlevoix police officers.

A preliminary breath test revealed a blood alcohol level of .10.

"I'm grateful that this man was captured," stated Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema. "I shudder to think what kind of damage could have been done had this happened during school hours. The police officers did an excellent job."

Bell pleaded guilty to charges of fleeing and eluding police officers-third degree, two counts of felonious assault on a police officer and one count of malicious destruction of police property.

Sentencing in this matter is scheduled for 9 a.m. on Dec. 1 in the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix.

a holding area for 15 minutes in case you have an allergic reaction to the vaccine before leaving.

Charlevoix resident, John Murdick, 53, attended the clinic to get his flu vaccination.

"I was apprehensive at first, but it went really smooth," he said. "The whole thing took less than 10 minutes."

Director of the office of Emergency Management, Jack Messer, said the emergency operations center was opened during the disaster drill.

"In the event of a major emergency, we have a physical place in the basement of the (Emmet County) Sheriff Department where we can hook up phones and get our manuals out and call select staff to that area," he said. "Whether we're dealing with a tornado, wildfire, pandemic outbreak, that group I work with serves the commander in the field by finding him resources to assist with public information, opening shelters, whatever the need might be."

He added, "That's where your county-wide emergency operations plan comes into place — to put them into play to solve problems whatever the emergency is."

Messer said, if this were a real pandemic outbreak, the emergency operations center would also provide security personnel, transportation and assist with recovering key personnel who may be lost due to the outbreak.

Nearly 350 people were immunized during the clinic.

Childhood memories renewed in the kitchen

organic bakery and garden*

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

The Mack sisters are making lasting memories in a kitchen built for two off Maranatha Lane.

On Oct. 1, Carol and Valerie Mack of Charlevoix decided to recreate their childhood memories by pursuing a career in the kitchen. The sisters, who are also neighbors, opened Ya Ya's Bakery and Garden, an organic bakery and garden, located at 109 Maranatha Lane.

"We are enjoying bringing back our memories. It's about family," Carol said.

Carol and Valerie grew up in the kitchen, learning from a team of seasoned veterans, their grandmothers, Winnie Alder of River Rouge and Rose Mack of Allen Park.

Grandma Alder taught the girls the art of taffy pulling and bread making while grandma Mack was a gourmet cook with tips and tricks for just about any dish.

"They taught us to bake with our nose," Carol said. "Every recipe is really an experiment."

When Valerie was 11 and Carol was 9 their parents worked full-time and were in awe of the dinners the girls would prepare to welcome them home — from casseroles to a roast, there was little the girls didn't tackle with help from their grandmas over the phone.

"That started both of us into this love of cooking," Carol said.

Five years ago, Valerie, 58 moved from Naples, Fla. next-door to Carol, 56, in Charlevoix. Their mother, Millie Mack, who is now 79, was diagnosed with dementia and the two agreed to care for her in their homes.

They soon found themselves in the kitchen, baking to keep their minds off the devastating reality of their mother's illness. Carol is also the full-time cook at the Charlevoix County Jail, a position she has held for six years.

During that time they joined the Grain Train in Petoskey and discovered the health benefits of not only eating certified organic foods but also of consuming a balanced diet.

"The better we can eat, the better our health will be," Carol said. "To go organic is more monetarily, but we're worth it."

They converted Valerie's sun room into a bakery and had a commercial electric convection oven installed. The bakery's name was a simple choice — Ya Ya is the name Carol's son Johnny gave his Aunt Valerie when he was too young to pronounce her full name.

Since opening, they have developed a strong core of regular customers who come back time and time again to request fresh breads, cupcakes, pies, wedding cakes, cheese-cakes, cookies, biscotti and even Fido and feline-friendly snacks delivered fresh.

"We'll bake whatever your heart desires," Carol said. "We use the very best products we can find, organic chocolate from the Dominican Republic, King Arthur Flour (100 percent organic) and we sweeten with organic sugar or honey."

Organic cookies are $17 a dozen, pies are $12 for non-organic and $25

Hunters compete for big bucks

BY JULIE WITTHOEF
EDITOR

The sales team at Fox Charlevoix, formerly Crown Motors, decided if they couldn't see the action of hunting season from a blind in the woods, they would bring it to their front door.

To celebrate the first stint of regular firearm season, which started Nov. 15, the Fox crew, minus a few staffers who took time off to hunt, hosted their first annual Buck Pole Contest. While some may see this as a ploy to bring truck loving hunters into the auto dealership, Fox Charlevoix general manager, Dave Denboer, said this time, those weren't the bucks the Fox team was looking for.

"There wasn't anything being done, so we started this as a community service. I've been looking to do one (a buck pole) for quite a few years, so we tried it," he said.

The successful event drew people in from across northern Michigan. A total of 33 bucks were submitted in the contest.

"Most of the lucky ones are out of the Ellsworth and East Jordan areas," Denboer said. "It seems to be good. Everyone seems to be seeing deer."

They learned on Thursday, Nov. 16, that their pole just wasn't big enough. Then, on Friday, a head count showed 18 bucks had been submitted in the contest.

Mike Edson, 75, of Boyne City took first place honors in the Fox Charlevoix Buck Pole Contest Nov. 18. He is pictured above with the winning deer, a 10-point buck with a 24 inch spread that weighed 165 pounds. He won $1,000 cash and a shoulder mount from Lasting Memories Taxidermy in Ironton.

The five-day frenzy to bag the biggest buck ended at noon on Saturday, Nov. 18 when

Commissioners flip flop on administrator

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

After nearly four years of work by at least one commissioner, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted 4-2 not to hire D. Wayne O'Neal as the new county administrator.

Randolph Frykberg

for their input on the hiring of O'Neal.

"I've heard this before, 'Because others do it, why do we?' Right now it's 72 counties out of the 83 have some form of administrator or coordinator. The reason for that is you have somebody to run the county on a day to day basis and to serve the will of the board," Frykberg said. "While the job of the commissioners is part-time, the job of the administrator is full-time. And, I've said this before, what company, what business — with a budget over $13 million a year, would be run by six part-time people and not have anybody there day to day to carry out operations

"By deferring the decision, you are asking people who have not done the job to make the decision. And I think that's backwards."

Connie Saltonstall

and keep that straight?" Frykberg suggested the newly elected commissioners chat with officials in neighboring counties to better understand the concept of, and need for, a county administrator.

"Many counties feel the administrators save the counties more than the cost of their salary simply by being able to assist in contract negotiations and having the day to day knowledge to carry out functions," he said. "If we need information on programs, the administrator is the one to turn to."

Frykberg quoted from, and then distributed, a promotional packet intended to explain what a county administrator does and why one is needed.

District Four Commissioner-elect, Joel Evans, asked what the urgency was to hire a county administrator.

"I think the new board needs to discuss this. We have a new board coming in and we need to talk about it. That's not to say that once we look at it... that I'm going to say 'no' I'm not going to hire one, but I think we need to do some research and see what happened here that we need an administrator," he said.

New commission to decide administrator's fate

Frykberg responded, "This certainly hasn't been something that's all of the sudden. It's something I've been working on for the last four years and with new people (commissioners-elect) I think it's important to have someone to help run things smoothly and efficiently and be there to help."

When asked, District Five Commissioner-elect, Bob Drebenstedt said, "He's not going to help me. You say he's going to be of all this help to me, but I'll come on board in January and I'll be behind him by one month. I'm a fast starter and I'll catch up with him."

Frykberg responded, "It's not a matter of not knowing the county, it's (having) a person who's been in administrative government for 30-35 years and has that experience for you to draw on when you have questions."

Frykberg said O'Neal had another job opportunity and, as such, needed an answer from the board to make his own decisions.

"The fact that he's got another job goin' on or the possibility, that's his decision, but our decision is we would like a little more time to look at this," Drebenstedt said. "Right now I can be upfront and tell you I am not for any (county administrator) right now."

Newly elected District

One Commissioner, Shirlene Tripp, agreed with Evans and Drebenstedt and said, "Maybe some of these commissioners (-elect) are willing to give a little more time to the situation."

She added, "I think until we sit in that seat, we ought to look at all options. This (hiring a county administrator) is a big expense, especially when your auditor said you are only solvent for four months. I'd rather walk lightly than be sorry and be in debt."

Chris Christensen, newly elected District Two Commissioner said it's not a matter of disrespect to the current board's decision, but agrees with his fellow commissioners-elect.

"I feel there is definitely an economic issue. I think there are some gaps in what's being provided by the county, but I don't know that spending $70,000 to find somebody to fill those gaps is the most equitable solution at this point," he said. "That's not to say we don't need anything. I've said before that I'm willing to work with the board with whatever decision is handed."

Outgoing commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, demanded a decision be made. With no one seconding her motion, she asked the rules be waived and the board voted.

District Six Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, who originally supported the idea of the county administrator, said after reviewing the agreement she had second thoughts.

"The more I looked at it the more difficult it was for me to digest. I wasn't looking at $74,000, I was looking at about $150,000," she said. "By the time you give him his insurance, his retirement, moving (expenses) and everything, it's going to add up — we all know it."

Roloff, Ronald Reinhardt, Vic Patrick and even the plan's architect, Frykberg, voted no.

Frykberg said he could not, "In good faith," bring O'Neal into the county amidst the current situation.

According to Saltonstall, hiring a county administrator could have saved the county three times the salary paid him.

"By deferring the decision, you are asking people who have not done the job to make the decision," she said. "And I think that's backwards."

Boyne City man takes first in Fox Charlevoix Buck Pole Contest place. Judging was done by Steve Soviak, a scoring guru out of Gaylord. Separate prizes were awarded for first on the pole and heaviest buck.

"These bucks were just amazing and most were from right here in Charlevoix County," said Paula Adams, a representative of WKL, an event sponsor, who has participated in Gaylord's buck pole contest at Big Buck Brewery on several occasions.

Mike Edson, 75, of Boyne City took first place honors with 46 points.

"You never know until the count. But I knew I had the widest rack," he said.

His 10-point buck had the widest spread at 24 inches and weighed 165 pounds. He won $1,000 cash and a shoulder mount from Lasting Memories Taxidermy in Ironton.

Edson, who has been hunting since he was 12, said he haggled his buck on Thursday, Nov. 16 with a 308 rifle while sitting on a stump near the Pigeon River in Montmorency County.

This was his second big win in his over six decades hunting, the other was in a Gaylord contest for a deer he shot in the Upper Peninsula.

This big win doesn't mean the end of the season for Edson, who said he's headed back to the woods. "Camp is half the fun of it, or maybe more," he said.

Edson, an experienced hunter, shared the winner's circle with a newcomer on the scene, 14-year-old Ellsworth resident, Kim Hoeksema. She won an award for being the youngest hunter and took twelfth place overall with her 145 pound, nine-point buck with an 18 inch spread.

Second place and heaviest buck honors went to 46-year-old Phillip Oosthuysen of Franklin who tallied 42.5 points for his 172 pound buck with a 17 inch spread. Oosthuysen won a $500 prize and a shiny new compass.

Third place went to Interlochen resident, Kevin McPherson, 37, for his 12-point buck with a 15.5 inch spread. He won $250.

Petoskey resident, Bryan Shaw, 37, took fourth place with 42 points and a $100 prize for his 148 pound, 10-point buck with an 18.5 inch spread.

Charlevoix resident Matt Gilmet, 27, was first on the pole and took home a new deer blind from Jay's Sporting Goods for his 110 pound, five-point buck.

The regular deer hunting firearm season in Michigan will run through Nov. 30. Muzzle-loading season for Charlevoix County is from Dec. 8-17.

Fox Charlevoix is located at 6684 U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix. For more information on the contest, call 1-800-968-7400.

Let capitalism decide the future of porn stores

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

In spite of all the evils in the world needing to be fought, some of us still use our energy to howl about consensual acts. I harken back to Ronald Reagan, who, annoyed by his opponents' repetitive ramblings said, "There you go again." Well, here they go again.

Merriam-Webster's says pornography is, "The depiction of erotic behavior (as in pictures or writing) intended to cause sexual excitement." Some say it'll be the downfall of civilization as we know it — an old standard as far as inane arguments go.

All this brings us to "Xpectations," the new adult bookstore near Petoskey. Since the company won the right to open its doors until a zoning dispute is settled, I've watched as letter after letter to the editor of some local newspapers have been written by folks seething over the store's existence.

Some letter writers have even gone so far as to make veiled threats toward anyone who would patronize the purveyor of pornography.

Another letter writer challenged the community to, "Keep an eye on the business," and said we should, "Watch, watch and watch," the store. She ended her testament to tyranny by dreamily suggesting license plate numbers of patrons might appear in the newspaper.

Harass and intimidate people for legal actions? What's next? Would these oppressors stand outside the local pub and photograph the town drunkards? Why not wait outside McDonalds to point the finger of shame at portly patrons?

Some of us scheme to fight poverty and inequality, while others plan to punish adults for merely exercising liberty.

Eventually, these fearful, angry mopes always use the safety of children and cancer on the community cards — which the letter writers have.

Strong words for a store which sells hachelor and bachelorette party supplies, novelties, magazines and movies — all of which are legal.

I cruised over to see this so-called den of ill repute. It is in the middle of nowhere. The door bears a large, "Must be 18 to enter" sign. A Christmas tune played as I entered the clean, well lit store — not exactly downtown Zeboim.

The clerk said the other stores peacefully coincided with their respective towns for years, even winning landscaping awards. He said anyone looking younger than 18 is asked for a driver's license to prove their age or given the boot.

Is it ironic that these opponents admonish a controlled environment such as Xpectations while some local party stores sell porn in plain sight? Have they also forgotten there are at least two video rental chains in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area with large adult movie sections?

If your youngster runs roughshod on U.S. 131, you've bigger worries. Of course, lazy parents will always expect the village to raise their child.

In the end, it's not a matter of love or hate of porn, it's whether you think it right to impose your subjective moral or religious standards on others.

Unfortunately, archaic fears and misinformation about sex, drugs, skin color and religion will always exist — components of the human condition to be sure, but parts which must constantly be challenged.

I say put your time into preventing drunk driving, spousal abuse, hunger and we'll all be safer and happier.

Besides, left alone, capitalism will decide whether the business profits or dies.

To those who fear misogyny, tumbling property values and devastated communities, there are bad apples in every facet of business. To run Xpectations out of town because some bookstores are sleazy would be like abolishing marriage because some men beat their wives — impinging on personal freedom and personal responsibility is the real unnatural act here.

And to those giddy over the idea of publishing the license plate numbers of those who visit Xpectations, mine is: ZSX 603. Your move.

Society should mind principles of efficiency

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

In the natural world efficiency equals survival. An inefficient organism, plant or animal, will be out-competed for food and space by one that is even slightly more efficient.

The outcome over the millions of years that organisms have been competing is that the natural world consists totally of organisms that are remarkably efficient in their relationships with one another and with their environment. We could call that ecological efficiency and recognize that the organisms are competing almost completely for energy — energy as sunlight, energy as heat, energy as food.

The efficiency of human activities and endeavors is more complicated. We can be economically efficient, energy efficient or ecologically efficient.

Economic efficiency means that we would use the least money or economic resources to accomplish what we wished. Energy efficiency would mean using the least energy to accomplish that goal, which would often not be the same as economic efficiency because various forms of energy have dramatically different values. Ecological efficiency for human society would mean that we participated with all the other organisms in a general goal of increased biological success for all.

This theory is confusing without concrete examples. Consider for a moment the collection of garbage and trash in our community. The process must be economically efficient. Three different companies manage to cover expenses and make some profit. I assume they make a profit because they continue the business. Competition in the economic sense is supposed to almost magically result in the lowest prices for a product of service, but I see little evidence that the price to consumers of that service is reduced by the competition.

In terms of energy efficiency the picture is less rosy. Three sets of large trucks drive up and down our community streets on different days. Surely three trucks use more energy than one would. And a single truck could pick up the bags of trash with a shorter distance between stops. The more miles each of those trucks drives when not fully loaded, the more fuel is wasted and the more heat trapping gases are released into the atmosphere. In economic terms the carbon dioxide and its effect on the earth is called an external. It's not part of the economic efficiency, but surely counts when we try to calculate energy efficiency. If the trucks put something toxic into the air, we would be appropriately concerned that there should be as little of it as possible. Excess carbon dioxide from burning fuels is toxic to the earth.

When we attempt to calculate ecological efficiency we have to count additionally the cost to the earth of the accumulating trash in whatever place it is permanently stored. The only mechanism for increasing the ecological efficiency of the process would be to produce, haul and store in landfills less total material. That translates into extensive recycling, which would likely be economically inefficient, but could be energy efficient in the long-run. Economists commonly decry consideration of the long-term. The usual quote from an economist is "In the long-run we are all dead." Both the earth and our offspring continue to live however, and a livable world for them may require ecological efficiency.

When next we contemplate an action as an individual or as a community it might be well to consider not just the economic efficiency of an action, but its energy efficiency and ecological efficiency as well. Long-term survival may well depend on it.

LETTERS to the editor

THE TRUTH BEHIND THE MASONS

Editor:

Who are masons? Do they construct with mortar, bricks, blocks and stones?

Yes, but not always. There are Masons who are members of Freemasonry, the world's oldest, and most highly respected fraternal organization. The Da Vinci Code and National Treasure have helped to create an interest in the Masonic fraternity by the general public. The book and movie both left the false impression that one of the major roles of the fraternity is to act as a guardian for something of enormous value.

Those who create fictional stories clearly have a right to express views that are needed for their plot line, as long as what they create is labeled fiction. Fiction will oftentimes leave a mistaken impression of Freemasonry with the reader or viewer. The following may be of interest and surprising to the uninformed.

Freemasonry is a highly respected, centuries-old fraternity dating from the time of the stoneworker's guilds of medieval Europe, making it an attractive topic for legitimate research and wild speculation. Recently, the Masonic fraternity has been woven into the plot line of a number of fictional movies and books that put Freemasonry back into the realm of popular culture. The privacy associated with the fraternity has been exploited as secretive, and popular culture has been given inventions of fantasy such as the following myths about Masonic identity: Freemasonry as a guardian of the Holy Grail; keepers of an enormous fortune; a sinister force, who together with the Jews, are involved in a plot to take over the world; a threat to religious freedom; or a group of men who somehow must have something to hide. Although entertaining concepts, these false interpretations fail to present the authentic purposes of the Masonic order. Purposes that are found in its system of values based upon the following cornerstones: The dignity of man and the liberty of the individual; the right of all persons to worship as they choose; the formation of democratic governments; and the importance of public education.

Freemasonry today is very much a product of the age of enlightenment that, over the centuries, developed into a fraternity emphasizing personal study, self-improvement and social betterment. Worldwide, there are 3.5 million members of the fraternity of Freemasonry who help men and women face the challenges and opportunities of the 21st century by building bridges of brotherhood, performing good works in our communities and upholding the ideals for a better tomorrow.

PROBLEM SOLVERS NEED YOUR SUPPORT

Editor:

I would like to follow up to a letter written by one of my students earlier this year about the Future Problem Solving program at Charlevoix Middle School.

Future Problem Solving is a gifted and talented program that allows students to use their creative thinking skills, academic skills, as well as working together in groups of four to complete challenging problems that may occur in the future. The students are required to follow a rigorous six-step process to complete each problem. These problems are then mailed in and are scored against other teams around the state. The students solve three practice problems and learn from the scorer's feedback. They then participate in the qualifying problem and if they qualify, they go to the state competition that takes place at Michigan State University.

Last year, we had one team make it to the state competition. This team placed eighth out of the 20 teams that made it to state.

Again I would like to reiterate what my student wrote about earlier. We are in desperate need of funds to support this great program. Of course monetary donations to the Future Problem Solving program at Charlevoix Middle School are always welcome. There are also ways the community could help out this extracurricular activity. We would appreciate donations of the following items that are all fundraisers for our program: Spartan UPC labels, Olsen's receipts, Box Tops for Education and ink cartridges. All of these items have the potential to raise large amounts of money for our program. If you are able to donate any of these items, it would be greatly appreciated.

Many years ago, after visiting and analyzing Michigan's coastal towns and villages we found Charlevoix to have the best accessibility to public waterfront lands. This finding led us to vacation here with our best friend who is confined to a wheelchair and to eventually make Charlevoix our homestead.

We believe Charlevoix is beautiful because it has a significant amount of well managed public landscapes easily accessed by everyone. This major factor contributes to the city's charm and uniqueness.

Thanks to "City Hall" for restoring and enriching one of our many pleasurable experiences while living in the city.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Kathryn and Nathan Boss

High winds on Thanksgiving Day in 1956 took down power lines and damaged the Atwood Reformed Church, but the next day the wedding of Kathryn Shooks of Central Lake and Nathan Boss of Charlevoix went ahead as planned.

The storm proved not to be a bad omen. The couple will celebrate their 50th anniversary on Nov. 25 at 303 West Garfield St. in Charlevoix, their home for all their years of marriage. The three children they raised there — Gayle, now of Grand Rapids; Denise, of Coopersville; and Craig, a Charlevoix resident, along with their spouses and children will be present for the event.

Local retailers collect Toys for Tots now through Dec. 20

The Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League, in cooperation with the Salvation Army and community Christmas organizations, will begin their annual Toys for Tots solicitation the week of Nov. 25.

The solicitation will last until Dec. 20.

Special boxes will be placed in nearly 90 locations throughout Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties.

Patrons are requested to place new, unwrapped toys in these boxes. Members of the Marine Corps League will take the toys to special storage where they will be warehoused until just before Christmas when they will be distributed.

Toys and gifts are needed for all ages of needy children from infants to teens.

Toys donated in this area will be distributed in this area. In recent years, 12,000 to 14,000 toys and gifts have been donated annually.

The Toys for Tots program is a 501(c)(3) organization.

Charlevoix drop off sites are located at Kmart, Rite Aid, Oleson's Food Store, Glen's Market, ACE Hardware, Pat McKeown Ford, Harbor Industries, Clothing Company, Charlevoix Elementary

A living memorial

Charlevoix Area Hospital staff gathered recently to remember their friend and coworker, Roger Sievertson, who died in September. An autumn blaze maple tree was planted on the lakeside campus in Sievertson's memory while lab technician and Episcopalian minister, Peggy Natterman, conducted a short service and poetry reading. Following the service, each person was invited to water the new tree, in a spirit of care and unity. Sievertson, vice-president of support services at Charlevoix Area Hospital who guided much of the hospital's recent expansion, was remembered for his steady leadership and wonderful sense of humor. The memorial tree was donated by the hospital employees' Hero Club.

China 1 owners dodge immediate deportation

BY JULIE WITTHOEF
EDITOR

Two Charlevoix restaurant owners convicted of multiple felony tax fraud charges have been released from custody on bond.

According to Shaynee Fanara, Charlevoix County chief assistant prosecutor, a legal process she helped fast track ended with an unexpected outcome. What she believed to be final deportation orders for the owners of Charlevoix China 1 have not been carried out.

"I'm standing there saying to the judge they are in custody of immigration, confident they would be deported. It makes us all look bad," Fanara said. "I would think after 9/11 our borders would be better protected. I'm disappointed to see how immigration is dealing with this."

On Aug. 22, the owners of China 1 in Charlevoix's Glen's Plaza were pushed through legal proceedings prior to what a Charlevoix judge and attorneys believed to be their imminent deportation. But Fanara said Yong Shen Dong, 38, has since returned to Charlevoix.

"I'm not clear on why he's out," Fanara said.

While Fanara has been unable to get a straight answer on Dong's release, the Courier learned that his wife and co-owner of the restaurant, Yuzhen Chen, 35, is free on bond as well.

Greg Palmore, a spokesperson out of the Immigration and Customs Enforcement Office in Detroit, said Dong is scheduled for an April 2007 hearing before an immigration judge.

"He hasn't received the final order from an immigration judge saying he's deported," Palmore said.

Palmore does not believe Dong has a valid green card and is ineligible to work in the United States. He had no clear answer on how Dong is supposed to support himself while awaiting the April 2007 hearing.

Chen is free pending a hearing on a stay proceeding before the U.S. 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, N.Y. Palmore explained she was in the process of being removed and was granted a stay hearing before the court of appeals.

Yong Shen

If the stay is denied by the court of appeals, she will be taken back into custody. But if it's granted, she may be entitled to a benefit which Palmore said could mean her status will be adjusted and she could legally live in the United States.

Walking free just months after the two faced serious felony charges isn't exactly what Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas and Fanara had in mind this summer when they rushed their legal proceedings.

Fanara said she was told both had final deportation orders hanging over their heads from 1998 and that's why she didn't push for jail time for either of them.

"They truly did get off easy. They're not on probation like any other citizen would be. They were treated under special circumstances because we were led to believe they would be deported," she added.

The plea deal offered by the prosecutor's office reduced a list of eight charges to three felonies for each including attempted racketeering and two counts of tax fraud. The three charges, each carry a possible five-year prison sentence.

The sentencing guidelines for the felonies would mean serious prison time for most. But Chen and Dong were expected to only do as much time in jail as it took to complete the deportation process. Fanara believed they would be held at the U.S.

With Dong and Chen skirting prison time, Fanara said justice has not been served in this case.

"This will change how I will approach a case like this in the future (pushing for traditional probation and jail time). I'm not guaranteed any type of follow through by immigration. We'll take the matter into our own hands," she said.

The penalty they did participate in included the forfeiture of cash and possessions including $100,000 and a Toyota Rav4 seized by representatives of local and state police agencies of China 1 restaurants in Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Gaylord and Traverse City.

Other people involved in the China 1 operation, many of who are the couple's family members, were also recently charged.

Gaylord China 1 president, Zhen X. Chen and vice-president, Fa Yang were charged on Nov. 14 with one count of attempted racketeering and one count of felony tax fraud. Both are five year felonies. Charges were dropped against Chen's wife, Ai Hua, their son, Xian Chen and his wife, Min Ru Dong. Fanara said Yang has the largest tie to all the restaurants.

Cheboygan China 1 owner Cui Min Chen, Zhen Chen's daughter and former owner of Charlevoix China 1, pleaded guilty to attempted racketeering and felony tax fraud as well on Nov. 14. Charges were dropped against Chuan Ke Wang.

Traverse City China 1 owner Wen Bing Wang pleaded guilty on Nov. 9 to two felony tax fraud counts. Charges against Hui Yun Wang were dropped.

Fanara said each of the guilty parties are expected to be sentenced in January 2007 in Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

They are all currently free on $10,000 personal recognizance bonds.

Conflict of interest policy enforced

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Newly elected first ward Charlevoix City Councilman, Lyle Gennett, flexed his muscles just minutes after being sworn in on Monday night, Nov. 20.

Gennett was the tie breaking vote in a decision to turn down a payment request submitted by city engineer, Don Swem, for survey work. Third ward council member, Shirley Gibson, and second ward councilman, Gene Beer, also voted against it.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain had to sit this one out because of a conflict of interest.

"I feel bad but this should have been handled properly from the beginning," Gennett said of his decision.

The $740 payment request at the root of Monday night's controversy was brought before council for survey work done by Ferguson and Chamberlain in August. Councilman Chamberlain is one of the business owners.

Because the surveyors have ties to council, hiring the firm to do work for the city over $500 is a violation of the conflict of interest policy city council adopted in July.

The policy states that city manager Mike Wiesner may pay city officials, city employees or family members of the two groups up to $500 for goods or services and up to $1,500 for emergency expenditures for goods and services without prior approval from Charlevoix City Council.

In the situation brought to council this week, Swem said he was approached in August by a national tree trimming and clearing company that offered services free of charge to get their foot in the door.

Swem said there was work at Pine Point that needed to be done so he contacted Ferguson and Chamberlain field coordinator, Jim LaBeau to come out and mark the city's right of way.

"I've worked with Ferguson and Chamberlain for 25 years. It never entered my mind not to go straight to them," Swem said.

The survey workers found there was no city right of way there. So, Swem said the trees weren't cut and now there is this bill fiasco hanging over his head.

To right this situation gone wrong, against authorizing payment of the bill, the issue isn't dead. Chamberlain said he plans to approach each council member individually to clarify the situation.

Beer asked that he waive the fee entirely. Chamberlain did not confirm that the bill will be dropped but did say that a clear message will be sent to all Ferguson and Chamberlain employees.

"I talk to my employees about conflict of interest. Maybe this time they will listen to what I tell them," he said.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. agrees that the bill should be paid by the city and lashed out at Gibson for her opposition claiming she has a personal beef with Chamberlain.

"We are not going to pay someone for good work for the city because of a personal vendetta?" Carlson said.

After the meeting, Gibson reprimanded Carlson for the public jab.

"I don't have a personal vendetta against anyone up here. I do have a problem with the conflict of interest policy being violated. Sherm and I are allowed to disagree," she said.

Carlson apologized.

While council has voted against authorizing payment of the bill, the issue isn't dead. Chamberlain said he plans to approach each council member individually to clarify the situation.

Local retired Coastie sings at NFL game

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

While many people's voices are never heard outside the shower, David Smith of Charlevoix recently had the opportunity to sing in front of the 55,000 people before the Indianapolis Colts took on the Buffalo Bills, Sunday, Nov. 12.

But Smith, who retired from the United States Coast Guard in 1981, isn't new to performing for large crowds.

"I started singing in the church choir when I was 15 and actually started taking singing lessons when I was 16," he said. "I love to do it. It's a wonderful way to touch people and to share emotions and feelings and pride in country and so forth."

While Smith considers himself to be a semi-professional singer, he has recorded sing along records with a Coast Guard Chorus for MGM Records and has sung for the Coast Guard in every state in which he's been stationed. Some of the recorded tunes include "Shine On Harvest Moon," "Me and My Gal" and sea shanties such as "Shenandoah."

Like so many things in life, Smith's opportunity to sing at the NFL came from a chance encounter.

"Every year for a number of years we've had a Fourth of July party. One year, Ron and Judy Willey, who live here in Charlevoix, invited some of their family who were visiting at the time," Smith said. "And, one of the kids that came to the party was their son-in-law, Pete Ward, the executive vice-president of the Colts — he's the number three man in the organization."

David Smith of Charlevoix, who retired from the United States Coast Guard in 1981, had the opportunity to sing before the Indianapolis Colts took on the Buffalo Bills, Sunday, Nov. 12.

Sunday, Nov. 12, the day after Veterans' Day, with musical salutes and Ward thought inviting the former Coast Guard officer to sing at the game would be perfect.

"I sang a five-service medley and the Colts made a presentation of a Colt jersey to the family of a young man who had been killed in Iraq who was a Colts fan," Smith said. "At the time he was shot, he was wearing a Colts T-shirt, so they gave his parents a jersey with the son's name on it."

He added, "Then, after a moment of silence, I sang 'God Bless America.' I was told there weren't too many dry eyes in the house."

Smith jokingly quipped, "I don't know if that was from the emotion of the moment or the quality of my singing."

Because his performance was not televised, Smith plans to share a CD of the event with anyone interested.

So what's it like to perform in front of so many screaming football fans?

"It's a funny thing. I don't tend to get nervous until somebody asks me if I'm nervous," he said. "But, the biggest problem I really have is the emotion that the words produce and trying not to get choked up."

He added, "I love to sing the fourth verse of the National Anthem. Sometimes I really have trouble with that."

As far as his favorite types of songs to sing, Smith enjoys the serenade from "The Student Prince."

"In the summer I sing with the (Charlevoix) City Band," he said. "Whenever they've got something I know the words to. I sing, Gary Stutzman, who is the director, gets me to sing the words to some of the melodies from musical comedies, stage shows and things like that."

While living in Ann Arbor for a number of years, Smith sang during the opening moments of sporting events, but never for the number of people attending the Colts game.

"The Colts won. It was a wonderful game," Smith said. "It was quite moving and I know my family and I were deeply touched by the experience. We are most appreciative to our friends...and the Colts organization."

He added, "We hope we'll get asked to do it again."

Smith graduated from the Coast Guard Academy in 1960 and spent the next 25 years serving in various capacities, always finding time to fit in his gift of song along the way.

Don't blame the squirrels

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Most abnormal power outages can be blamed on bushy tailed rodents, but the culprit behind two outages that disrupted the power supply to city residents in less than one week, remains a mystery.

The most recent of the two incidents took place just before noon on Nov. 15 and left about 60 percent of the city's 4,500 customers in the dark for 26 minutes. The customers to which service was cut were in downtown Charlevoix.

Harsha House displays lighthouse replica

The Charlevoix Historical Society is currently displaying at its Harsha House Museum the model lighthouse constructed by former Charlevoix city electrical department superintendent, Ed Whitley.

The white, steel replica, built on a scale of two inches for every foot, stands six feet tall. A red light shines in the lantern that crowns the structure.

Whitley built the model beginning in late 2000 to stand in his backyard overlooking Lake Charlevoix on M-66. He was inspired to do so after almost obtaining the current lighthouse when it was scheduled not to be reinstalled after the pier renovation of the late 1980s. A short, thin structure similar to the one on the north pier was intended to take its place. Whitley was offered the lighthouse by the contractor and was ready to haul it away to his property when he realized what it meant to the town, contacted the mayor, phone calls were made and wheels started to roll. He claims Charlevoix came within four hours of losing one of our signature landmarks.

The model is the centerpiece of a photo and the document exhibit that traces the history of all the Charlevoix lights, supplemented by original lighthouse artwork done by Charlevoix middle schoolers originally displayed in the 2006 Venetian Festival Heritage tent in East the entire north side, all along M-66 and in the Belvedere Club.

"It wasn't supposed to be that big. We haven't figured out why. Normally it's a squirrel but we haven't found a squirrel. Something happened in the Belvedere Club that took out the main transformer," said City of Charlevoix engineer, Don Swem.

According to Swem, three out of four outages like this can usually be blamed on an unlucky squirrel who stands on top of a transformer, brushes its tails against the other phase, completing the circuit and sending a current of electricity through them which blows a fuse.

"They use those lines for freeways and if they hit the wrong place that's all it takes," Swem said.

Squirrel or animal guards have been installed on the system, but Swem said they're not foolproof. "It depends on how enterprising that squirrel is and where it's at on the line," he explained.

But in this case, with no fire in sight, the city has decided to bring in an instrumentation expert to see if the problem reaches beyond rodent misadventures.

"Instruments are supposed to trip the system off if there's a fault, like a squirrel," Swem explained.

He said instruments in place provide three levels of protection. The first is a fuse, if it blows it takes out a local area. Then, there's the recloser, an automatic protection device that senses and interrupts distribution, reducing the impact of the power outage to the fewest possible. If it fails, the relay takes out the transformer which brings down the entire system.

"It shouldn't have happened and we haven't come up with a good explanation as to why," Swem said. "Two things had to happen at once in a fraction of a second. That's the kind of coincidence if I believed in I would play the Lotto. I don't believe in coincidence. I believe something is wrong with the relay."

The Nov. 8 outage was caused when an insulator, which supports high voltage power lines, went bad near Petoskey on the Consumers Energy system.

Saltonstall questions COA war chest

Fund balance may allow termination of county-wide senior millage

Connie
Saltonstall

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Joan Blanchard, chairperson for the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, said he Charlevoix Senior Millage could be nixed if the commission is able to maintain the $2.3 million fund balance it now possesses.

"We will probably cut it (millage) next year if we have that much money available," Blanchard said.

Originally passed in 2000, the four-tenths of a mill is levied to implement new programs and improve old ones, provide for staffing and service costs.

During the Monday, Nov. 20 Commission On Aging meeting, District One Charlevoix County Commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, questioned board members about the sizable rainy day fund.

"The average fund balance for the county is 26 percent. You have over 341 percent in reserve," she said.

Saltonstall wondered why the commission hasn't fixed the air conditioning at the East Jordan Senior Center and why two individuals on Beaver Island weren't getting their meals when there is such a large amount of cash on hand.

Board members told Saltonstall the individuals were uncooperative, but every attempt had been made to feed them. The air conditioning issue was not addressed.

The board then asked Saltonstall how she thought the money should be spent.

"I'm not here to tell you how to do your job," she said. "But I would like to be appointed to the board."

She added, "I'm here for all Charlevoix seniors." Blanchard responded, "You're saying we're not doing a good job? So you don't know what's going on, but you're criticizing us?"

Saltonstall said, every time she asked questions about the commission's budget, she was told she didn't understand it.

Joan Blanchard admitted to me and Earl (Muma, director of the Charlevoix Senior Center Inc.) that they are deliberately holding back money," she said, during an interview in the days leading up to the meeting. "My concern is that this (Senior) Millage money has been approved by the voters to pay for services for seniors and this board is not using that money. They're only using about half of it. Meanwhile, there is over a million and a half dollars sitting in an investment account."

She added, "I think we have to look at how the Commission On Aging is making decisions and I think they need to do a better job of serving seniors with the tax dollars that they pay."

Commission board member, Nels Northup, said, "It's nice to be criticized for not blowing the taxpayers money."

During the Thursday, Nov. 16 Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting, Saltonstall expressed her concerns to the board and asked to be appointed to the Commission On Aging board. Chairman of the county board, Vic Patrick, nominated her, but the proceedings were cut short when District Six County Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, said Saltonstall should first bring her concerns to the Commission on Aging meeting of Nov. 20.

During the Nov. 16 county board meeting, Margo Johnson of the Commission on Aging said there were no positions open on the board. However, Saltonstall said, the board currently has eight members and up to 11 are allowed.

During the county board meeting, Roloff said Saltonstall should have brought her concerns directly to the Commission on Aging.

"Well frankly," Saltonstall said, "What I was told is I simply I don't understand it."

Roloff quipped, "Sometimes I don't think you do. If we have a problem...you should go directly to them. We don't hang people with them not being here."

Saltonstall said the county board is ultimately responsible for the Commission on Aging's budget.

"I don't think there has been enough scrutiny given to the budget," she said.

Roloff said she had a problem with Saltonstall's decision to bring the issue up at an open meeting.

Saltonstall said, "Your board member didn't mind putting it in the newspaper saying to the people of Charlevoix County that I didn't know what I was doing."

Several times Saltonstall said she would like to be a member of the board and several times she was told she was welcome to sit in on meetings as a guest.

Saltonstall could know as early as the 3 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 13 County Board of Commissioners meeting whether she will be appointed to the Commission On Aging board.

Happy Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is our favorite day. It's not about turkey - although we love turkey! It's not about mashed potatoes. It is not about candied yams or pumpkin pie. It is about people. It's a time for all of us to get together with family, friends, and those people who need a little extra help.

On this special holiday, we all have a chance to stand back and take a look at ourselves and to think about how fortunate we are to live in this wonderful country called America. The freedom and the opportunities we have are like nothing else anywhere on this earth.

We all have our difficulties but we all have a lot for which we are thankful. That is why we have Thanksgiving. The goodness, humanity, and good will in all of us is always greater than the problems.

There is a large group of Americans whom we have to honor and thank on this Thanksgiving Day. They are all of the men and women in our armed forces who are in harm's way every day. They toil so that we can enjoy a happy and safe Thanksgiving at our hearths surrounded by loved ones.

Last week at Arlington National Cemetery, the town of Charlevoix, Michigan, lost a great son, Major Don Schuiling, who gave his life in Afghanistan. He left behind a wife and four children. We were honored to help with the local memorial service and the funeral party in Charlevoix ahead of the Arlington services. On this Thanksgiving Day prayer, please remember him and all the brave men and women who are serving during this holiday season. Please pray that they come home safely and that peace becomes a priority.

Please remember that the rainy days are not last forever and I guarantee that the sun will always come up.

Happy Thanksgiving to you and your family.

With affection,

Bill & Karen Schuiling
Charlevoix, Michigan

Tips to ward off and prepare for identity theft

Identity theft is on the rise, and Sheriff Lasater would like to provide the citizens of Charlevoix County with some tips to avoid becoming an identity theft victim.

• The next time you order checks, have only your first and middle initial and last name printed on them. If someone takes your checkbook, they will not know if you sign your checks with just your initials or spell out your first name, but your bank will know how you sign your checks.

• Do not sign the back of your credit cards. Instead, write "Photo ID required" where your signature would normally go.

• When you are writing checks to pay your credit card accounts, do not put the complete account number on the memo line. Instead, write in the last four numbers only. The credit card company knows the rest of the number, and anyone who might be handling your check as it passes through all the check processing channels won't have access to it.

• Put your work phone number on your checks instead of your home phone.

• If you have a P.O. Box, use that instead of your home address. If you don't have a P.O.

Box, use your work address.

• Never have your Social Security number printed on your checks. You can always add it if necessary, but if you have it printed on the check, anyone can get it.

• Photo copy everything you carry in your wallet, front and back.

Four arrested in connection with October storage unit break-ins

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested four individuals for their involvement in a multi-county crime spree.

The suspects, two from Antrim County and two from Grand Traverse County, are among those responsible for known incidents in Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Grand Traverse counties during September and October.

The suspects were each charged on a 23-count felony warrant by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office alleging 21 counts of breaking and entering and two counts of larceny from motor vehicles from incidents in Marion Township in mid-October where storage units were broken into and numerous electronic items stolen from boats and motor vehicles.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was assisted in the investigation by the Antrim County Sheriff's Office, Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Office, Elk Rapids Police Department, Harbor Springs Police Department and the Michigan State Police Kalkaska Post.

Three adult suspects have been arrested and appeared in front of the Charlevoix County 90th District Court Magistrate who has set bond. The adults are James R. Bruening, 18 and Nicholas S. Briggs, 17, of Williamsburg and Jesus S. Miguel, 18, of Kewadin. A 16-year-old Rapid City male has been charged in Probate Court for the same counts.

The investigation continues with additional arrests pending.

Brian Gabrick

Petoskey News-Review press technician Brian Gabrick, 43, moved into the company's growing online division on Nov. 1 as a Web loader and designer in Petoskey.

Gabrick, who joined the News-Review in September 2005, will continue to be based out of Petoskey where he will assist in the loading of ads and content for Schurz Communications Inc. Web sites www.petoskeynews.com and www.gaylordheraldtimes.com.

Gabrick also will help create the network that will connect Petoskey, Gaylord and Charlevoix which, in turn, will support the creation of a new regionally focused Web site as well as a news Web site for the Charlevoix Courier in 2007.

The regional online staff will work independently of the newspapers' staffs but will have close ties with the production of the newspaper Web sites.

"Brian has a 'bootstraps' understanding of technology," said online media manager Peter Comings. "He has pored himself into learning technology and will be a great addition to the team."

"I'm looking forward to the technical challenges, the nitty-gritty of making this thing work," said Gabrick, who moved north from Grand Rapids 15 years ago. "What interested me in it (the job) was the challenge of learning new things. I see digital media as the wave of the future."

The regional site, which is due to come online in January, will place increased emphasis on community participation and content development and will offer such technological amenities as podcasting, blogs and video-related products. Parallel products will be pursued for the newspaper Web sites.

Interest in home networks and Web sites, Gabrick also enjoys playing guitar, hiking and fishing. Gabrick has a son and daughter who continue to live in Grand Rapids.

To reach him at the Petoskey News-Review, call (231) 439-9352 or e-mail bhgabrick@petoskeynews.com.

Caught being good

The students at St. Mary School recently celebrated the end of the marking period in two ways. They had a special showing of the movie Santa Clause 3 at Cinema III in Charlevoix and were treated to a "Caught Being Good" assembly. Throughout the marking period, if a student is caught doing something good without an adult asking them to do it, their name is written down on a coupon and put in a box to be part of a drawing for prizes. Pictured above are the prize recipients for the first marking period. They are (front, from left to right) Addison Bemis, Jane Kelly, Nathan Pearl, (center, from left) Miranda Stieglitz, Olivia Jeakle, Kamryn Vryser, Mackenzy O'Leary, Hayden Dvoracek, Danny Nesburg, (back, from left) Erin Stebe, Kelsey Pischner, Ryan Joy, Kourtney Putman, Quincy Greene, Parker LaVanway, Isaiah Sladick and Austin Putman.

Turkey Day details: Stuff it, serve it and wrap it

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Whether you're using the microwave, grilling, deep-frying, pressure cooking or roasting your bird, lovers of juicy turkey will be happy to know the USDA recently lowered the internal cooking temperature of turkey from 180 degrees Fahrenheit to 165 of the same.

Don't worry about pink meat. As long as the internal temperature of the breast is 165 degrees, it is safe to eat.

Fully cooked, yet pink, meat can be attributed to the age of the bird, levels of hemoglobin, nitrates and other chemical reactions.

THE BIRD IS THE WORD: The USDA recommends planning on one pound of turkey per diner.

Do not buy fresh turkeys more than two days before cooking.

Do not buy fresh turkeys which are stuffed.

Frozen turkeys should be thawed using the following methods.

Thaw frozen turkeys by running cold water over them, setting them on a tray in the refrigerator or using the defrost option on your microwave.

Refrigerator method: Allow 24 hours per five pounds.

Cold, running water or submerged in cold water method: Allow 30 minutes per pound. (Be sure to change standing water every half hour for submerged method.)

Thawed turkey can be frozen again if necessary and will last approximately two days in the refrigerator.

The USDA advises stuffing a turkey just before cooking.

Even turkeys with built in thermometers should be checked with a quality, commercial grade food thermometer.

Allowing the turkey to rest for 15-20 minutes after removal from the oven will ensure the juiciest bird possible.

To avoid cross contamination, always wash hands and tools thoroughly and disinfect preparation areas before preparing other items.

For more cooking and safety hints, call (888) 674-6854. THE BEST WAY TO STORE LEFTOVERS, ACCORDING TO THE USDA:

Discard any turkey, stuffing, and gravy left out at room temperature longer than 2 hours; 1 hour in temperatures above 90 °F.

overs into smaller portions. Refrigerate or freeze in covered shallow containers for quicker cooling.

Use refrigerated turkey and stuffing within 3 to 4 days. Use gravy within 1 to 2 days.

If freezing leftovers, use within 2 to 6 months for best quality.

TO GRANDMOTHER'S HOUSE WE GO:

According to a AAA press release of Nov. 14, nearly 1.5 million Michiganders will do some traveling over the Thanksgiving holiday.

"The vast majority of travelers in Michigan and surrounding Great Lakes states (91 percent) will stay with relatives

— a significantly higher percentage than the hling from last year, the airports are sure to be bustling.

"To help cope with heavier-than-normal traffic volumes and heightened airport security, AAA recommends that travelers allow plenty of extra time to ticket/hoarding pass from the Internet before you ever leave home and be aware of the amount of carry-on luggage with which you may fly.

"Wrap gifts after you arrive at your destination. Security personnel may request that gifts be unwrapped at screening checkpoints," the release stated. "Stay calm in lines and during inspections. Don't make jokes or take actions that may be construed as threatening."

AAA warns motorists to be aware of deer on the run from hunters. There were nearly 60,000 auto accidents involving deer last year.

"(In 2005), nine motorists were killed and 1,700 were injured as a result of vehicle-deer crashes. During the 2005 Thanksgiving holiday period, 19 persons died in 17 fatal crashes on Michigan roads, compared with 10 deaths in 2004. Restraints were used by 84 percent of the victims who had them available. Five, or 26 percent of the fatal crashes, were alcohol-related," the release stated.

Head lice cases have been reported

Several cases of head lice have recently been reported to the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

"Head lice are a common problem during the school year, especially in the winter months," said Joshua Meyerson, M.D., Medical Director of the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "They occur at all social levels and are not related to cleanliness."

Children can get head lice from close contact with an infested person or by sharing hats, clothing, combs and hairbrushes. The most common symptom is intense itching of the scalp. Head lice do not transmit diseases to humans, but scratching can result in infection.

The favorite site for lice and nits (lice eggs) are the nape of the neck and behind the ears.

If you suspect your child has lice, examine this area using a magnifying glass and flashlight. Actual head lice are hard to see because they are tiny and few in numbers. Nits are found on the hair close to the scalp. Nits are gray white or silvery in color, oval in shape, and the size of a poppy seed.

"If one person is infested, all family members should be checked and all infested members treated at the same time," said Meyerson.

There are prescription and over-the-counter medications for treatment of head lice. Because all lice and nits may not be killed with the initial treatment, a second treatment is usually recommended 7-10 days later to kill newly hatched lice. Never use home remedies such as alcohol or kerosene. They don't work and may be dangerous. Removal of nits after treatment is not necessary, but if attempted for aesthetic reasons, can be facilitated with a special fine tooth nit comb.

At the time of treatment, all bedding and clothing used within the last 72 hours should be dry cleaned or laundered in hot soapy water and machine dried. The hot setting on the dryer should be used. Nonwashable items can be sealed in a plastic bag for 14 days or left in below freezing temperatures for 12 to 24 hours. Insecticide sprays, aerosols and fumigation of the home are not recommended. Only vacuum those areas touched by a child's head such as a car seat or favorite chair.

"Remember to clean your child's favorite fuzzy toy as well as headgear, brushes and combs," said Meyerson.

Although lice may survive for two to three days off a person under ideal conditions, they usually die within one day.

For additional information about lice, contact your child's doctor, the local health department office or visit the health department's Web site www.nwhealth.org.

Rayder girls' basketball threepeat

Charlevoix conquers East Jordan for district title

SPORTS WRITER

The Charlevoix Rayders won their third straight girls basketball district championship in Boyne City last week, defeating the Ramblers, 61-55 in the semis and East Jordan, 65-50 in the district finals.

The win over Boyne was the rubber match between the conference co-champions who split in their regular season meetings. The Ramblers lost only three games this season, two at the hands of the Rayders.

Charlevoix shook off an uncharacteristic slow start as the Rayders trailed 21-15 at the half.

Boyne humped the lead to eight at 25-17 before a stretch where Lori Zimmerman sank two three-pointers and Robyn Petzak sank one, the Rayders' first three of the night, to give Charlevoix a 26-25 advantage.

until midway through the fourth quarter when the Ramblers appeared to take control with an 11-4 run that found Charlevoix trailing 45-38 with just 4:30 to play.

When Ashlie Bradley scored on a put back but then fouled out seconds later, it appeared that Charlevoix's season might be over. However, Boyne made only one of the two foul shots to take a 50-45 lead.

Becca Madison responded with a bucket and following a Rayder steal, Petzak sank a three-pointer to deadlock the game at 50-50. The Ramblers fought back to retake the lead but a Tammy Potter "and one" put Charlevoix ahead to stay at 53-52.

"It took awhile, but we finally got that run, for about 45 seconds, and got the lead," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said.

Back to back steals by the Rayders with resulting Zimmerman and Potter lay-ups put the game away. Zimmerman and Madison sealed the deal with four straight free throws.

The free throws were especially nice to see, following Charlevoix's three for 10 production from the line in the first half.

"We finally made some free throws, and made them when they mattered," Haske said. "Tammy was big for us, and she still doesn't know just how good she can be."

Zimmerman finished with 17 points, six rebounds, three assists and four steals. Petzak scored 14. Potter contributed 12 points, six rebounds and four steals. Madison tallied eight points.

Sasha Spencley played tenacious defense and had five steals, four rebounds and four assists.

In the somewhat anticlimactic district final, the Rayders ended the Red Devils' season with a 15-point win.

Zimmerman again led Charlevoix in scoring with 17 points, also dishing out three assists. Petzak had 12 points and five steals.

Bradley finished with 10 points, eight rebounds, three steals and two assists. Madison nearly pulled off a double-double with nine points, nine rebounds and four steals.

Charlevoix (18-4) advanced to regional play at Kingsley. The Rayders opened against McBain on Monday, Nov. 20. The winner advanced to the regional finals at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 22 against the winner of Kingsley-Whitemore-Preseott. Game summaries will appear in next week's Courier.

Funding cuts to schools loom on horizon

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Just as Charlevoix Public Schools officials were about to breathe a sigh of relief concerning their fund balance, the specter of proration appeared on the horizon.

"We recently learned that state revenues are coming in at lower than anticipated levels — there have been some rumblings of it (possibility of proration) over the last several weeks," said Charlevoix Public Schools business manager, Shawn Biddle. "As the state's fiscal year ended, there were rumblings that the numbers were not what they expected."

According to the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, nearly $200 million less in revenue found its way to the state's budget. Elimination and reduction of certain taxes as well as extreme reductions in commerce have continued to sack the state fiscally.

"Total employment declined by 325,000 (6.9 percent). Manufacturing employment dropped 236,000 (26.0 percent)," the report stated. "Non-manufacturing employment fell 89,000 (2.4 percent). Auto and light truck sales by the Big Three dropped 15.8 percent (1.8 million units). Auto and light truck production in Michigan declined 20.5 percent (657,000 units)."

Schuilings pledge $60,000 to chamber relocation, renovation

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce won't be left in the cold this winter thanks in part to Bill Schuiling's latest community donation.

According to Peter Pollack, principal designer for Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor, the architectural group steering the upcoming East Park renovation project, the chamber building at 408 Bridge St. will be demolished soon after Jan. 1, 2007.

With its demolition date less than two months away and their fundraising effort for the renovation and move to the former Mason Street post office at $32,000, short of its $100,000 mark, the chamber was facing an uncertain future.

Then, Charlevoix's own philanthropic dynamic duo, Karen and Bill Schuiling opened their hearts and their wallets once again.

"I thought I would jump in there and give a hand," Bill said.

On Nov. 10 from his farm in Culpeper, Va., Bill announced his plan to donate $60,000 to the chamber relocation and renovation effort from the William and Karen Schuiling Trust. He plans to present the chamber with the check in early December.

Schuiling stressed that the donation is a "no strings attached" commitment to an organization he feels is integral to Charlevoix's success.

"It's been shown that local Chamber of Commerce groups who are involved with the business community always help the community up and above what it costs to have them — they substantially help small businesses and we need that," Schueling said. "I'm pleased with what they are doing. I'm happy they've found a place to go and I'm happy to help them."

Schueling purchased a home in Charlevoix 15 years ago and spends about nine months out of the year here. During his time here he said he's given over $10 million to community residents, students and organizations.

In this case, Bill's generosity is Rags to riches

Who: Bill Schueling

What: Donated $60,000 to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce relocation renovation project.

Community background: Schueling purchased a home in Charlevoix 15 years ago and since then has given over $10 million to community residents, students and organizations.

The Schueling fortune: Schueling is chairman of Brown Automotive Group, a leading auto dealer in the mid-Atlantic region he founded in 1983, that also includes over 200 subsidiaries.

His story is the classic rags to riches tale. Schueling is chairman of Brown Automotive Group, a leading auto dealer in the mid-Atlantic region he founded in 1983, that also includes over 200 subsidiaries.

"I started with nothing and the Lord's blessed me. I'll give it all back, every nickel," he said of his fortune.

In this case, Bill's generosity is the chamber's gain.

The Chamber of Commerce will lease the former post office building, which is located next-door to city hall from the City of Charlevoix for $1 a year for 10 years. The contract approved by city council includes an automatic five-year renewal.

Under the agreement drawn up by city attorney Jim Young, the chamber will be responsible for all maintenance and utilities related to the building with the city covering insurance which will cost about $500 a year.

Maintenance and utility costs are a new expense for the chamber. Under the current arrangement the group pays the city $100 a month to rent its Bridge Street location, above the harbor master's office, where it has been since 1944, and the city covers utilities and maintenance.

The renovation work which started with exterior projects early this month will convert the setup left by the police and fire departments who operated at the building during the renovation at city hall, into a business and visitor friendly welcome center.

Fuller-Nichols Architects of Harbor Springs, the same group that handled the renovation at city hall, is handling planning for the chamber's new building.

Services at the new site may be augmented to include member use of meeting space and extended areas to review literature. Staff levels are not expected to increase. The chamber currently provides two full-time positions year-round and one additional full-time position in the summer. A part-time position and volunteer hours are also logged.

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority bought the post office in 1986 for $70,000. An insurance appraisal done in 1998 found the building's value to be $208,927. This figure does not include the $40,000 in renovations the city did to the building in 2003 to prep it for use as a temporary city hall and police and fire stations while renovations were done next-door.

Schools prepare for late state funding cuts

FUNDING

In an e-mailed response to questions sent to her, Biddle noted that since the majority of the school's funding comes from the state, "The potential effect on our school district's budget is significant. While all of the information is not in yet, it appears that state revenues could be short by up to $160 per pupil below what was promised for this year."

"When the Legislature convenes in January 2007, they will have to make decisions about how to deal with this shortfall. They may find revenues from other sources to eliminate that shortfall — which we will encourage them to do — or they may cut funding to our school district in the middle of our fiscal year, or they could do a combination of both," she further stated. "Please understand that this type of mid-year cut has occurred several times in the past and that we cannot control it. If nothing is done, it appears we may be losing significant revenues in the middle of our fiscal year, well after our budgets have been finalized and financial commitments have been made."

School officials are working on a plan to deal with the apparent impending shortfall.

"There are no easy solutions.

We appreciate your understanding of our situation and your support in asking the Legislature to do all they can do to avoid again cutting spending on schools," Biddle said. "A $160 (per) pupil reduction would result in more than $200,000 less in state aid revenue than we were promised."

The local public schools may have to lean on a deeper than anticipated fund balance.

At the Monday, Nov. 13 Charlevoix Public Schools board meeting, the board approved budget revisions which changed the fund balance from the June 30 level of $95,018 to $326,603.

Biddle explained the increase in fund balance to staffing changes, contract negotiations and a vocational education budget adjustment.

"We had two teachers resign, so they were both replaced with teachers at the lower end of the pay scale. We had two administrators resign and savings on that situation," she said. "Also, when Susan Klinger moved into the position in the high school, we did not replace her as the media center specialist at the middle school."

She added, "Two administrators retired and came back as contracted employees."

Work to give contracts to our local workers

EDITORIAL

One of the major concerns voiced by Charlevoix City Council candidates during the recent election was the local business climate.

When asked how exactly a government body could help the private business sector, the responses were vague — but everyone felt council should take some role in boosting the economy. Vacant storefronts in the business district seemed to top the list of concerns.

We feel there is one easy way council can make a difference — give project contracts to local businesses.

No we're not advocating handing work over to unqualified candidates with outrageous rates, but there have been situations where local bids haven't been pursued when the difference between the low bidder and local Joe has been close. And as we learned with the CCMS fiasco, the low bid isn't always the best bid.

Recently this situation was realized in the marina bid process. Bids were opened for the first and second phases of the $11 million project on Oct. 19. Bids came in for these first two phases, replacing the seawall and docks, at around $3 million.

Of the eight bidders vying for the contract to replace the existing sea wall, Molon Excavating Inc. of Traverse City was the low bidder at $1,616,578.53. The second low bid was from a Charlevoix business owned by Ben Cunningham called R.B. Lyons Inc. Cunningham's bid was for $1,722,025.

In this case, council would have lost state funding had they strayed from the low bid, which we wouldn't advocate. But almost $2 million in the pockets of local workers would do a lot for local businesses they patronize. With another $8 million in work to be bid out, we would like to see as many contracts as possible go to local bidders.

Another interesting scenario was back in council's lap on Nov. 20 — the audio visual contract for city hall. This $132,000 job was a small piece in the $2.6 million city hall renovation that included 26 contractors but could have been given to Buday's Sound Advice, a local business that is both a leader and innovator in the field. We feel this would have saved some serious headaches and brought money into the community.

In July 2005 city council voted to reassign a $45,000 sound and audio contract to Blue Water Technologies, of Southfield. Sound Media of Whitmore Lake, who held the contract before, went bankrupt. This change cost the city almost $6,000. Now, Blue Water has dropped the ball and the remaining $15,836 in work has been handed over to Intaglio.

We feel the local business has more to lose if they fail to meet the bid specifications or perform below par and also has a vested interest in the community and should have been asked to bid the project.

The City Hall project undeniably produced a community gem and in looking at plans for the marina project it is obvious that the end result will be nothing short of spectacular. Let's use local workers with hometown pride and community spending power to craft our masterpiece and meet our goal of invigorating Charlevoix's business climate.

Take action at home to combat global warming

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I was recently asked to attend the viewing of the film "An Inconvenient Truth."

Though some residents referred to the film as an anti-Bush movie, I felt it was a here and now issue to be tackled by all citizens regardless of what party they affiliate themselves with. The film was educational and inspiring in a classroom lecture format. Our senior high students in attendance were given insight into their own future. For the concerned citizens in the audience it urged them to write their Congressman and demand change.

"An Inconvenient Truth" focuses on global warming, which refers to the earth's surface heating up from the sun and in turn the earth hounces it back. Our activities on earth have led to a buildup up of greenhouse gasses — mostly carbon dioxide. Some of the heat the earth radiates is staying in our atmosphere retaining it like the glass panels of a greenhouse.

Our oceans, lakes and rivers are very sensitive to climate changes. During the film, photos flashed across the screen comparing landscapes as recent as 10 years earlier and then were compared to the drastic difference of how those areas look today. Aerial shots depicted the re-sculpting of landscapes for irrigation purposes — once flowing rivers have become completely dried up looking more like desert terrain.

With increasing warmth in our atmosphere we will see warmer summers, more rain in the winter and evening temperatures will rise slowly. Our farms, forests, and fisheries may become less productive and recreation in Michigan during the winter months will change dramatically.

Some of the film goes in attendance agreed that last summer was a hot one just as the film reflected. According to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, 20 of the 21 hottest years occurred within the last 25 years — 2005 ranked as the hottest in history.

Climate changes have occurred throughout time but occurred at a much smaller rate because the carbon dioxide levels were much less significant than the present. Today's carbon dioxide levels are higher than anytime in the last 650,000 years. The levels have increased at such a high rate that we need to look at what we are doing in our daily lives as we are to blame.

Start by reducing your energy use. Most greenhouse emissions are found in our own home. Replace incandescent light bulbs with efficient fluorescent ones. Scientific reports from Gore's book state, "If every household in the United States substituted one conventional light bulb with a compact fluorescent light bulb, it would have the same effect on pollution levels as removing a million cars from the nation's roads."

We also need to continue recycling and promote this practice where we work or attend school. Try to purchase items that have been recycled or repaired. Pass on items no longer needed to someone who can use them. Limit your use of paper towels and use rags instead. Use cloth napkins instead of paper ones, stop junk mail and support stores and brands that make it their business to be environmentally responsible. When replacing a worn out appliance replace it with an energy efficient one.

Growing up in Dearborn I've always had the utmost respect for Henry Ford. In 1925 he spoke these prophetic words, "The fuel of the future is going to be from fruit and vegetable matter." Mr. Ford was an insightful man who knew about resources and protecting the environment. Now we need to stress to our elected officials that fuel alternatives are a viable renewable resource.

PUSH CITY COUNCIL TO OPPOSE COAST GUARD PLAN

Editor:

On behalf of Northern Michigan People for Peace, I appeared before Charlevoix City Council on Nov. 20 to offer a draft resolution opposing the Coast Guard's plan for live fire target practice zones in the Great Lakes.

As I said to the council, Northern Michigan People for Peace would soon be offering a substitute because we are continuing factual investigation. We offered the draft to prepare council and Charlevoix citizens to be thinking about whether a city resolution was appropriate and if so what it should say.

Around the lakes, scores of other cities, Indian tribes and sporting and trade organizations have taken a stand on this controversial proposal. Even though the Coast Guard's deadline for public comment has gone by, Charlevoix should speak out too.

Here is a revised resolution delivered to City Hall Nov. 27. Whether you are for it or against it, and whether you support these reasons or different reasons, please contact your council person to say what you think.

"Whereas the Coast Guard has proposed to establish 34 live fire zones on the Great Lakes for practice with machine guns and rifles;

Whereas one of the zones is near Charlevoix on the way to Beaver Island, at the geographic center of

Charlevoix County;

Whereas the car/passenger ferries sail right through this zone;

Whereas the Coast Guard and the City of Charlevoix enjoy a decades-long harmonious relationship;

Whereas the Coast Guard's historic mission is to rescue people and encourage safe boating;

Whereas the lakes are beautiful; Whereas the shooting will put 7,000 pounds of lead in the lakes annually;

Whereas lead is a carcinogen and neurotoxin;

Whereas shooting heavy metal effects a discharge of solid waste in the most literal sense, and should be regulated;

Whereas bills to phase out lead shot and lead fishing tackle were introduced this year in the Michigan House;

Whereas the Coast Guard's health risk assessment, based only on a five-year horizon, was not a complete environmental impact statement;

Whereas the Coast Guard did not consult or coordinate about the zones with the 34 Indian tribes and first nations of the Great Lakes basin;

Whereas the lakes are stressed already with toxic contaminants, invasive species, nutrient loading, land use changes, and hydrologic modifications;

Whereas guards, fences and cameras are better ways of protecting potential terrorist targets;

Whereas militarization will only raise the likelihood of conflict on the lakes;

Now therefore the City of Charlevoix calls on the Coast Guard to abandon the plan to establish live fire zones on the Great Lakes."

In Charlevoix, a committee has been formed in response to these concerns. They are calling themselves CARE (Conservation and Renewable Energy). These concerned citizens are promoting thoughtful action to climate change and seek a healthier and safer environment for all of us. They are commended whether they promote changes in policy or increase our understanding of global warming.

When you read or hear about them in future press releases, please take time to evaluate their findings and what suggestions they may offer. We need to protect future generations from the mistakes we make today. And for the skeptics wondering if the greenhouse effect is real — it is still imperative for the world to get a lot smarter about energy consumption. As resources dwindle and the population grows we all need to look at ways of protecting what is left of our planet. After all, we do refer to her as "mother earth" and we've always been taught to respect our mother.

HOLIDAYS AND RELIGIOUS EXPRESSION

Editor:

Each year the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and its many like-minded allies deliberately bully individual citizens, schools and government officials into removing any mention of Christ or Christianity from the public celebration of Christmas.

Christmas has historically been one of the most celebrated holidays of the American people. Misconceptions and controversy about the fictitious "separation of church and state" and the celebration of Christmas has led many public officials to remove Christ from Christmas in places such as schools, parks, libraries and government offices.

This was not the intent of the founding fathers. No court has ever ruled that the Constitution requires government officials to censor Christmas carols, eliminate all references to Christmas, or silence those who celebrate Christ's birth.

In order to eliminate any confusion with regard to your right to publicly celebrate Christmas, the following will equip you to dispel the myths and excuses that are used to silence the public celebration of Christmas.

Religious Christmas carols may be sung by individual students or by a group of students during school activities such as choir, Christmas programs and other events.

School officials may refer to the school break in December as a "Christmas holiday." The Supreme Court has acknowledged with approval that government has long recognized holidays with religious significance such as Christmas. Congress has proclaimed Christmas to be a legal public holiday.

School districts may not ban teachers or students from saying Merry Christmas. The Supreme Court has stated that teachers and students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate." In order to violate the Establishment Clause, a teacher would have to use his or her authority to promote religion to his or her students.

The Supreme Court has stated that "the Bible may constitutionally be used in an appropriate study of history, civilization, ethics, comparative religion or the like." The court explained that the "study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education," is constitutional under the First Amendment.

The Supreme Court has held that the Constitution "affirmatively mandates accommodation, not merely tolerance, of all religions and forbids hostility toward any." First Amendment rights accompany each student throughout the school day both inside and outside the classroom. School officials must permit students to convey religious sentiments through their school assignments, selection of reading materials, and clothing that conveys a religious message through words or symbols.

Public school officials may display religious symbols such as a nativity scene if they have a clear educational reason for doing so. The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday.

Public officials may display religious symbols such as a crèche or nativity scene. The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday. Courts often look to the endorsement test or "The Three Reindeer Rule," which asks whether a reasonable observer would believe that the municipal display constitutes an endorsement of religion by the government. This rule requires a municipality to place a sufficient number of secular objects in close enough proximity to the crèche to render the overall display sufficiently secular.

The Constitution does not require government officials to eliminate all public religious expression of Christmas. It's okay to say Merry Christmas, regardless of the legal threats from the ACLU and its allies. To support and encourage others in your community to exercise their right to say Merry Christmas you'll be part of an important effort to protect and preserve the rights of people everywhere to practice and observe their beliefs. We must protect what we have, reclaim what we've lost and shape who we will become.

On your mark, get set, go

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

In Charlevoix resident John McNabb's world the conditions were perfect for a Thanksgiving Day swim in Lake Michigan — the sun was shining and the air was a balmy 53 degrees.

While many are thinking a quick November swim in Lake Michigan is borderline certifiable, McNabb was joined by about 75 participants in the holiday benefit swim at Michigan Beach on Nov. 23. The entire group didn't take the plunge, many watched from shore as swimmers braved the 34 degree water not once, but twice.

McNabb, the event organizer, said 15 people ages 11 to 49 dipped in the frigid water at 11 a.m. and then, just minutes later, a man approached him with a $100 donation and a proposal for a second swim. McNabb agreed and eight swimmers went for another round.

The swim was short but memorable — everybody had to swim underwater for three strokes for their act of bravery to count as an official swim. "It was lovely, the air was great the sun was out. It was a lot better than last year," McNabb said.

The McNabbs followed up the chilling event with a hot, traditional Thanksgiving meal.

Last year was the third year in a row that John and his son Douglas were the only swimmers and was the first year that the icy dip was also a fund-raiser. That 2005 swim is forever scarred by cruel 40 mph winds, blizzard conditions and freezing cold water. According to John, regardless of the weather, he will be there again next year.

Last year they raised money for Colleen Griffin, a local cancer survivor.

This year, the Fourth Annual Thanksgiving Day Swim raised about $2,000 for Debbie Molaroni, a Charlevoix Area Hospital employee who was involved in a life altering car accident in September. Molaroni is still recovering from her injuries.

The event raised about $2,000 so far. The largest contribution came from Charlevoix resident, Mark Knapp, who raised $500. Anyone wishing to donate to the cause can contact John McNabb at (231) 631-4574 or (231) 237-0380.

Bullies beware: Schools enact new policy

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

With murder and mayhem on the rise in schools across America, local educators have a full-time job monitoring potential threats and implementing crisis response plans.

Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, said he and his fellow educators are ever vigilant when it comes to the well-being of students.

"I think in the days when you had problems at Paducah and Columbine, it made everybody take a look at that situation," he said. "Our staff really did take it seriously."

While many remember

Gary Grundman

three students slain at a school in West Paducah, Ky. in 1999.

"We have had a crisis plan in place for seven years. I think that we, as a staff, really look at this now not only in what could happen, but what the signs are and how to work with our cris plan," Grundman said. "The outside doors are locked. There is only one entrance where people can get in and only one entrance where people can get out."

During the interview, he added, "I'm looking right now and I can see every car coming and going. If someone came in from the side, it would be quite a hike — we're right in the middle of 76 acres."

More than 75 students, staff and their assailants have perished by gunfire in American schools since 1992 when a 20-year-old student murdered four and wounded 10 in a California high school.

Aside from limiting entry points and having a remote location, Charlevoix High School was built with a security plan in mind.

"Cameras were one of the things we were going to buy out of contingency funds at the end of the project, but there were not enough funds left to do that," Grundman said. "We had a limited system at the middle school, and that's been resurrected because we had some blind spots at that

He added, "We are getting bids for a full security system (for the high school)."

School staff has discussed their readiness plan with local police personnel and even held a lock down drill recently.

Grundman said his staff is constantly watching kids for warning signs.

"We look for anything that's out of the ordinary on the side of kids being overly aggressive, drawing pictures (depicting violence) obsessing about some of these things," Grundman said. "Those signs usually come out and that's the time when our counselors do need to get involved."

Grundman said at home, parents should talk with their kids about important issues, report suspicious behavior and get kids help when they need it.

"We have a very fine counseling staff that parents and students have access to," Grundman said. "The number one thing is communication between parents, schools and kids."

He added, "Our number one job is to keep kids safe."

Some school shooters later told police they were responding to years of being bullied by classmates. Charlevoix Public Schools recently brought their policies on bullying and hazing in line with state requirements.

When is it harmless teasing and when is it bullying or hazing?

"Bullying depends upon the individual on the receiving end," Grundman said. "The way we've treated it in the past is that, at this age, it's borderline assault, whether it be physical or verbal, we treat that very harshly and work very closely with the police department."

Charlevoix High School is a much more peaceful place to be in the new millennium, Grundman said.

"Back when I first started as principal in 1994, we did have a situation where ninth-graders were picked on by the upper classmen and that was a problem," he said. "When we went to hlock scheduling back in '95-'96, that was one of the real issues we tried to tackle with our seminar, and that's why we had multi age grouping and tried to do community oriented things."

He added, "When you have a room with four freshman, four sophomores, four juniors and four seniors, and have scripted discussions, it really created an atmosphere where there was a family situation between freshman and upperclassmen."

As far as hazing, Grundman said, "Our lockers were so small, we didn't stuff freshman in lockers, but there was a lot of teasing in the halls."

Grundman believes hazing may be rooted in human culture.

"We're doing a much better job of looking at those types of problems," he said. "A lot of times what we see at the high school level is because of efforts made at the elementary level."

Concerned students or parents should contact Grundman, or assistant principal, Susan Klinger at (231) 547-3222.

Women's Resource Center seeks food and supply donations

In the past year, 636 battered women sought supportive services through the Women's Resource Center's (WRC) Domestic Abuse Program.

This sobering statistic makes it clear domestic abuse is not something that just happens in the big city, it is happening in northern Michigan.

The Harvest Food and Supply Drive which is going on now provides the opportunity for community members to make an impact on this tragic issue by taking action at the local level to support area victims of domestic violence and their children.

The Women's Resource Center provides the only shelter for victims of domestic abuse in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. Safe Home offers emergency shelter 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, along with a 24-hour crisis phone line.

In the past year, 68 women and 74 children took refuge at Safe Home to escape the peril of emotional, verbal and/or physical abuse. The Women's Resource Center provided 2,814 nights of housing, averaging eight persons per day. Food and supply costs exceeded $20,000 during that time. Over $15,000 was donated locally by groups and individual supporters.

The Harvest Food and Supply Drive is a call to action for the northern Michigan community to assist the Safe Home in providing food, supplies, and personal items to the many families who utilize these emergency services. Non-perishable food items and paper products are a major need. The Safe Home also requires financial support with $95,000 needing to be raised each year to maintain and operate/staff the shelter. Cash donations are crucial and very much appreciated.

Donations can be brought to the Women's Resource Center main office, 423 Porter St. or the Gold Mine Resale Shop at the corner of Emmet and Washington streets in Petoskey.

The Safe Home Needs List is available by calling (231) 347-1572 or visiting www.wrcnm.org.

The exercise was aimed at getting students to engage in career exploration. The fifth, sixth and seventh-grade students chose three careers to be exposed to and the eighth-grade students attended two sessions. All the students attended a session on interviewing skills.

Lady Rayder hoops team loses in regional play

STAFF WRITER

A cold spell at the wrong time ended the season for the Charlevoix Rayders as they fell 54-35 to McBain in regional basketball play.

"Over the course of the season we'd had some nights when we were cold shooting but usually one or two players were on — it would be Lori (Zimmerman) one night or Robyn (Petzak). Rayder coach Keith Haske said, 'Unfortunately against McBain no one could get it going.'"

Charlevoix trailed only 22-21 at the half but a 15-2 McBain advantage in the third quarter was the Rayders' undoing.

"We felt good at half-time, only trailing by one but in that third quarter, nothing would fall for us," Haske said. "We had some pretty good looks — lay-ups, jump shots but nothing was going in. It's hard to press when you're not scoring any points."

Zimmerman led the Rayders in scoring with eight points and dished out four assists. Tammy Potter contributed seven points, 10 rebounds and four steals. Ashlie Bradley pulled down six rebounds, Petzak and Sasha Spenceley each had four steals.

Despite the disappointing finish to the season, Haske saw positives after the game.

"The thing I was pleased most with was our improvement over the season," he noted. "We started out slowly but in the middle of the season we were playing some real good basketball."

"This team improved maybe as much as any team I've ever coached."

The season-ending loss spelled the end for seven Rayder seniors: Zimmerman, Petzak, Spenceley, Bradley, Teresa Potter and Bethany Pearson.

"The seniors really contributed but we have some good players coming back and the JV team was 20-0 (for the third straight season)," Haske commented.

Charlevoix finished the season with a 18-5 record.

"I am very proud of the kids," Haske said. "They won a conference championship and a district championship. It was an excellent season. All of the games we lost were to very good teams."

Lori Zimmerman (left) led the Rayders in scoring in their regional 54-35 loss to McBain. But her contributions weren't enough to carry the team. She and five of her teammates and fellow seniors ended their high school basketball careers at the game.

Local soccer standout takes college team all the way

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Former class of 2003 Northwest Academy alumnus, Craig Welscott, recently helped take the Goshen College Maple Leafs to the playoffs of college soccer for the first time in nearly 30 years — the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Championships.

While Craig's team lost their Wednesday, Nov. 15 game against Park University at Embury Riddle University in central Florida, Craig will end his collegiate soccer career as Goshen's top man for shut-outs as a goalie and a record of 52 wins.

"We didn't get blown out in our game like a lot of people expected us to. Even though we lost, it was nice to know we belonged there, so we got a lot of respect for that. Overall, it's been very positive," Craig said. "We started out my freshman year in the middle of the pack so to speak, then we started coming together. Starting my sophomore year, we ended up being second in our conference and then for two years we were co-champions of our conference. So I would say it's been a pretty good ride."

Craig said this year has been particularly fun.

"At the beginning of the season we lost a couple games. It was a pretty tough opening schedule since we played two teams which are NCAA schools," he said. "In the pre-season they were both ranked in the top 25. So that alone made it a pretty tough opening schedule. But, we played pretty tough and after we started coming together as a team, we had a really good run."

Craig's Goshen Maple Leafs won the conference championships, the conference tournament and regional tournament to go on to the national championship.

"To get to the national championships means you're one of the top 20 teams in the country, so just knowing that is pretty good," he said. "That is pretty good to know all the hard work you put in just sort of turns out and you get to where you want to be."

Craig's father, Tom Welscott, said his son began playing when he was approximately 5-years-old.

Tom knew his son had something special early on in his soccer career.

"It was about when he went to Northwest (Academy) in junior high. He was trying to play soccer and baseball and he had to make a choice — he chose soccer and he went on to play soccer exceptionally," he said. "He always did well and he had fun. The support for the goalie wasn't always there, but I think he always wanted to be the goalie."

He added, "If the team wasn't scoring well, then it made the job for the goalie very hard."

Craig's former principal and music instructor, Gary Stutzman, of Northwest Academy, remembers Craig as an unassuming go-getter.

"He was very shy and withdrawn, very polite and kind of like the perfect student," Stutzman said. "He did everything that was expected of him and never crossed the line of what you would call a troubled student. As he grew older, he became more and more proficient as a musician and student. He became one of the outstanding trombone players that I had the pleasure of working with at the high school level."

He added, "(Craig's) father was a minister, so he grew up in a very structured home and his demeanor reflected his upbringing. He was the kind of student where, if you needed something done, you could count on Craig to do it. He was the kind of model student that, as a teacher, makes you want to stay in education."

Tom said Craig nearly set a few state records during his high school soccer career.

"I think he had 30 saves in his second to last season with Northwest Academy," he said. "For a small school, they gave some of the bigger schools a run for their money."

Stutzman said Craig was a serious student of the game.

"He spent a lot of time watching film — watching the pros play. Back then... soccer was just becoming a very prominent sport with us here in America," Stutzman said. "You could watch the World Cup and watch things on TV, but there was as much going on with school programs — they were just getting started."

Stutzman said Craig began his soccer career just as the American soccer movement was on the rise.

"Northwest's soccer program had its best days when Craig and his classmates were involved with the team," he said. "Outside of music, soccer was his love."

Stutzman said Craig took his instrument with him on the way to the NAIA Championships so he could continue practicing for his senior recital.

"I'll bet Craig was the only guy on the team with a trombone as part of his luggage," he said.

Craig's senior recital will consist of several pieces performed on trombone including a concerto by Mozart in honor of his two hundred-fiftieth birthday.

"It's a pretty significant work, so that will probably be the highlight of the recital," he said.

Craig, who won a soccer scholarship to Goshen, is pursuing a major in music with an emphasis on digital recording. And, though he's become an accomplished athlete, Craig said his love for music will guide his career path.

"Professionally, I don't think (soccer) is the direction I'm going to be taking. I enjoy doing music much more than being in professional athletics," he said.

Craig said his love for music began at Northwest Academy.

"It was always something I was drawn to and it was always something I was good at," he said. "I started as a biology major (in college) and after my first semester, I wasn't playing at all and missed it. I was like, 'Man, I don't think I should be studying biology, I should be studying music.'"

Stutzman said, "It's very gratifying to see students set goals early in their life and continue to strive to reach those goals. Craig is one of those success stories that you wish there were more of."

Goshen had one of 20 teams at the national event.

STEPPING OUT in Charlevoix

Did you KNOW?

When did this building, that housed three stores on the south-west corner of Bridge Street and Park Avenue, go up in flames?

E-mail your pick to news@charlevoixcourier.com or cut out the box and send it to Charlevoix Courier P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Entries must include the name, address and phone number of the submitter as well as the "Did you know?" publication date. Entries will be received for one week and randomly drawn. The winner will receive a free three-month subscription to the Courier. Information provided by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Results are in from the Nov. 22 'Did you know?' contest

Congratulations to Todd Essenberg of Ellsworth who correctly identified the structure pictured at right from the Nov. 22 installment of "Did you know?"

Essenberg will be awarded a free three-month subscription to the Charlevoix Courier.

The question posed was, "What purpose did this once-popular structure have? And where was it located?"

The structure was an observation tower erected by D. S. Way on top of Mt. McSaubia beginning in April of 1891. Longtime resident, Frances Durance, thought it might have been utilized by the Lifesaving (later Coast Guard) station men as a lookout over Lake Michigan after the station on the channel was completed in 1901.

For 25 cents visitors could ascend for a spectacular view all the way down Lake Charlevoix, across Little Traverse Bay to Harbor Springs, out into Lake Michigan to Beaver Island, the Fox and Manitou Islands, the top of the Leelanau Peninsula, and Grand Traverse Bay, over 1,200 square miles in all. The tower blew down in a windstorm on Thanksgiving Day, 1905 and was never rebuilt.

Todd Essenberg of Ellsworth correctly identified the structure pictured at left from the Nov. 22 installment of "Did you know?" It once stood on the Mt. McSaubia property.

Sheriff warns of two new scams

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater advises of two new scams to be wary of.

Sheriff George Lasater

The first scam targets senior citizens where a company calls and says there is a problem with one of the citizen's checks. The caller then requests the citizen to verify the numbers on the check.

Sheriff Lasater would like to remind all citizens there is no reason to give any personal information over the telephone.

The second scam is spreading fast and is in reference to jury summons. Most of us take summons for jury duty very seriously and an ominous kind of scam has surfaced. If you fall for it, your identity could be stolen. Someone calls pretending to be a court official who threateningly says a warrant has been issued for your arrest because you didn't show up for jury duty. The caller claims to be a jury coordinator. If you protest you never received a summons for jury duty, the scammer asks you for your Social Security number and date of birth so he or she can verify the information and cancel the arrest warrant. Sometimes they even ask for credit card numbers. Give out any of this information and your identity just got stolen.

Sheriff Lasater said this scam has been reported, so far in 11 states and is particularly insidious because they use intimidation over the phone to try to hully people into giving information pretending they're with the court system.

The FBI and the federal court system have issued nationwide alerts on their Web sites warning consumers about the fraud.

Armed robbery suspect faces five felonies

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Daniel Lee Russell, a 45-year-old Charlevoix man accused of the armed robbery of a Charlevoix Family Video clerk in August, did not take the stand during the Nov. 28 preliminary examination in Charlevoix County District Court.

Several people, including 21-year-old Bethany Reeves, the victim of the robbery, testified while Russell remained lodged outside the courtroom.

"I left the exit door, I had three (deposit envelopes)...my best estimate is a little over $800," Reeves said. "I walked to my car on the far side of the driveway, towards the back of the building. Then, out of the corner of my eye I caught a blur, it came out and blind-sided me basically from my left side. A man came up to me with a ski mask on, put a gun to my head and said, 'Give me the money.'"

Reeves wept as she gave the description of her assailant.

Daniel Russell

"I handed him the money. He asked if that was everything. I said 'yes,'" she said.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarena, asked Reeves why she handed the perpetrator everything but her driver's license.

"I didn't want him to know where I lived," she sobbed.

Reeves said the attacker kept trying to force her into the back seat of her car.

"While he was trying to get me into the car, I fell to my knees," she said. "I thought I was going to be a different kind of victim, so I (decided) to make it hard for him."

She added, "He was yelling at me, 'I've already killed four people.'"

Official kickoff of park and marina project

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

A project that has taken five years to bring to fruition will be celebrated this Friday.

The City of Charlevoix is hosting an official groundbreaking ceremony at 10 a.m. on Dec. 8 in and around the Odmark Pavilion in East Park to officially kickoff the $11 million marina and park renovation project.

Local and state officials will be in attendance as well as project architects and state and local politicians. After a brief ceremony, warm beverages and appetizers will be served. Community members are encouraged to attend.

"It's been a long time coming," said Charlevoix mayor Norman Carlson Jr., the event emcee. "Everybody is on board. Hopefully, by spring there will be a whole different picture in the park."

With construction starting this winter, Carlson said the city anticipates the new seawall and dock system being in place by June. Amenities like the new amphitheater and harbor master's facility are expected to follow in July. The complete project will be done in the fall of 2007.

"Next summer is going to be tough down there," longtime former retailer and Downtown Development Authority member, Jeannine Wallace, said at a recent meeting regarding the project schedule butting into high tourist season.

Carlson agreed the project will be an inconvenience but said the benefits far outweigh the complication.

Contracts worth $3.8 million were signed last week for phase

Move to at-will employment in schools

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Michigan Public Schools are either low on cash or on the verge of financial ruin. Educators blame the state economy and the dissection of Proposal A. I blame me and my fellow taxpayers for allowing teacher unions to strong-arm us into paying outrageous benefit packages.

Now, before the burly gentlemen wearing the, "I heart Hoffa," lapel pins help me into a pair of cement sandals, know that Michigan spends more than most other states on education. According to the Washington State Employment Security Department, Michigan elementary and middle school teachers earn the second highest pay in the country at an average of $57,360 and $60,550 respectively while high school teachers are fifth with $55,810.

Meanwhile, on planet earth, 2005 national average pay for teachers in the same order was $46,990, $47,890 and $49,400 respectively.

"Making ends meet on a teacher's salary is so tough that nearly half leave the profession within five years. Schools struggle to fill jobs, and students bear the cost of losing good teachers," the National Education Association stated from its Web site.

Starting pay for a unionized teacher in Charlevoix Public Schools is $34,396. Average pay is $53,600 and the highest paid teacher earns $67,833.

"37 percent of teachers who do not plan to continue teaching until retirement blame low pay for their decision to leave the profession," stated the NEA.

To put things into perspective, I took a look at what other people in the community make. The NEA might reconsider making melodramatic statements within earshot of child care workers and home health aides, both of which earn less than half of what an average Michigan teacher earns (according to the Department of Labor and Economic Growth) and with few or no benefits. Also earning less than half are cooks, CENAs, cashiers, general laborers and 90,000 Michiganders (Detroit Free Press) earning at or below minimum wage. Customer service representatives, carpenters, mechanics, machinists and truck drivers also earn less than your average teacher, according to the Department of Labor and Economic Growth. One could argue these folks earn less because they never went to college. To me it demonstrates that millions of Michiganders raise families with much less money than our unionized educators.

According to the AFL-CIO, which represents 13 million union workers in America, "With union representation, workers earn 29 percent more. It doesn't cost to join a union, it actually pays and pays well!"

I knew we were overpaying, but I didn't know it was by nearly one-third.

A 29 percent reduction in the $9.2 million Charlevoix Public Schools budgeted for salary, benefits and retirement for teachers, support staff and administrators would leave the schools with a $2.6 million fund balance — surely enough money to retain programs destined for the chopping block.

However, the NEA argues, "To attract and retain a greater number of dedicated, committed professionals, educators need salaries that are literally, 'attractive.'"

There are many jobs with salaries that are less than attractive, yet employers miraculously manage to fill the positions day after day. Furthermore, the idea that hard work and dedication only exist as a result of lucrative and everlasting contracts insults everyone who hustles their hump to squeak out a paltry living.

As we've seen with the nurses strike at Northern Michigan Hospital, there will always be people willing to work for pay others find insulting.

To save our schools, we must eliminate tenure and collective bargaining. The move to "at-will" employment is the only way to put the control of finances back into the hands of the taxpayers. Teachers must earn a fair wage because they worked for it, not because their organization threatens work stoppages if they don't get their way.

Hey, feelings of entitlement will always exist. We all wish we made more money. And I haven't met one person in my life who didn't think they worked harder than everyone else, but extortion never has and never will produce the efficient, productive and fiscally responsible school system Michigan's children, and taxpayers, deserve.

Learn tools for living, not making a living

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I can proudly say that I am the product of a liberal education.

This has nothing to do with politics. What I benefited from is more properly called a liberal arts education. I might as well identify the source of my liberal arts education. It was St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. It provided me not so much with entree into employment as with the possibility of enjoyment.

I taught for 30 years at a similar liberal arts college, Luther College in Decora, Iowa. I used to tell my students not to identify their major or what they were studying at a given time with their future career plans, and to delay permanent career choices for as long as possible. "Your education," I would tell them, "is for enjoyment, not employment. However well you may be prepared to enter the workforce at whatever level, the majority of your life will not be spent at some kind of work. Your education should prepare you for living, which is a full-time job, rather than for working which cannot consume all of your time, or at least should not."

More than 40 years ago, Eric Sevareid wrote of the value of such institutions and such an education. It may be necessary to point out to anyone younger than 50 that Eric Sevareid was a long-time CBS correspondent, a best-selling author and something of an adventurer who canoed across the wilds of Canada from Minnesota to Hudson's Bay as an 18-year-old. In 1965, he wrote this about liberal arts colleges: "It seemed to me that current public opinion has missed the point about some of these small colleges like Luther and St. Olaf, up at Northfield. I wonder how many Americans, frantic about getting sons and daughters into the big-name schools, understand the quality of scholarship at these rare little places. Where else would you find a man who could alternately coach football, master five languages and teach the classics? Latin and Greek remain honored here for what they are — keys to the past and the proper tools for honing the mind in the discipline of exactitude."

Luther, St. Olaf and other liberal arts colleges teach much more than Latin and Greek, but most of the curriculum leads in the direction of providing tools for living, not just tools for making a living. Graduates of these institutions are doctors, lawyers and even politicians. They are salespersons, outdoor educators, teachers, bartenders, professional campers — almost any imaginable career. They've studied science, literature and languages, and I always hoped that they would enjoy life at least as much as they enjoyed their work.

If at the end of a college education the student is able to read complex material with understanding, write with precision and understand what numbers

LETTERS to the editor

'THANKS' PANTRY SUPPORTERS

Editor:
We would like to extend a public thank you to Father Jerry Hunko of St. Mary's Parish, Keisha Verysse, principal of St. Mary's School, the parishioners, school children, and staff for their constant and stellar support of the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry this past year.

In their monthly food collections for the pantry, they have contributed over $2,500 and countless bags of food items. In addition, the school children collected approximately 1,300 food items in their Thanksgiving collection and over $100.

The Knights of Columbus presented the pantry with a check for $1,560, proceeds from their fall dinner. And the Diocese of Gaylord awarded the pantry a grant of $900 from a fund allotted to feed the hungry.

We would also like to thank Laura Stehe, Rebecca Jeakle, Amy Putnam and Jim Jinsky for loading the Thanksgiving collection and transporting it to the pantry, and Buck Bradley who delivers the monthly collections.

The needs at the pantry continue to grow. In a recent two-hour Monday we had 22 households who came to us for help — a record. Several of them were first-time visitors to the pantry. It only takes a ear repair, a sickness in the family, or some other emergency to force a family living on minimum wage to have to seek help feeding their family. Many of our families have one, even two, people working, but it's often not enough to keep up.

Again, thank you to St. Mary's and to all of the churches who faithfully support the pantry during the year.

BLOOD DRIVE SUCCESS

Editor:
According to the American Red Cross every two seconds, someone in the United States needs blood. The Red Cross collects and distributes nearly half of the blood needed by the sick and injured.

The American Red Cross held two blood drives in Charlevoix recently. On Nov. 16, the Community Reformed Church hosted a drive and on Nov. 21 Bethany Lutheran hosted a drive. The combined total pints collected was 109. It was exciting and heartwarming to have eight first-time donors.

I want to express my gratitude to the churches and to all the volunteers, especially Edith Dale who coordinates the blood drives at Bethany Lutheran.

The need for blood is always crucial, whether it is a holiday season or hunting season. I am so thankful to the donors and volunteers who made it a priority to give so generously of their time to ensure a supply of blood. We are literally saving lives together.

Please mark your new 2007 calendar with the date for the next community blood drive at the Reformed Church. It will be from noon until 5:45 p.m. on Jan. 18. Many of you have already signed up. Thank you.

Merry Christmas and happy New Year.

CHARLEVOIX KEEPS GETTING BETTER

Editor:
Although Thanksgiving is past, my wife and I would like to thank some special people for the gift of their time.

First to the men and women who show up at the cemetery in uniform to say farewell to a fellow veteran. Their dignified professionalism gives honor and respect to those who have served our country. I know the families appreciate what they do. So, thank you to all who participate, you know who you are.

Next, a special thank you to who we feel are six of the most under-appreciated men in town, the street department crew. They are always there to help me do the difficult task of interning our neighbors and loved ones, even in the most unpleasant conditions.

The last is a very heartfelt appreciation to Alida Klooster at City Hall for being so cooperative and patient with helping me get and keep the cemetery records updated and accurate. There are many other people behind the scene that help make our cemeteries unique, with that old-time pristine flavor.

Thanks to all that help others get through the difficult time and grief of losing a loved one. My wife and I have lived in Charlevoix for 34 years and it seems like it just keeps getting better. Which reminds me of one last kudos to our new street department manager, Pat (Elliott). I've noticed a positive change in morale and management of the department since he took the helm. Our hats off to all of you for making Charlevoix a better place to live. Sincere thanks from the Charlevoix cemeterian.

Liberal arts education prepares students for work and life

mean and how they can be useful, then they have been well educated. They are theoretically prepared for almost any sort of employment and ready to participate fully in life.

If, on the other hand, they have pursued a specific career goal by taking mostly specialized courses, they may find that their imagined career has disappeared even before they graduate. In a world of ever-increasing speed of change, flexibility is certainly desirable, maybe even essential.

Some interviewers of potential employees do not understand this well. A student with a college major in Latin or Greek may be better prepared for work in investment banking than a student with a major in accounting who has never seriously examined the Classics.

When people in the 19th century referred to the three R's (readin', ritin' and 'rithmatic), they were expressing something about education that we may undervalue. Reading is not simply what you learned in the second-grade, it's what you learn when you read Greek or study Shakespeare's works. Writing is not just handling cursive, but being able to turn out an understandable paragraph on the nature of time or the history of the automobile. And arithmetic requires a grasp of the meaning of very large and very small numbers and a good idea of how probability works.

A wise person once said that if we continue to urge young people to make permanent career choices even earlier in their lives, we will wind up with a serious surplus of astronauts, firemen and flight attendants. Any society needs people who are prepared for jobs that don't even exist and won't exist for 20 years to come. A liberal education provides just such people. Hurrah for all the colleges that require it.

Lange PUD in Hayes, Charlevoix townships faces foreclosure

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The 73-acre Lange Limited LLC parcel in a Planned Unit Development (PUD) located in portions of Hayes and Charlevoix townships since late 2003 was foreclosed on Friday, Dec. 1.

According to the judgment of foreclosure dated Sept. 11, the amount owed on the development, which was once proposed to host a hotel, office space, housing for seniors, a restaurant, grocery store, apartment complex, storage buildings and retail space, was nearly $1.5 million.

A representative from Irwin Union Bank and Trust Co. of Lansing was on hand to reclaim possession of the distressed property and would not speculate on the fate of the proposed development.

The Langes now have six months in which to pay the $1,493,151.87 plus 11.75 percent interest, "Accruing at the rate of $390.56 per day."

Representatives of Lange LLC originally appealed to Charlevoix Township officials in 2003 for a rezoning of 28 acres of the 73-acre property. An AmeriInn Motel and Suites was eventually constructed on four acres and remains the only commercial structure on the property.

Property owner, Dorian Lange, could not be reached for comment.

Harbor Industries to monitor contamination

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix City Council recently approved the installation of test wells on city property for what Harbor Industries officials hope is the final phase leading to closure of their 1980s chemical leak case with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

The five wells, which could cost nearly $60,000 to purchase and install, will be used to monitor levels of tetrachloroethylene or PCE, a chemical used in paint remover, brake cleaner, degreasers and glue.

"This is the same issue we've been dealing with since the mid-1980s," said Tim Parker, vice-president of operations for Harbor Industries. "The actual contamination happened earlier than that, but we've been doing various things (to fix the problem) ever since. We remediated the soil, extracted and incinerated it years ago."

Nearly 2,000 tons of soil was removed and treated in 1995 in response to the contamination.

At a previous city council meeting, Parker said Harbor Industries spent at least a half million dollars to clean the chemical damage.

Parker added, "We thought we were close to closure, but had a change in our case manager at the DEQ and that's when they asked to have more wells installed."

According to Parker, there is no new contamination.

"In order to give closure on the site, we are required that the test data from several years ago be updated. They wanted a different and better profile of the plume area," he said. "So, they wanted us to test different areas...to have a better definition of where the plume is."

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), the highest levels of PCE, which does not occur naturally, can be found in dry-cleaning businesses.

"On the basis of results of repeated short-term, human, inhalation exposure studies, it is considered that no acute effects will occur at tetrachloroethylene concentrations of approximately 140 mg...or less," a 1987 WHO report stated. However, the study shows, exposure to vaporized PCE of 500 mg causes eye irritation. Exposure to 700 mg can irritate, "Depression of the central nervous system and nose and throat irritation."

"From the levels we tested before, (the amount of PCE contamination) is very minimal," Parker said. "We don't deal with a lot of degreasers anymore. We use a lot of more environmentally friendly chemicals when we can."

He added, "The contamination came from degreasing metal parts. We don't really do that anymore. And, the new building was designed with catch basins to contain it and not let it get into the soil."

Parker said the contamination occurred when workers used a drain which wasn't actually connected to any pipes.

"It (PCE) just went into the ground," he said.

Mike Shaw, director of continuous improvements at Harbor Industries, said the test wells should be installed before the end of the year.

"The plan was to get them in while the weather was still halfway nice," he said.

The three-inch diameter PVC wells with locking metal caps will be flush with the ground and could reach in excess of 100 feet below topsoil.

"There's quite a sophisticated way to test so we don't get contamination," Shaw said. "There are screens at different levels and they drop a (monitor) down and pull from each portion to test at the site."

Shaw said a mobile test lab will be on site during each inspection.

Gosling Czubak Engineering

Sciences Inc., is being paid by Harbor Industries to monitor the wells. The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality will have the option of attending each test.

Citizens committee: It's time to clean house

Council to review committee findings on Dec. 12

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

City residents can breathe a sigh of relief — in its search for financial corners to cut, the Charlevoix Citizens Advisory Committee did not propose a tax increase, but city employees and programs beware.

Charlevoix City Council will review the complete set of recommendations made by the citizens committee during their year-long review of city operations at a special joint meeting of the citizens committee and city council at 6 p.m. on Dec. 12 at City Hall.

"I think council has to take into consideration what this committee is presenting. It's up to them to make decisions and it's time for council to step up," citizens committee chairman, Don Voisin, said. "Every one of these recommendations is important."

According to Voisin, at the upcoming special meeting, the great debate will likely be about the committee's recommendations on employee benefits and staffing, costs at the municipal airport and golf course, and the creation of a fire and emergency response authority.

"We don't think we need a tax increase. Let's clean up our own house first," Voisin said. "They (city council) have to spend more time on their budget process."

The first sweep aims at the ever looming reality of increasing health care costs. Under general findings in the committee's report they recommend controlling the costs of salaries and health benefits.

"The benefit packages of city employees are much more generous than those enjoyed by city taxpayers," the report states.

Motions approved under this general recommendation include cost sharing by all city employees in health care benefits and staffing cuts if health care costs continue to be prohibitive.

According to city treasurer, Riek Brandi, the city currently pays $433,600 to insure the 49 employees enrolled in the health care program. At this time, all employees pay for individual and family coverage. He added that the MERS health care program the city switched to on Sept. 1 saved the city, and employees money.

The committee also took aim at the airport and golf course, recommending they no longer be subsidized by the general fund.

"People paying for the services should be the people that use the services. Why should every taxpayer have to support the golf course and the airport when they aren't supporting themselves," Voisin said.

This year the airport is budgeted to cost the city $25,000. According to Brandi this money will be used to match grants for projects there and the airport would otherwise be breaking even.

The golf course on the other hand has been in the red for the past couple of years. Brandi attributes this to increased competition and dips in tourism.

"We are hoping to get to the break even side. But it will take some work," he said.

This year the city paid $85,000 from the general fund to operate the course.

Mt. McSautha was not mentioned in the committee's findings but is anticipated to draw $76,000 from the general fund this year.

Formed: November 2005

Members: The committee includes: Tim Parker, Kirby Dipert, Bill Bellows, Pete Phillips, Don Voisin, Ken Staley, Curt Thompson, Ed Johnson, Butch Russell, June Cross, Birdie Whitley, Kaye Beatty, Tom Conlan, Chris Papineau, Dan Nuttle, and students Kevin Greyerbiehl, Chuck Mason and Caitlin Cole.

What have they done: The group has met over 20 times since November 2005 to review operating procedures and city department budgets to establish these cost cutting recommendations.

Purpose: Budget projections show the city will be short about $50,000 in its general fund by 2008.

Currently, city manager Mike Wiesner said the city is supplementing the general fund with infrastructure dollars to get it to the break even point. Over the past two years, $220,000 has been turned over to the general fund from the infrastructure millage.

In a previous interview, mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said that instead of city administrators making the decision to increase taxes or hike service fees, the advisory committee was established to make recommendations as to where the city can cut corners to make up the shortfall.

Charlevoix Area Community Pool expands Dollar Nights program

Starting Dec. 4, the Charlevoix Area Community Pool has expanded dollar nights to include Monday through Thursday nights from 6 to 8 p.m.

The fee is $1 per person for those living in the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township or Charlevoix Township. All others are non-district and will pay $1.50 per person.

Dollar nights have proven to be so popular the expanded nights were necessary. Friday night was dropped as a dollar night as it has reached the point where some swimmers have been turned away in the winter months because of lack of space.

The pool board and staff hope that by having four nights of the discounted prices, the attendance will average out over the four nights and it will be a more enjoyable experience for those attending.

Swimmers wishing to swim at the pool on the weekends including Friday nights from 6 to 8 p.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays have to pay $3.50 ($3.75 out of district) for adults, kids 18 and under are $2.

For a complete pool schedule of classes and programs, call (231) 547-0982.

State purchase of Big Rock on hold

According to an Associated Press report, a request for funding through the Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund to buy the Big Rock Point property in Charlevoix has been abandoned, for now.

The Trust Fund board was expected to hear the $3 million request today, Wednesday. It was one of 162 grant requests they would consider. The request is among $63 million worth of projects under consideration for the $35 million available. The $3 million was an initial payment and an additional $16.3 million would be requested in future years.

The decision came just after a Nov. 30 push by a coalition of environmental groups urging the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Board to reject the plan to purchase the former Big Rock Point property which once housed an active nuclear power plant.

The environmental group cites the continued storage of high-level atomic waste at the site and the availability of numerous high-quality natural lands competing for limited Trust Fund dollars as factors in its recommendation.

"There are more than 160 applicants for trust fund dollars, many for spectacular lands including sand dunes, wetlands, riverfront and lake-front property and forests — none of which have nuclear waste issues," said Hugh McDiannid Jr., spokesman for the Michigan Environmental Council. "We ask the board members not to shortchange these applicants to invest in a site that will have dangerous radioactive waste for the foreseeable future, and that has a dubious environmental legacy of contamination."

Although Big Rock has been declared clean by contractors hired by the property's owner, Consumers Energy Co., the environmental group maintains that questions remain as to the residual contamination and radiation, and the thoroughness of the environmental assessment.

A connection between the environmental coalition's lobbying effort and the decision to pull the grant request was not made. And according to Department of Natural Resources officials, the project is not dead.

Mindy Koch, the department's resource management deputy, told the Associated Press that the agency still considers the property a worthwhile acquisition for the state but needs more time to develop its proposal.

Groups opposing the state acquisition of the Big Rock property include: Citizens for Alternatives to Chemical Contamination, Citizens Resistance at Fermi Two, Coalition for a Nuclear-Free Great Lakes, Don't Waste Michigan, Environment Michigan, Friends of the Detroit River, Great Lakes United, HEAL - Hamtramck Environmental Action Team, Home for Peace and Justice Huron Environmental Activists' League (HEAL), IHM Justice Peace and Sustainability Office, Les Cheneaux Watershed Council, Lone Tree Council, Michigan Coalition on the Environment and Jewish Life, Michigan Environmental Council, National Environmental Trust, Nuclear Information and Resource Service, Tittabawassee River Watch, and Wayne State University College Democrats.

Cool Cities survey distributed this week

BY JULIE WITTHOEF
EDITOR

Charlevoix business owners and managers will be given surveys to complete this week to assist with the Cool Cities initiative.

According to Cool Cities coordinator Keith Carey, the survey is the first piece in the important community input portion of the Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns market study.

The survey will be hand-delivered by either Carey or a member of the Cool Cities Process Committee which includes members of the Downtown Development Authority as well as 15 representatives from key community sectors like the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Public Schools and the retail community.

Carey said the survey will take about 15 minutes to complete and will delve into what improvements can be made and the overall strengths and weaknesses of the downtown area.

It is requested that the survey be completed by the third week in December when a Process Committee member will pick it up and will leave a Cool Cities logo sticker behind.

This Process Committee will do a lot of the preliminary leg work for consultants with the firm, HyettPalma who will formulate the Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns market study for Charlevoix and will develop a five-year economic enhancement action strategy.

From now until the end of January, Carey and the committee will conduct business and residential surveys, gather residential, business and parking maps and will look at the history of retail sales tax.

For more information, contact Carey at (231) 547-3270.

Local author has gone Plum Crazy

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Edith Gilbert

Retire at 60? "No way," says local author and etiquette guru, Edith Gilbert. Now in her late 80s, Gilbert, a Charlevoix resident, continues her successful freelance writing career and has most recently burst onto the culinary scene as well.

"I'm just as amazed as everyone else (at the new business challenge). I have so many wonderful friends and neighbors supporting me. That's why I love living in Charlevoix," Gilbert said.

Her latest venture is dubbed "Plum Crazy," a plum conserve product packed with taste and edible possibilities. The conserve, like cranberries, is a perfect plate partner for dishes like

plums and walnuts and is flavored with tastes of orange and lemon.

The history of the tasty treat started in Shang Hai where Gilbert lived for four years in the 1920s. Her mother, Ethel chicken and pork and has been enjoyed by many spooned right out of the jar and relished on its own. Gilbert suggests about two tablespoons per plate.

Wiesinger was given the recipe by an Italian ambassador and harvested plums from her yard to bring the ingredients to her dinner table.

"You can always go back for more," she said. "It really does wonders for the dinner."

Plum Crazy is loaded with fresh

The recipe was revived in the 1960s when Gilbert and her husband, the late Julius Gilbert, moved to their Michigan Avenue home. Right in the Gilberts' front yard stands a single plum tree. The self-described non-baker, non-canner began making the conserve from its fruits and gave it as gifts to friends.

"The only thing I've ever canned is these plums," Gilbert, author of the book, "Easy Entertaining," said. "I always did lots of entertaining, but I was never in the kitchen. I was supervising. I'm not a cook, I'm not a gardener — I'm an entertainer."

This year, the gourmet gift blossomed into a business. This fall, 200 pounds of plums from Friske Orchards in Atwood were processed at a Traverse City area plant. This produced about 200, 16 ounce jars of tasty conserve. Plans are in the works for the product to go into national production next year. Gilbert is hoping for a fabulous September crop of plums.

While she gushed about her conserve business-savvy Gilbert kept her processor hush, hush.

"I don't want to tell everything," she said. "This is business."

Plum Crazy is a partnership Gilbert has pursued with Art and Sue Kleinpell, of Bloomfield Hills, who own and operate King's Lake and Crane. Like Gilbert, Sue Kleinpell's famous gourmet granola started in her kitchen and is now sold locally at Esperance and soon will be retailed at Target stores. Sue is the daughter-in-law of Charlevoix resident Joan MacGillivray.

Gilbert credits Sue for moving the project forward and for the clean, quality design and packaging Plum Crazy wears.

"She's (Sue Kleinpell) a dynamite," Gilbert said. "She came to me last winter to do this. I was highly flattered. And we've been very busy getting this off the ground in less than a year. I couldn't have done it on my own."

Currently, the product sells for $14.95 a jar and is available on-line at www.kingslakeandcrane.com or at Esperance on Charlevoix's north side where she will host a special tasting from noon to 5 p.m. on Dec. 9.

"I'm afraid we are going to sell out," she said.

Depth, speed keys to Rayder basketball success

The Charlevoix varsity boys' basketball team has its sights set on a state championship.

According to head coach, Keith Haske, his 15-member team has a balanced mix of experienced seniors and accomplished juniors.

When asked if he feels this mix is a recipe for success, Haske said, "Absolutely, we've set high goals and I've been really impressed with the work ethic in practice. I'm excited to get the season going."

The Rayder boys' basketball team finished the 2005-2006 season 16-9 losing to Traverse City St. Francis in the regional finals.

"No one is going to run away with it (the Lake Michigan Conference crown). It will be a tough game every night."

are Traverse City St. Francis and Grayling. While these were pinpointed as their top two competitors, Haske said the Lake Michigan Conference is tough across the board.

"No one is going to run away with it. It will be a tough game every night," he said.

The Rayder team opens the season this Friday night, Dec. 8 at Suttons Bay.

Leading the Rayder charge are six seniors that Haske credits with providing team leadership. They are his son, the team's point guard, Tyler Haske, 6 foot 4 inch center, Derek Friske, shooting guard, Mitchell Crandall, post player, Trevor Mays, Dan Swenor and Darron Munson.

While these six make up the team's core, Haske said from player one to player 15, the team has depth.

"Our strengths are our depth, quickness and speed. We're not blessed with anyone really big on the inside so we'll come on quick. I think our speed will carry us this year," he said.

Haske is joined on the sidelines by assistant coaches, Dr. Jim Gels and Bret Erskine.

Volleyball team sets sights on conference crown

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix volleyball coach, Liz Grunch, said her team has the potential to take first place in the Lake Michigan Conference this season.

The team, which ended last season in second place in the conference, includes 11 experienced players, five of which are seniors and the other six are juniors.

"We are returning six starters. We are pretty experienced. I think we'll be very competitive in the conference," said Grunch, who is in her sixth year coaching. "We have the potential to do it but on any given night, anything can happen."

Their greatest rivalry will come from Boyne City and Kalkaska.

When asked who will lead them to victory, Grunch said she can't pinpoint just one player.

"The girls work well together. Each of the seniors and returning players bring certain aspects of leadership. We have a good mix of players with leadership," she said.

Bradley, middle hitters, Sasha Spencley and Bethany Pearson and defensive specialist, Emily Heffling.

Grunch believes her team will be able to lean on this experience to carry them this season.

"We've had a lot of time that we've played together. Hitting will also be one of our strengths," she said.

However, their maturity doesn't guarantee them success. To meet their goals, Grunch said they will need to establish a higher level of competition, improve their quickness on offense and continue to develop their defensive skills.

"We need to raise our level of competition to be competitive with ranked teams in the state," she added.

CHEERLEADING

Cheer team won't be on the sidelines

Cheerleaders pursue strict competitive status

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

There will be one thing missing from the sidelines at Charlevoix High School boys' basketball games this winter — cheerleaders.

For the first time in the program's history, the winter cheerleading team will change traditional cheerleading as we know it. The team is entering its second season as a competitive team and plans to focus its efforts entirely on competing.

This is the first school year the Michigan High School Athletic Association has required all cheerleading teams that wish to compete to become competition cheerleading teams.

Head coach, Erin Nickel said, "Competitive cheerleading will be the new tradition. Doing both (sideline and competitive) is really asking the girls to do two separate sports. It's just too much to ask of them. If we want to be good, we really have to focus on one."

The 14-member varsity team is coming off its first competitive season which Nickel described as "a struggled season." In the three competitions they participated in, the Rayder squad finished on the "lower end of average."

However, Nickel said last year's forgettable season will be a mere memory once the girls hit the mats this year.

"We'll have a strong season. This year, the team is so focused, they want to succeed — and they will because they have the desire," Nickel said.

They are scheduled to compete in about six competitions, the first of which will take place on Dec. 20 at Boyne City High School. The Rayder team will also host a competition on Jan. 17.

"I believe we have a great chance of winning the league championship this year. I'm really excited," Nickel said. "They need tight motions, beautiful jumps and strong stunts and they have all three."

Lake Michigan Conference competitive cheer teams include Charlevoix, East Jordan, Grayling, Elk Rapids, Boyne City and Kalkaska.

The competition includes three rounds of music-free cheerleading. The first is leadership where the girls perform a floor cheer void of stunts. In the second round, precision, their gymnastic skills are tested. The final round, creative, is a 2-and-a-half-minute round with stunts and tumbling included.

This year's team leadership is provided by cheer veterans, Kim Way and Bailey Yenglin.

"The girls look to her (Yenglin) for a lot of guidance. She's a fabulous cheerleader and a great kid," Nickel said.

The only thing that could hold the team back from a Lake Michigan Conference win is its lack of high tumbling skills like back handsprings and back tucks. Nickel described them as a more intermediate tumbling team. However, she suspects her squad of quick learners will pick up the skills needed as the season goes on to take first in the conference.

Good Luck!

SKIING

Ski team will shine in giant slalom event

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Forecasting the future of the Charlevoix-East Jordan ski team this season is a challenge when the northern Michigan slopes are just developing a base.

But coach Sue Miller said if pre-season conditioning and the students' performance in dry land training are any indication of future success, her team should perform well.

"They are a well-rounded group. They come to the team with experience from either being on the team last year or competing at the middle school level," Miller said.

She expects this team to outperform last year's group.

"They seem a little more motivated. They have a good sense of focus," she said.

Overall, last year the girls' team placed sixth in the region and the boys placed fifth.

Leading the Lady Rayder-Red Devil charge will be East Jordan junior, Katherine Rowley. She was the state champion last year in giant slalom and took second in the state in slalom.

The big man on the slopes is East Jordan junior, Mac Brennan who finished in the top 20 at the regional meet in 2006.

"But they both have skiers to back them up. This team has depth," Miller said. "Our greatest strength is the talent each individual brings to the team."

Miller said their ultimate goal is to qualify for the state finals as a team, but her more immediate aim is for the students to have fun and improve over the course of the year.

Their first Lake Michigan Conference meet will take place on Jan. 4. The conference includes Charlevoix-East Jordan, Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Traverse City St. Francis, Grayling and Elk Rapids.

"We have a very strong conference," Miller said.

The ski teams compete in two events at each meet — slalom and giant slalom. Miller said her pre-season prediction is that both teams will excel in the giant slalom event.

"They don't do much slalom in middle school so we'll have to get them some experience. So, right now, I'd say our forte will be giant slalom," she said.

Their edge will likely be their speed.

"We have a good group of athletes," Miller said of her team.

The one thing that threatens their season is the warm weather. Miller said their dry land training which is focused on agility, speed and balance is a useful tool in preparing for the slopes, but the team needs consistent snow to train. In the past, they have hit the slopes by now. They practice at Boyne Mountain.

The team includes 24 students, 12 are on the girls' team and 12 are on the boys' team. Of the 12 girls, seven are from East Jordan High School and five are from Charlevoix High School. Of the 12 boys, eight are from Charlevoix High School and four are from East Jordan.

Wrestling objectives: Stay healthy, win conference

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Craig Golovich said if his wrestling team stays healthy this year they should be able to take first place in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"If they're not healthy, they just can't compete," said Golovich who is in his fifth year coaching the Rayder varsity wrestling team.

Last year, he lost one of his key wrestlers to injury. His nephew, Nathan Golovich, a junior wrestling in the 145-pound weight class, returns this season after a shoulder injury that ended his season early last year.

The team includes 19 wrestlers at this time. Golovich is hoping to pick up at least two more — one to fill the 215-pound wrestling slot and another for the 189-pound division.

Providing the team's top competitive edge will be senior, Nick Gotshall, junior, Nathan Golovich and sophomore, Mat Golovich. Mat Golovich, who is also coach Golovich's nephew, broke the school record last year for the 112-pound weight class for the most varsity wins. This year he's wrestling at 119 pounds.

Coach Golovich expects his team's edge will be their training.

"I don't think there's a sport in this town that works harder than us. We practice six minutes full tilt — they'll be in condition," he said.

While his team's edge is their conditioning, their weakness will be the inexperienced wrestlers.

"The inexperienced guys will have to step up and wrestle at the varsity level. We'll have freshmen facing seniors and that's tough," coach Golovich said.

They ended the 2005-2006 season in second place in the Lake Michigan Conference. As a team they lost in the first round of districts to a tough Rogers City team that went on to compete for the state title. Two individual players went on to the state championship, class of 2006 wrestlers, Jed Daman and Jeff Golovich.

"They were two big leaders, but you have to move on," coach Golovich said.

The Rayder grapplers got their first taste of competition on Nov. 30 in Onaway when they faced both Onaway and Mancelona high schools.

It pays to belong.

State buy of Big Rock not dead

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

A Department of Natural Resources request to acquire more than 400 acres of Big Rock Point was withdrawn from a pile of more than 162 requests for funding from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Board totaling $63 million.

However, said Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, critics of the plan had nothing to do with the request withdrawal and the DNR will likely reapply for the $3 million next year.

"The DNR and (CMS Energy Corp.) have been discussing this issue...but they didn't really have a definitive agreement...because of that uncertainty, the (DNR) decided to withdraw their request for funding," Bailey said. "The (DNR) is still actively applying for federal funding. There are two applications going through that process and the (DNR) has indicated their intention to go back before the trust fund board in the coming year for that funding."

During their Dec. 6 meeting, the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Board recommended 61 projects to the governor at a cost of $36,076,075.

Some of the larger acquisition grant approvals included $2.6 million for Big Rock, page 3

Community members and state and local officials gathered to officially celebrate the state of the Charlevoix marina and East Park renovation projects at a ground-breaking ceremony on Dec. 8 in East Park. Attendees strained to visualize boats and a park packed with tourists when temperatures were in the 30s. (Above) Gary Stutzman, representing the Charlevoix Community Band, Representative Kevin Elsenheimer, mayor Norman Carlson Jr., city manager Mike Wiesner and Downtown Development Authority chairman Hugh Mason did the honors of digging in, each collecting a gold shovel full of snow.

Public gathers to celebrate projects

A crowd gathered one last time in downtown Charlevoix's East Park before both the park and marina are transformed.

With freezing temperatures and snow-covered terrain, it was difficult to envision the summer hustle and bustle that will soon populate the renovated East Park and marina at the projects' Dec. 8 ground-breaking ceremony.

"We have one of the best ports on the Great Lakes, and now we'll finally have the best facilities to go along with it," event emcee, mayor Norman Carlson Jr., said.

Hugh Mason, chairman of the Downtown Development Authority, spoke to state and local officials as well as community residents in attendance. "We've (the Downtown Development Authority) always felt East Park is our jewel — we didn't touch it. Finally we've decided East Park is getting tired. It needs help, it needs renovation. It took five years to plan — things move slowly in northern Michigan — but when we get done, hopefully we'll have renewed our jewel in Charlevoix."

said Mason, who has been a member of the Downtown Development Authority since its inception in 1982.

The Downtown Development Authority will fund 25 percent of the marina project as well as most of the $4.7 million East Park project. The state agency Waterways Commission, has agreed to fund $8.2 million of lion for a 640-acre conservation easement in Cheboygan County and $2.09 million for 172 acres in Antrim County.

The Little Traverse Conservancy acts as a facilitator between CMS and the DNR. "To bring about what the public has almost unanimously called for, which is the public acquisition of the Big Rock Point property."

No official price tag has been attached to the property, Bailey said. "But $20 million is (a) ballpark figure. It's not a figure anyone is saying is absolute."

CMS and the DNR negotiate, but Bailey said, "I have been told the company does have offers from developers."

People like Kevin Kamps, a nuclear waste specialist, aren't concerned with funding the project.

In his report, "Say Yes to Michigan, Say No to the Plutonium State Park," Kamps claims risks abound on the Big Rock property as, "Emphasized by the presence of 441 bundles (nearly 64 tons) of highly radioactive nuclear fuel rods stored in eight concrete and steel silos on a concrete pad surrounded by fencing, heavily armed security personnel, and guard dogs. Each of the eight casks at Big Rock contains about 240 times the long-lasting radioactivity released by the Hiroshima atomic bomb. Release of even a fraction of the contents of a single cask would be disastrous."

In the nearly 12,000 word report, Kamps stated, "The development of a state park is incongruous with a potentially catastrophic terrorist target. Inviting large numbers of families and children into close proximity to high-level radioactive waste for public recreation makes no sense."

Bailey said the only organized opposition to the proposal comes from anti-nuke groups in Lansing, Washington D.C. and St. Louis. "They raised a hunch of questions that are not really arguments on the safety of the site," Bailey said. "We believe all of those questions will be addressed adequately when the (Nuclear Regulatory Commission) releases their final report of the site expected in the first quarter of 2007."

Local environmentalist, Joanne Beemon, may disdain nuclear energy, but fears using the terror card will ensure Big Rock never becomes a public property.

Shop Charlevoix and give a community gift

EDITORIAL

There is something about twinkling lights that make the holidays even more magical.

While Charlevoix isn't known as a holiday shopper's destination, it should be. Merchants and workers with the City of Charlevoix have taken the time to deck their windows, building facades and downtown trees for the season.

Christmas decorations can transform even the most quiet downtown into a warm and life-filled place to be during the holidays and that is why we want to thank all the merchants that have decorated windows, hung lights or trimmed in other ways.

While a thank-you in writing is a nice expression, the thank-you these merchants deserve is our business. So, as you continue to attack your shopping list, check off items you can look for downtown and shop Charlevoix.

Make a concerted effort to spend more money and time in small, independently owned businesses instead of the Targets and Wal-Marts of the world. We know the big stores tend to have lower prices, more choices and flexible hours but beware of the cost of convenience. We commonly hear readers complain about empty storefronts, but if the community isn't helping meet the business sector's needs, how can the businesses meet ours?

The businesses that are open offer personal customer service, employees with product knowledge, unique items and in some cases even free gift wrapping.

While your shopping experience is bound to be more rewarding when you shop hometown stores, the best part is these businesses keep money in Charlevoix not stored in the vaults at corporate headquarters.

Oh Christmas tree, oh Christmas tree

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

This story begins many years ago when two families blended into one and celebrated their first Christmas together. The banner surrounding the purchase of a Christmas tree brought about movement heard from the rooftops. After agreeing on the size and type of tree, the family wrestled with placing it into its stand. The joy continued with numerous discussions regarding the type of lighting that should encase this flora and where the holiday décor should find its resting place.

The following year, an artificial tree entered this home and remained there for the next 25 years. It brought with it fewer discussions and the absence of pine needles that usually found their way into someone's hair foot months after the holiday had passed. The years moved quickly and the pretend tree began to bend as if it needed its own walker to remain steady. Time had erased the memory of that first Christmas — similar to how we forget about the pain of childbirth. Out with the old and in with the new. The adventure of bringing home the aroma of real pine versus that which comes from an aerosol can, would soon be taking place.

There she stood, a stately beautiful site, boughs beckoning to come home with us.

Carefully bound with twine she looked sleek and performed well as a spoiler while trussed to the roof of the car. She found her new home in the living room where we would soon begin the delicate dance of placing it into the over 20-year-old tree stand. The weight of the tree began to bend the metal. Maybe it was the age of the stand but I think it had more to do with the size of the tree going into it. "Houston we have a problem." Still forging ahead with the optimism of school kids we delicately balanced the tree between fine furnishings and collected art work.

Next came the cutting of the twine. The scene was reminiscent of an "I Love Lucy" rerun. Branches flew grasping their newfound freedom. Vases plummeted from their place of safety, lamps overturned, and somewhere in the confusion I heard my husband yell, "My eye, my eye."

Yes, the tree that looked so tall and slender actually rounded out to an additional 5 feet with the wing span of a condor. The living room took on the appearance of something that would be granted disaster funds. I ventured that soon afterwards a small gray creature resembling a mouse joined the mayhem from his entrance hidden deep in balsam fir. Things grew tense as I happily reported, "Martha Stewart trims the bottom of her tree with a sharp knife so it can get a fresh drink daily." I turned in time to see my husband happily grasp a knife.

Fast forward a couple of hours and our beautiful tree is significantly trimmed. The extra boughs created a smaller tree which carefully graces the entryway. As for the original tree — it's bungee corded to the front porch. She's all decked out in LED lights and a few bows. When asked why our tree is not in the house we respond, "Allergies."

From our home to yours, merry Christmas to all and to all happy tree trimming.

SUPPORT TERM LIMITS
Editor:

As we travel down the road of life, most of us will be an employee and an employer. As an employee we are expected to do the job and we expect to be paid a fair wage when the job is completed. As an employer, we expect the job to be completed in a timely manner and to pay a fair wage for the time actually worked.

Should your employee leave the job before it's completed, in order to look for the next job, and after returning and completing the job, bills you for the total hours including the hours spent looking for the next job, you probably would question the billing, pay for the hours actually worked and never hire that person again.

We the people of the United States are all employers and those who work in our governments, local, state and federal, are our employees. Our representatives in the House and Senate are paying themselves around $160,000 a year, plus all the extra perks and pensions, while working about 135 days per year, making about $1,200 a day. It is estimated that incumbents use half of their working days on the campaign trail to ensure re-election to protect their political careers.

As employers we have the power to demand our legislators give us all the hours we are paying for or we go to the ballot box and fire them. Term limits would eliminate the campaigning by incumbents, special interest money and control by lobbyists, big pensions and fact finding trips all over the world at taxpayer expense. Of course, no politician would vote for term limits and kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, so we the people can practice term limits at the ballot box.

Most politicians are like diapers that should be changed often and usually for the same reason. The price of liberty is eternal vigilance. We must be vigilant when placing our trust. It takes persistence and a demonstration of moral and intestinal fortitude on our part. The choice is ours.

CHARLEVOIX POINTE FITS WITH SURROUNDING USES

Editor:

Many letters have been published about the property at 115 Pine River Lane in Charlevoix. I feel that Pine River Lane, formerly River Street, is no longer quiet and residential. It has been both residential and commercial since before I was born. The Fountain City House, Beach Hotel, Argo Mill and Fochtman's, all have been replaced by newer business establishments.

People will still be able to walk down the street and enjoy the gorgeous sunsets, and see boats coming and going, fish from the pier.

It has been very difficult to decide to sell the property that has been in the Campbell family for over 100 years. It is my wish that what is built there will enhance the beauty and charm of our town and attract visitors who will be happy there. They can walk downtown and shop and enjoy the view.

Every attempt was made to comply with the codes and laws of the city.

Library collects over 164,000 pennies

Charlevoix library patrons really came through with flying colors, filling the coffers with pennies from heaven over the past year.

The library put out a penny box to collect pennies for the capital campaign for the new library building. A total of 164,047 pennies were collected. If the pennies were laid out in a flat line, the line of pennies would stretch over half a mile, or wrap around the library property twice.

"We could have carpeted the Youth Activity Center with all our pennies," said Val Meyerson, library director.

The pennies weighed in at approximately 1,025 pounds and had a value of $1,640.47.

For fun penny facts visit the Mega Penny Project at: www.kokogiak.com/megapenny/1.asp.

The penny contributions gave all community members a chance to contribute to the library's capital campaign. The funds were used to help enhance the finishes throughout the library. The new Public Library opened its doors at 220 West Clinton St. on Sept. 25 with over 600 patrons coming through the doors to take a look at the newly renovated "old middle school." They were awed by the spectacular look and feel of the new interior, which has been compared to a "real big city library." New programs are also a part of the new library with many additions to youth, adult and family events.

According to Meyerson, so far the response has been tremendous. Circulation has more than doubled since the opening and many new patrons are now visiting the library to take advantage of the many opportunities for learning and information gathering. The community rooms and quiet reading seem to be just what was needed in Charlevoix.

"Thanks to everyone who dropped pennies (and other coins and bills) in the box.

You have helped create a library that we can all be proud of and enjoy for many years to come," Meyerson said.

Trevor Mays named finalist in Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition

Trevor Mays

Trevor Mays, a senior at Charlevoix High School, has qualified as a finalist in the 50th Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. Part one was a multiple-choice exam with 40 problems given at 250 high schools throughout Michigan on Oct. 11.

The finalists competed in part two on Dec. 6. This exam consisted of five challenging problems to which the students must provide written explanations for their claims and mathematical proofs of their results. Oakland University in Rochester will host a grading session in January to score the students' work on part two. Mathematicians from about 70 colleges and universities that comprise the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America will volunteer their time and expertise toward this annual project of the Michigan section.

The students with the top 100 scores on the two parts will be invited to an awards day program next February at Oakland University. The top 50 will be presented with scholarships ranging from the bronze awards of $250 to $2,600 for the first place gold medalist who will be designated the Ford Scholar in recognition of the donation of this award by Ford Motor Company.

Bob Timms is in the HR hot seat

City council to consider hiring a human resources manager

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

A controversial proposal Charlevoix City Council has grappled with for almost a year is back on the table.

First ward councilman Boh Timms was the man behind council's decision in February to overturn its authorization to hire a human resources manager who would double as an airport manager.

He said he needed more information before adding another management position to the city's staff. The proposed wage was $42,214 with fringe benefits costing $29,972.

Then, in June, city council authorized an audit by the Michigan Municipal League focused on the role a human resources director would play for the city.

The findings of the study, which cost about $6,900, support the claim of city manager's assistant Linda Weller, that the city needs a human resources director.

"Given the size and complexity of the City of Charlevoix's organization, staffing a human resources position at a minimum of half-time is appropriate," Heather Van Poucker, the study's author, states.

Weller, who has worked for the city since 1978, is currently in charge of day-to-day personnel issues but has told city council that her other duties make it impossible for her to appropriately address the human resources role.

"She's done a commendable job handling HR thus far but has wisely concluded that the 'catch as catch can' approach is insufficient and she is not the appropriate person for the work. It is not advisable to ignore an employee's plea for help and acknowledgment that he/she is performing duties for which he/she is not equipped," Van Poucker states.

While the Michigan Municipal League study is saying "yes" to a new human resources manager, three members of city council will need some convincing.

Newly elected first ward councilman, Lyle Gennett, said, "Right now I personally don't think it would be wise to spend the money. I feel that the city manager makes decisions and will continue making decisions. It's his job and right now we need to watch our backs and he can do it."

"I don't think it will bring morale up at city hall or benefit the workers at this point in time. We need to pat the workers on the back and not bring someone in to make matters worse. Right now I can't see where it would be a good thing."

His apprehension is shared with second ward councilman, Gene Beer, and third ward council member, Shirley Gihson.

"I look at surrounding areas and the people that are currently employing HR people and there's not many, including Charlevoix County," Beer said.

He said he would support hiring a part-time human resources director and a part-time airport manager but doesn't want to create another full-time management position.

Third ward councilman, Sherm Chamberlain, and second ward councilman, Greg Stevens, both approve of filling the joint, full-time position.

With these five votes fairly locked, the power vote once again lies with Timms.

He said part of him sides with the Beer camp, but if someone puts a motion on the table to hire a joint human resources and airport manager, he doesn't know which way he'll vote.

"I still think if we could get someone from the outside to come in part-time we would be better off as far as paying money out. That's what I would like to avoid — someone with all the fringes hanging on. Part-time gets down to a manageable amount. But it would be helpful to have someone. So, I really can't say (how I will vote)," Timms said.

Carlson said if a motion to hire a joint human resources and airport manager is put on the table at council's Dec. 18 meeting and Timms joins Chamberlain and Stevens in supporting the motion, he'll be the deciding vote.

"I don't know where we are going to go, it's up to council but if it comes down to a tie I will break it and vote for it," Carlson said. "I've talked to all the department heads and they all said they want it to help keep up on safety issues, help with personnel files (etc.). It's not a perfect system but I think it's a better system."

The city currently employs 50 full-time staff members, 34 of which are affiliated with one of two unions as well as employing 75 seasonal workers. In 2005 the city issued 191 W-2s.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER 15

Inmates face the holidays behind bars

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Concrete, cold steel, armed guards and mistletoe — it must be Christmas at the Charlevoix County Jail.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater, approximately 60 inmates will celebrate the holidays behind bars in Charlevoix.

"This year we're going to have a local band who's volunteered to come in and put on an hour program of Christmas and folk music. It's going to be a topnotch presentation for the prisoners," Lasater said.

Several churches also come every year to sing Christmas songs, bring treats and sermonize.

"The Horton Bay United Methodist Church (and Salvation Army of Petoskey) get a list from me every year of prisoners who have children and they (church members) buy a gift for the children and the prisoner signs it as if they secured it," Lasater said. "Some of them (children) are very shy about (coming to the jail), but the majority are just happy to see dad or mom, and knowing there's gifts that they're going to get."

He added, "I think it's just a reflection of the community that the community cares. As you can see, all of these people that are doing something are just people in the community. A jail is to me, a mirror of the community."

Lasater said his most reliable trustees also get a special treat during the holidays.

"If they are an exceptional trustee, I go to the judge and request that they get an eight-hour leave from jail to go home with their family, but that's only those that are very trustworthy," he said.

Lasater said violent prisoners aren't allowed to be trustees, but he still tries to work for rehabilitation as opposed to punishment.

"I have the philosophy — just because you got into trouble once doesn't mean you're a criminal or a bad person," he said. "I try to keep that in mind and I instruct my staff that, when inmates leave, we may not have helped them, but we don't want them to be any worse off than when they came."

He added, "Some people are just not accepting to being helped."

So what is life like on the other side of the bars? Inmate, Nicole Rock, a trustee scheduled for release on Monday, Dec. 11, said during a Dec. 6 interview that she couldn't wait to get home.

"I spent Thanksgiving, Halloween and one of my daughters' birthdays in jail and I missed their first day of school," she said. "It sucked a lot."

The mother of three said she became hooked on painkillers while suffering with sciatic nerve pain. She served nearly five months in jail after writing bad checks to support her prescription drug habit.

"I've never been in trouble in my whole entire life, but once I got hooked on those pills it wasn't going anywhere," Rock said. "Now, I've had five clean months under my belt. This is probably the only thing that would have helped me at the time."

Doing things like making the holidays as pleasant as they can be in a jail house have yielded what Lasater referred to as, "Many, many" success stories.

"There is a thread through all of them. That thread is, 'Sheriff, this is probably the best thing that happened to me. It got my attention. It brought me down to reality,'" he said.

Minutes later Rock confided, "Now that it's almost over, I can say this is probably the best thing that's ever happened to me. I got sentenced, and at first I was really upset, but I've seen the people who are in here who can't turn their lives around."

She added, "I've seen people come back four or five times in the five months I've been here."

As one of nine family members since the early 1800s to be sheriff, Lasater said his 29 years as sheriff have taught him a lot.

"Even though they are incarcerated, I treat people like I would want to be treated," he said. "I usually come in on Christmas just to make sure everything's OK and the other thing we do is we try to give (inmates) a very decent meal at Christmas time. (The) cooks go out of their way."

He added, "Then, on Christmas day, those that have families we let have a contact visit with their family and let them give the gifts to their children."

While there are no state regulations mandating special treatment of prisoners during the holidays, Lasater said it is just the right thing to do.

"I see that (inmates) look upon us as being human and doing our best to treat them and take care of them, not just their physical needs, but their emotional needs and that of their families," he said. "It's still a jail. It's not a social club. We have to have rules and regulations, maintain security."

So what's your favorite Christmas memory?

Rock said it was when she was 7 years old and her grandparents picked her up and took her to Lansing.

"I remember my mom didn't have much money and we lived in a trailer park and she got me a Cahbage Patch," she said. "That was when they first came out and they were like $40. It was the highest deal because I just didn't get stuff like that."

Lasater said his fond holiday thoughts are from when he lived in Arkansas.

"My father was killed in World War II, so I lived with my mother and grandmother and things were very tough financially," he said. "But, I had an uncle who lived not too far from my hometown and he always came through with a big gift from a bicycle to a BB gun. I won't forget uncle Robert. He was always kind of that Santa Claus that came in on Christmas day."

He added, "And, because my Christmases were kind of tight at times, when I had my three children I think I overdid it to make sure they had great holiday memories."

Lasater said, one Christmas, he put sleigh tracks and footprints in the snow to dispel the doubts of his youngsters.

Rock said the events of this year will leave her with little to give her daughters, "But I don't really think they'll be too concerned with that this year. I love them (children) very much and they're going to help me not get into trouble again."

Snowmobilers enjoy link to Cheboygan

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The beginning of the winter sports season was marked with large amounts of snow and the re-opening of 11 miles of snowmobile trail.

While 35 mph speed limits and strict hours of operation (8 a.m. to midnight) have been enacted, snowmobile riders can now traverse from Charlevoix to Cheboygan without putting their sled on a trailer.

"Snowmobilers had given up access to the trail and the state promised to find an alternate route," said president of the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club, Kevin Wright.

Following 10 years of deliberation, the state was unable to find an alternative route and decided earlier this fall to reopen the trail. The 11-mile section runs between M-27 and Grandview Beach Road.

"For myself, a couple hundred miles a day is not a big deal at all, so going from Charlevoix to Cheboygan is feasible," Wright said. "To get to that area from Charlevoix you go down to East Jordan then towards Elmira and on towards Grayling, then north out of Grayling to Indian River and then on to Cheboygan."

He added, "It's good for a day trip or an overnighter."

Maps of snowmobile trails are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Over $1 billion in revenue is generated annually from the owners of nearly 400,000 snowmobiles registered and ridden on more than 6,200 miles of trails in Michigan according to the DNR.

"A promise was made 10 years ago to the people of northern Michigan, and it's about time the state kept its word," stated Representative, Kevin Elsenheimer in a DNR press release.

"Michigan has needed efforts to boost the economy for years, and this trail project has been there the whole time," Senator Jason Allen further stated in the release. "With tourism as one of the state's top industries, this opportunity for area communities and the people who enjoy snowmobiling is an excellent fit."

A study on the impact of allowing snowmobiles on the formerly non-motorized trail will be conducted by the DNR in 2008.

"The Charlevoix Snowmobile Club section of the trail runs from Charlevoix to East Jordan — as members of the Jordan Valley Trail Council, we're responsible for approximately 160 miles of trail," Wright said. "Our club is responsible for 18-20 miles of that trail."

Wright said maintaining navigational aids on the trail system is a year-round job.

"We do all the maintenance — the brushing, grooming and all the things possible to make the trail passable by the groomer. And, we make sure the landowners around the trail are satisfied. We probably have 80 to 100 hours in easy," Wright said. "We put up trail signs at the beginning of the season and at the end of the season we take them down. Posting signs so everyone knows where they're going and keeping them where they should be (off private property) involves a lot of work."

He added, "There's a lot of signs in that 18 to 20-mile stretch."

While the image of the sport is often marred by the misbehavior of some, Wright said his organization works hard to ensure responsible riding.

Commission on Aging saves for boomers

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Some locals want to know what the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is doing with a fund balance of more than $2 million.

According to Commission on Aging director, Sue Bergmann, the commission's sizable rainy day fund is the result of responsible use of tax dollars and will be used for the ever-increasing demand for services to local seniors.

"Our plans (for the fund balance) are for the baby boomers up-and-coming and the increase in services," Bergmann said.

Commission on Aging board member, Joan Blanchard, added, "And one of the things we were concerned with was, what if the millage didn't go through one year? This (fund balance) would ensure that we'd have enough to operate on for a year-and-a-half until the next vote."

She added that, contrary to reports in the Nov. 22 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, while the Commission on Aging board may eventually consider rolling the millage back a few percentage points depending on need, eliminating the senior millage was never a consideration.

"Our plans (for the over $2 million fund balance) are for the baby boomers up-and-coming and the increase in services."

Sue Bergmann
DIRECTOR, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY COMMISSION ON AGING

Some of the services provided by the Commission on Aging include: Alzheimer support groups, congregate and delivered meals, Sunday dinners, activities such as tai chi, line dancing and exercise classes, homemaker services, in-home respite, prescription insurance assistance, medication management, in-home foot care clinics, tax preparation assistance, adult day services, lawn care and snow removal.

Decades ago, Bergmann said, when families tended to be larger, with multiple generations closer to one another, the elderly didn't have as much trouble getting help.

"Now they kind of survive on their own," she said. "Plus, there were cuts to Medicare in 1999 and 2000 which dropped what services are covered."

Charlevoix resident and retired nurse, Suzanne Miller, has been using the Commission on Aging's respite care service for nearly a year.

"I'm very satisfied with the care. It means a great deal to me because I don't like to leave my husband home alone for any great length of time," she said.

A nurse's aide stays with Miller's husband, who is bedridden, because Miller has no family in the immediate area.

"I don't have anybody up here who I can ask to do that," she said. "I didn't have any problems when I went down there (Commission on Aging) to get somebody to stay with him. I would definitely recommend this (service) to other people."

She added, "Home health care in Charlevoix is tremendous. We have wonderful nurses and people who take care of people. They are truly remarkable people."

The Commission on Aging provided nearly 15,000 congregate meals and over 16,000 home delivered meals this year.

"And that number is increasing," Bergmann said. "We're trying to provide services and prepare for the baby boomers. We get five or six referrals a day."

Bergmann said the baby boomers are more demanding of services because, "They are more aware of what services are available because they're taking care of their parents. That's one reason why we reserved some monies, because we knew that demand was going to be there and it's happening now."

She added, "We have an increase in services requested for in-home care as well as activities. They want more exercise classes. They want more things that the young seniors like."

While the demand for services in Charlevoix is great, Bergmann said Beaver Island is not neglected.

"There is a staff of four on Beaver Island," she said. "It's a whole different scope of programs there, but it's designed to meet (seniors') needs."

Commission board member, Margo Johnson, said all the programs available on the mainland are offered to islanders.

A large increase in Commission on Aging spending will come from the implementation of three full kitchens at senior centers around the county.

"We've never had a year of three full kitchens operating," Bergmann said. "They'll cost an extra $150,000 or $100,000 at least."

For those who claim the Commission on Aging's fund balance is larger than it should be, Johnson said, "Our budgets are due in August. We may be able to extrapolate next year based on our budget and spending whether the millage amount is still appropriate. Some of it gets rolled back automatically by Headlee (Amendment), but on top of that, the board could decide to roll it back a little more."

She added, "We're sensitive to the fact that everybody pays these taxes and they're big, they're steep and some of the younger people struggle to pay the taxes. Just because we're the COA and dedicated to seniors doesn't mean we're not tax sensitive."

The adult day center in East Jordan now has a capacity of 16 people with a cost of approximately $25 a day.

"Adult day services is a big program that people might use if you're taking care of your parents (suffering from dementia or Alzheimer's) and trying to work and it's just not safe anymore for them to stay home alone. We're open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and they can take a transit bus for a dollar each way," Bergmann said. "For six to eight hours of care, it's very inexpensive."

Elderly explore services provided by the COA through senior millage

The adult day center is subsidized using millage money.

The Commission on Aging also has support groups and Medicare part D counseling to help seniors decide which plan is best for them — seniors have until Dec. 31 to enroll in Medicare part D.

"There are over 42 plans to choose from," Bergmann said. "People were overwhelmed with this information and didn't know how to decipher it."

Despite the stigma sometimes attached to asking for help, Johnson said seniors should take advantage of the services.

"Make the decision and get the help while you can make the decision, instead of having it made for you because you've lost the mental or physical capacity," Johnson said.

"The objective of these services is to keep them in their home and their surroundings as long as possible for their own emotional and mental health and to maintain their independence and self-esteem."

Under-utilized programs include the lawn care and snow removal program wherein seniors hire a company of their choice and are reimbursed partial cost of the service based on a sliding scale.

Commission members intend to create a committee of seniors to ensure the Commission on Aging is fulfilling their obligation. In addition, a survey will be circulated after the first of the year so local elderly can opine on the services they receive.

While the county's official senior center is located in East Jordan, there are centers in Charlevoix and Boyne City. Since 1976, the commission has provided services to seniors all over Charlevoix County and Beaver Island. Two injured in Dec. 7 crash near LexaLite

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating a two-vehicle crash that took place at around 3 p.m. on Dec. 7 on U.S. 31 in Hayes Township.

Ronald E. Dinger, 60, of Traverse City pulled out of the LexaLite International driveway onto U.S. 31 in a tractor/trailer owned by Grand Traverse Container.

Dinger said he failed to see a Honda-driven by Jason Simpson, 27, of Charlevoix who was approaching from the south, due to blowing snow. The Simpson vehicle struck the Volvo tractor in the cab area. Another tractor/trailer containing furniture was approaching from the south and that driver drove off the roadway to avoid the vehicles crashed in the road in front of him.

Simpson was removed from his vehicle by the Charlevoix City Fire Department Rescue Jaws unit.

Dinger and Simpson were both transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix City Ambulance for injuries.

The Sheriff's Office was assisted by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, the Charlevoix County Road Commission, the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post and Conway Towing.

Traffic on U.S. 31 was re-routed for almost two hours.

Ministerial Association steers chaplain program

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

A new outreach program looks to address the pain and stress of tragedy for community members and emergency workers.

Local religious leaders in the Charlevoix Ministerial Association have united to establish a Charlevoix County Chaplain Program.

"Community healing—that's the main goal," Pastor Michael Arp from Family of Faith Church, said of the proposed program.

Pastors in the association meet regularly to pray for issues impacting local residents. At an Aug. 14 organizational meeting they brainstormed ways they could improve the community.

Arp mentioned a successful chaplain program he learned of in Saginaw and recommended it be locally instituted through the Ministerial Association.

"I heard about the impact it has—all the different testimonies from firefighters and police officers. I thought, we don't have anything for our officers," Arp said. "The timing is right. I'm really excited about the prospect of ministering to the community through emergencies."

In the case of a car accident resulting in death, under the chaplain model, a volunteer would accompany a police officer to the victim's home to assist in death notification.

"We frequently deal with very tragic situations. That's really stressful for myself and the officers. Sometimes we need someone to share with. To help us regain our composure," Charlevoix County Sheriff, George Lasater, said of the program's benefit.

The Saginaw program was started by Richard Popard 15 years ago.

In November, Popard came to Charlevoix and delivered a presentation. Over 25 people, including Sheriff Lasater, attended. Other members of the local law enforcement community and ministerial association were also present.

Arp said the local chaplain program can operate on various levels including hospice, fire, emergency personnel, jail ministry and hospital outreach.

"Who do they unload on, who ministers to them? We can do that. And that's a wonderful ministry," Arp said.

He explained that to become a commissioned chaplain interested persons must take a 40-hour training course through a Chaplain Commission in Cleveland, Tenn. The Chaplain Commission is an interdenominational group organized through the Church of God. They will provide five, one-week courses this winter in Charlevoix to volunteers at a cost of $100 per course.

The course covers relevant subjects like recognizing post traumatic stress disorder, helping people through the five steps of grief and working in a death notification situation.

Arp is hoping to have about 15 commissioned chaplains work the program. Chaplains involved will be on-call for week-long stints and will provide the service free of charge.

The program will be steered by Arp, Pastor Dan Gilmore with the Church of the Nazarene and Pastor Pete Aronson with Safe Harbor Baptist Church. However, the focus will not be religious.

"This isn't about building churches, this is about helping people. We will be there for the therapy of the people. We are there to be a comfort. This is not a denominational thing at all," Arp said.

The goal is to have an operational Charlevoix County Chaplain Program in place by summer 2007.

At some point, Arp said, they would like to extend into Antrim and Emmet counties as well.

"The possibilities are really endless because the need is. It's an ongoing need," Arp said.

For more information or to become a commissioned chaplain, call Pastor Michael Arp at (231) 547-4221.

Two open seats on board are now being contested by two candidates: Dan Spensley and Christine Michael. The incumbent was 44 last year and has been on the board for the past eight years and is looking forward to hopefully serving another four years. I feel I can still offer some experience in some areas for the district, he said. The building and its exterior was and he has a lot of love for the building. TEEN SCENE inside the halls

Exchange student spends holidays far from home

BY KIMBERLY WAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Christmas season usually means time spent with family, but what happens if your family is halfway around the world?

Charlevoix High School junior class foreign exchange student, Abduljalil Marafi, is thousands of miles away from his family in Kuwait and handling it quite well.

"I talk to my family every day," said Marafi. "It's not as hard as I had imagined it would be."

Back home, Marafi celebrates the Islamic Eid with his family. During the three-day festivity, the first day is spent giving and receiving cash gifts from family members. The second, feasting at his aunt's house. And the third, hanging out with his friends at the local mall.

"(Eid) isn't very different than Christmas," said Marafi. "We decorate trees, spend time with family, and eat all day just like (Americans)."

Typical presents aren't given during this holiday, however. Instead of toys wrapped in bright paper, children receive money from their older family members. In place of turkey and mashed potatoes, the main course at Marafi's family dinner is orange rice and chicken, also known as machahoos.

"(My family) gathers at my aunt's house," Marafi commented, "and my grandma makes machahoos every Eid."

When asked if he would be celebrating Christmas with his host family, Marafi said that he would certainly be doing so. He added that it isn't that big of a change, and it's not offensive to his religion in any way.

Abduljalil Marafi

"I'll be sending my friends back home a present, but I'm not sure how big of a cash gift I'll be able to send to my family members," Marafi added laughingly.

Kimberly Way is the writer and coordinator of Teen Scene. This page will appear the second Wednesday of the month in the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by e-mail at way_kim@hotmail.com.

Businesses team up in Change for Charity

Blarney Castle Oil and Propane and MacDonald Garber Broadcasting Inc. have teamed up to assist charities this holiday season.

Through "Change for Charity," the two organizations hope to raise funds for local charitable causes.

From Dec. 1 through Dec. 31, Change for Charity collection containers will be placed at check-out counters at 46 EZ Mart locations in northern Michigan including Charlevoix EZ Mart and Charlevoix North EZ Mart.

Customers can deposit their spare change in the containers, and the monies collected will be used to help needy families and charitable organizations in Northern Michigan. After Dec. 31, a board of directors will meet to review the amount collected and to determine how the funds will be distributed.

Blarney Castle Oil and Propane and MacDonald Garber Broadcasting, Inc., share an interest in and a commitment to their communities. Both organizations are family-owned and operated. Blarney Castle is a third generation family business since 1936, with headquarters in Bear Lake with EZ Mart locations throughout northern Michigan.

MacDonald Garber Broadcasting and its radio stations — WKHQ, WLXT, WMBN, WMKT, WLXX, WATT, WKAD — are similarly family-owned and have been in northern Michigan for over 20 years.

Cellular One honors local Radio Shack

Radio Shack of Charlevoix was recently named the Top Dealer of the Quarter by Cellular One from Dobson Cellular Systems. The store is part of Cellular One's network of authorized dealers, which include more than 120 agents throughout Michigan.

Radio Shack is located at 6520 M-66 in the Kmart Plaza. The business opened in 1985 and is owned and operated by Steve Lenhart of Charlevoix. The local store is part of a family-owned business — B & L Sound, which includes Radio Shack retail centers in Petoskey — which opened in 1975 and is owned by Steve's sister, Mary Edger, and Boyne City — established in 1990 and owned by Steve's brother, Larry Lenhart. "We are very happy to earn this recognition," Steve said. "It is and has always been the goal of my staff and myself to provide the very best products and services to the community that we serve. Our business was built on customer service and we are proud to represent Cellular One."

That commitment to service is what helped Charlevoix's Radio Shack earn top honors out of more than 20 Cellular One authorized dealers in northwestern Michigan.

"Steve and his staff in Charlevoix have done an outstanding job," said Lori Pascoe, Cellular One's indirect sales manager in northwest Michigan. "Along with the Radio Shack stores in Petoskey and Boyne City, they are testament to our belief that success is a direct result of your commitment to meeting the needs of your community."

Happy campers enjoy local man's new board game

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Most parents cringe when they hear these three words in the winter, "Let's go camping."

Thanks to a Charlevoix man who invented a way to bring the camp experience into the living room, meeting a kid's craving for an outdoor excursion is now just a board game away.

Tim Paczesny, founder of Education Outdoors Inc., recently released Camp, a board game that will bring families together to learn about the wild.

"This is about core values and spending time with family," he said. "I hope families get together and play together."

The game's catchy graphics created by Jesse Denherder, cute critters like Sassy the Squirrel and Dawn the Doe and multi-level trivia approach allow players ages 3 and up to not only have a good time, but expand their knowledge base.

"I'm hoping this educates them (players) about the outdoors and spurs their interest," he said. "You learn something from Camp and that to me is what really feels good."

The central Camp concept is for up to eight players to leave the main campfire and go on a hike around the board.

"The first one back to camp wins," Paczesny said.

Along the way, if a player lands on a green footprint they have to correctly answer a camp question to move on. Fifteen Camp questions have a compass pictured on the card and if answered correctly a player earns the compass and is allowed to access the shortcut.

Question cards have four levels of complexity allowing the game to be played by a group with players of different skill levels. The answers are revealed using a magic decoder.

"It's the game that grows with you," Paczesny said. "I can play this and have fun doing it."

If you land on the Camp Clubhouse you read a fun fact and move along.

Paczesny said the rules are easy to follow and the game itself is both fun and educational.

His future plans for Camp include expanding the product line to incorporate coloring books and gear. He also plans to release new card sets annually so savvy campers can be challenged.

"I hope it continues to grow," he said. "A lot of people get ideas and never take them to the final product. What's exciting for me is this is really taking off."

In this first round of production, 5,000 games were created. They retail for $19.99 each.

Locally, it is sold at the Rocking

Horse Toy Company in Charlevoix, Sonny's Iron Market and Work and Play and Friske's Farm Market, both in Atwood. It is also sold at other major sporting goods outlets including Shields Sporting Goods, Frank's Outdoors and Jay's Sporting Goods. Cabella's has expressed interest in carrying the game.

If in-store sales are impossible, Camp can be purchased on-line at www.camp.bz for $24.99, including shipping.

Paczesny is a 34-year-old Central Lake native who moved to Charlevoix with his wife, Susan, and two daughters, about three years ago. He's an avid hunter and fisherman whose professional ventures have taken him into the automotive realm. He owns and operates Training Service and Repair (TSR) based in Eastport where wire harness equipment for the automotive industry is sold. He also owns Up North Rental, an equipment rental business. He graduated with a two-year technical degree from DeVry Institute in Lombard, Ill.

Investors buy Citizens Bank building on State Street in downtown Charlevoix

The Citizens Bank Building, located at 201 State St., was recently sold to a group of investors consisting of attorney Michael J. Corcoran and his law partners in the north-west Michigan law firm of Running, Wise & Ford, as well as Charlevoix realtor, Mitts Lee and Lansing attorney, Gordon Van Wieren Jr.

The sale of the building was completed earlier this fall. As part of the sale, Citizens Bank agreed to lease the first floor of the building back from the new owners for at least the next 10 years.

"We are pleased with the sale and are committed to continuing to serve the needs of our Charlevoix area customers," says Chris Cuffaro, president of Citizens' local branch.

Running, Wise & Ford will occupy the second floor of the building. Corcoran, who manages the Charlevoix branch of Running, Wise & Ford, is joined by associates Katrina D. Martin and Robert Grzech, along with paralegal, Vicki Voisin, and support staff, Sandra Dunson and Donna Theriault.

"I am extremely pleased with our decision to purchase the Citizens Bank building," Corcoran said. "Running, Wise & Ford has made a long-term commitment to providing the highest level of legal services to clients in the Charlevoix area. This move will allow the firm to expand our Charlevoix office and to better serve our clients."

both projects as they relate to use of the lakes.

Those who attended the ceremony stood in the Odmark Pavilion, a building that won't be there much longer. The handshell as the pavilion is commonly known, along with the existing harbor master's building and Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce facility are scheduled to be demolished this winter. They will be replaced by a state-of-the-art boater's support facility and an outdoor performance venue.

Former Waterways Commission chairman, John Winn, who is a Charlevoix resident, attended the event and shared his excitement in finally seeing the project come to fruition.

"This will be a quality project that will last for decades. It's so user friendly that even if you're not a boater you will love coming down here," Winn said.

He added that users aren't the only ones who stand to benefit from the revamped resource, businesses will as well.

"Elk Rapids gives full credit to their new marina for resurrecting their downtown. It gave the impetus to improve the downtown — they have no vacancies. That will happen here. It's a matter of merchants feeling confident that the city's behind them," Winn said. "This is the epicenter of the community. I think it (the project) will change everyone's attitude."

Executive director of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau, Vera McKown, is hopeful Winn's prediction of a revitalized downtown will come true.

"We are very hopeful. With the economy the way it is, any new project will be a plus for our marketing effort for the city," McKown said.

Representative Kevin Elsenheimer said the benefits will trickle down to all of northern Michigan.

"This is a great investment in the long-term health of this community and in northern Michigan," he said.

Phase one of the project will include removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the farthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of park, 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work.

Installation of the new docks is referred to as phase two. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the farthest point. The docks will be fabricated this winter and will be installed once ice conditions allow in the spring. Utilities are expected to be hooked up and operational near the end of June 2007.

Construction of phases one and two, which will cost a total of $3.8 million, is expected to take about four-and-a-half months. The ultimate goal is to have the water side of the project complete by Memorial Day 2007.

Phase three, which includes the rest of the project, from demolition of the existing buildings to construction of the new amphitheater and harbor master's facility as well as site work, is expected to get underway in early February.

The grand opening for the entire East Park and marina project is expected to take place on Sept. 23, 2007.

School district to buy former library property

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix Public Schools intend to buy the former Charlevoix Public Library property located at 109 Clinton St.

School officials said once minor language issues are resolved, the nearly 6,500 square-foot building appraised at $720,000 will be sold for $300,000 to the Charlevoix School system. An unnamed law firm withdrew an offer of $550,000.

"The facility (current administration building) is basically inadequate. I know the district has been looking for a replacement building for a number of years," said interim superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, James Cooper. "We felt that it would be an excellent opportunity—a win-win for everyone if we are able to move in there and we are able to purchase the building at a price below what we would probably be able to purchase (with) any other building or to build a facility."

The decision came after years of squabbling between the school and library boards over who is the rightful owner of the 109 Clinton St. property.

Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education president, Bill Truhilowicz, knows just how long the property has been an issue for discussion.

"This has been a long road we've been traveling down," he said. "Essentially it started when we worked to win the millage to build the new high school back in 1999. That started us down the path with the library moving into the middle school."

Connie Saltonstall, whose parents donated the property at 109 Clinton St., would like to see the property sold to a private entity.

Inmates, employees claim illness from air at county jail

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Despite claims of ill health by Charlevoix County jail employees and administrators, environmental and engineering experts maintain the jail's air poses no hazard.

However, after contractors, consultants, lawyers and jail workers packed the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Wednesday, Dec. 13 Committee of the Whole meeting, the commission voted unanimously, during their regular meeting, to accept bids on duct cleaning and repairs to the jail's HVAC system.

"Our report indicated that the dust...primarily consists of cellulose. There were no hazardous constituents identified within it," said Jeffrey Ruhl, manager of Environmental Testing and Consulting Inc. "We weren't able to determine in our investigation where it exactly was originating from."

Old library, new central office for schools

According to deputy clerk for the City of Charlevoix, Stephanie Brown, the 109 Clinton St. property would contribute $18,200 in taxes in 2006 if under private ownership.

"A law firm gave the library an offer...my sister and I approved accepting that offer, but because of a prior agreement, the school board also had to approve the offer and they did not," Saltonstall said. "They countered with an offer of $625,000 and there was no offer from the law firm after that. Now, they (school board) are going to say they (law firm) wouldn't have bought it anyway, and that's probably true, although if they had acted quickly they might have."

Cooper said Saltonstall's theory is, "Totally in error."

"We countered to be responsible to the public and based on the value of the building feeling that the counteroffer was appropriate and was again beneficial for both parties," Cooper said.

Valerie Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library, said the law firm lost an anticipated partner in the business deal and therefore could not afford to purchase the property.

According to Trubilowicz, the 109 Clinton St. property will be much more efficient, spacious and professional in appearance than the current two-story house just a block west of the library property wherein the administrative offices are housed.

"Our administration building is in pretty rough shape and this has been a project of ours on the sinking fund job list that goes back quite some time," he said. "We knew we needed an administration building for the image of the school. We felt all along the potential was there for the old library building to serve that purpose. It doesn't look good for prospective students when they come into town and they see our little house there and say, 'What kind of school is this?'"

While board members on both sides rejoice over this apparent resolution, there is still the matter of the piece of paper which initialized the conflict — the reverter clause, a legally binding document which would return possession of the 109 Clinton St. property to Saltonstall and her sister if the building and land are ever used for purposes other than What: Former Charlevoix Public Library property at 109 Clinton St.

Who: Charlevoix Public Schools and Charlevoix Public Library.

What happened: On Friday, Dec. 15, attorneys for the two worked on a sale agreement which will transfer ownership of the property to Charlevoix Public Schools.

How much: The school district will pay the library $300,000

How much is it worth: Last appraised at $720,000

How will it be funded: Charlevoix Public Schools Sinking Fund.

Sinking fund millage: In 2006, .8712 mills levied on taxpayers, generating about $610,000

Other sinking fund projects: Charlevoix Elementary School — heating (two) rooms with separate controls, carpeting halls, soffits and roof, gymnasium acoustical panels, property fencing; Charlevoix Middle School — new gym floor, replaced front sidewalks, sewer repair, bathroom partitions, carpeting in two rooms, partial roof replacement, band room carpet and lighting; Charlevoix High School — athletic fields, bleachers, scoreboard, dugouts, band room wall panels and curtain, auditorium acoustical drapes, weight room, work stations in science lab education such as a library.

"In 2002 (Oct. 14) my sister and I gave the school board members a pledge that, if they would exchange the old middle school for the old library property, we would sign off on the deed restriction," said Connie Saltonstall. "At that point, the school board told the library, 'We do now want that building,' so the taxpayers gave the school $635,000, the library ended up paying $480,000, so that came out of the library millage. Now the school is telling the taxpayers to come up with another $300,000 for the school to buy the library."

She added, "I'm sure they will spend money on renovations. So, the school has cost the taxpayers over a million dollars for this project when they had an opportunity to do the same thing and it wouldn't have cost the taxpayers anything."

Trubilowicz seemingly appreciates Saltonstall's frustration.

"If you had 20/20 hindsight all the way through, maybe it could have worked out differently, but with the people involved, it kind of drug on," Trubilowicz said. "I'm extremely happy the two boards are working together to come up with a solution to make everybody happy."

He added, "Connie Saltonstall has been very vocal through this whole process and listening to her speak, I think we even meet her needs — I hope we've met them by putting some property back on the tax rolls when we sell the (current) administration building."

Money for the purchase of the building will come from the Charlevoix Public Schools Sinking Fund.

"Schools have the option of asking voters to approve a sinking fund millage, which provides funds to be used for purchasing, building, remodeling or repairing facilities or parts of or additions to facilities, including structures, athletic fields, playgrounds, etc.; and acquiring or installing technology in school buildings," stated Charlevoix Public Schools business manager, Shawn Biddle, in an e-mailed response to questions. "The funds are not allowed to be used for routine or preventative maintenance activities or any other general operating activities. Residents in the school district approved a five-year sinking fund millage in 1997, and renewed the millage for another five years in 2003."

She further stated, "The original 2003 millage was for .9 mills, but that has been permanently reduced by Headlee and this tax year the millage that was levied was .8712 mills. This year we anticipate receiving around $610,000 in tax revenue in the sinking fund and will bring in around $630,000 (to) $640,000 next year."

Charlevoix Public Schools will have nearly $1 million in its sinking fund by fiscal year end.

Gohs meets the ghosts of Christmas past and future

Today makes 28 days I've been celebrating Christmas.

Thanksgiving day the wife decided we should get the holidays rolling — two weeks before our normal decorating date. The upside to her decision was that I was too busy making 11 pizzas (a story for another time) to help with the Yuletide frenzy.

For the first year I can remember, she had to solve the Sphinx's second riddle. You know the one — How did eight, 30-foot strands of lights become a 12-pound sheepskin? It was sweet, sweet justice to watch her fight with the malfunctioning staple gun as she hung strand after strand of lights.

Of course, this holiday season has been pretty tame compared to my childhood Christmases. The only excitement so far was when my son spilled a gallon of paint on himself while searching the shed for the legs which hold our aluminum Christmas shrub erect. He won't admit to pouring it on the floor and proceeding to make satin finish angels on the concrete, but the scene of the crime tells a different story.

Now that I'm confident the statutes of limitations on trespassing, theft, obstructing justice, domestic violence and child endangerment have lapsed, I can say the wife's grumbling over missing ornament hooks and decorations submersed in liquefied candy canes from yesteryear was slightly reminiscent of my father, wreaking of Apple Barrel Schnapps and Newport Kings, on one of his epic holiday rants.

Now, he and my mother fought about 312 days out of the year, so we were accustomed to the commotion, but the sight of him cross-eyed and cursing at a 30-year-old strand of lights long-since outlawed as a fire hazard was nothing less than disturbing.

Meanwhile, mom and us kids trimmed the nine-foot pine we pilfered from a mid-Michigan-based, multinational corporation which will remain nameless.

Anyone who knows me can tell you I'm a terrible liar, but packed with Christmas spirit, this 12-year-old didn't even flinch when I told that sheriff deputy my father was helping my little brother relieve himself that wintry evening. It was blizzard conditions when dad emerged with that evergreen beauty. I'll never forget the frantic yet elegant way he belly flopped into that snowdrift — trunk under one arm, buck saw under the other — when another set of headlights appeared on that secluded gravel road.

My father abhorred thievery, but he did his best during some bad financial times to give us at least a little Christmas. Sometimes there was no food, sometimes you got a bag of green plastic army men, even when you were 15, and yes, your father locked your mother out in the snow in her bare feet and bathrobe because she accidentally hit your little brother in the head with a family-sized can of soup (also another story for another time.)

Luckily, those years are countered by good years, like when I was 9 and I got my first Daisy air rifle — though the blood of 1,000 chickadees is on my hands. And, I'll never forget when I was 5 and my aunt bawled all us grand-kids into the back bedroom at grandma's to see Rudolph's nose in the distance. Minutes later we heard jingling and stomping coming from the roof. We ran into the living room to find a gift-filled green burlap bag the size of a Guernsey. That was also the year grandpa gave me a beautiful handmade steerable sled. A runner is cracked and the shiny brown finish turned stone gray long ago, but that sled will be 27-years-old this Christmas.

I firmly believe we are the sum of all our experiences both good and bad, and I wouldn't give up any of my Christmas memories for all the little green army men in the world. So, even if your holy trinity merely consists of George Bailey, Yukon Cornelius and Clark Griswold, have a merry Christmas.

I'd love to hear about some of your crazy, funny or special Christmas memories, so drop me a line.

Choosing a major isn't choosing your life's work

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

other, strike while the iron is still hot or that heating a dead horse is a good idea. I will offer further educational advice.

Once you have arrived at your chosen liberal arts campus, you will eventually be required to perform the act known as "choosing a major." Don't be deceived, you are not being asked to choose a life work. You are being asked to declare what interests you. Let us suppose that you are interested in poetry or even that you would consider becoming a poet. What major would most enhance your possibilities? English or literature might seem an obvious choice, where you could examine the work of earlier poets. But let us further suppose that you want to be a poet unlike other past poets.

A major in biology or speci-cally botany is the obvious choice. What does a poet need more than anything else? The widest and deepest range of possible words to choose from, consider the formal description of a leaf. Your literature courses are unlikely to provide you with 18 different terms for kinds and degrees of hairiness. The study of botany will provide them. Here, in alphabetical order is a beginner's list: Caespitose, canescent, ciliate, downy, fimbriate, floccose, glabrous, hirsute, hispid, pappus, pilose, puberulent, pubescent, scabrous, stellate, tomentose and villous. My spell checker had never seen eight of those before and I assume that most English majors would have missed almost as many. You could look them up.

To a botanist, hairiness itself is called investiture and consists of trichomes. Valuable poetic words, all of them, and as precise as poetic words must be.

A similar beginner's list of 12 adjectives that delineate leaf shape, 16 that describe specific huses and tips of leaves and at least 10 that name the differently-structured margins or edges of leaves, collectively give some idea of the language richness automatically available to a botany major. And those are only leaves. Add flowers, roots, stems and trunks, and the words available to detail their characteristics provide a richness almost unimaginable to the usual reader of literature. The author Vladimir Nabokov, might have used some of those adjectives, but few others have. And I remind you that Nabokov was a world-class lepidopterist.

The richness and complexity of the shapes, sizes and characteristics found in the natural world have enriched our language for centuries. If you are going to be a poet, it would be well to have some serious familiarity with that world and its descriptors.

UNIONS HAVE NO PLACE IN PUBLIC EDUCATION

Editor:
Unbelievable. I can hardly believe that the Petoskey News-Review even printed your article on the opinion page on Friday, Dec. 8. I believe that you hit the nail on the head with the whole thing.

I am not going to repeat everything that you put in there, but I will draw a comparison that I see in the business world. I am a business insurance agent, many of my clients are suppliers to the auto industry. We know what kind of problems have been going on with our domestic auto manufacturers. I have been able to discuss many of the problems that is going on in that industry with businesses that are directly linked to the domestic auto manufacturers.

The unions and the collective bargaining agreements that were made through the years are what are strapping the manufacturers. I have clients being both union shops as well as non-union shops. From a supplier standpoint, the businesses that are surviving, and some doing very well, are non-union, very similar to the non-domestic auto manufacturers that are doing very well.

One large metal forming business that I banded had to break the union in order to survive. Granted, many of the problems with the collective bargaining agreements were the businesses themselves — the union would force work stoppages in order to get their way, and at the time the auto makers could make it work.

Now, it's a different story as we see what is going on with bankruptcies, reorganization etc. which is leading to a very low UAW union membership compared to 20 years ago. Unions, whether auto related, education related, communications related, need to wake up and see what the real world is about. Thanks for your common sense.

TEACHER'S UNION COMMENTARY MISSED THE MARK

Editor:
I was somewhat bemused at the points presented in "The Crying Towel" in the Dec. 6 issue. While I'm all for accountability in our schools and our teachers, I think some of the points made missed their mark.

The article states that a starting teacher earns $34,396 a year, moving up to the $55,000 to $60,000 per year range as you gain experience. According to Michigan law, a full-time teacher must have completed at least 120 semester hours of satisfactory college credit at an approved teacher preparation institution plus appropriate credentials in the area being taught (English, science, etc.). That's quite a bit of education to make $34,396 a year.

Sure, their wages increase over time, but that's hardly a reason to condemn them as greedy. I make more than I did when I was 25, and I'll bet most people my age do. Why should teachers be an exception?

Looking at the professions offered for comparison, only machinists, mechanics and carpenters are likely to have formal education for their work, and that will usually be a two-year degree (approximately 60 semester hours) at most. The remainder required either no formal education beyond high school, or at most a training course of a few weeks. Yes, teachers make more, but it takes more education to be a teacher, and that education isn't cheap. Few if any cooks begin their work life with student loans, but I'll bet a lot of teachers do.

And while it's true that you can always find someone who'll do any job for less, do we really want our children taught by the most desperate people we can find who'll take the job? I'd think our own collective self-interest would require that we pay enough to attract and keep competent teachers. If you think their pay is high, you should see what it costs to continually replace them. It's al-atheists, courts, business interests, family values advocates, free speech advocates and someone upset because little Johnny failed English or because they saw the teacher have a beer with dinner one night. Nor do I want my child educated by someone who has to negotiate such a gauntlet of conflicting interests.

If you're interested in reducing the float in our school system, I'm all in favor. You want our children better educated? So do I. SUPPORT THE CHRISTMAS PROJECT

Editor:
It won't be long now before that round man, decked out in red and white and with sooty whiskers, will be comin' down chimneys in Charlevoix. However, right now he is still busy checking his list to determine who has been naughty and who has been nice.

If you have any misgivings as to what list you might end up on, it's not too late to send a check to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project in care of Carolyn Batdorff, Treasurer, 04903 Marion Center Rd., Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 to help Santa make a lot of Charlevoix kids happier this Christmas. Santa is willing to overlook a lot for those who help him help kids.

But in fact, Christmas isn't really about Santa Claus at all, is it? It's all about a tiny child born in Bethlehem who came into the world to make all kids, young kids and old kids, happier.

So if you want to end up on the nice list, you might want to send that check in His name.

A blessed Christmas to everyone in Charlevoix.

WELL DONE BUS DRIVERS

Editor:
I just wanted to say "Thank you" and "Well done" to the school bus drivers.

Most people I know wouldn't want to drive a load of kids around in good weather and we all know how stressful it can be driving during a blizzard or before the snowplows have been out. I appreciate and commend all the bus drivers who had to battle the hills, curves, back roads, snow drifts and long hours that it took to get our kids here and there at least twice a day two weeks ago. Even if they were running a little late they still smiled and waved as they drove off.

We appreciate you during all the seasons but especially during the winter. Thank you again.

CHARLEVOIX MIDDLE SCHOOL BABY HAT PROJECT

Editor:
Charlevoix Middle School students are learning the value of giving through a community service project. Infants born at Charlevoix Area Hospital will be given a hat made by a Charlevoix Middle School student and their mom will receive a matching finger-knit scarf.

According to the Michigan Department of Education youth contribute 1.3 billion hours of community service each year. Of that, 49 percent are junior high age who volunteer and 15 percent of those students volunteer on a regular basis. By giving to others, students build character and foster a sense of caring.

As a teacher, I agree with Learn and Serve America when they state, "Service learning is a teaching and learning strategy that integrates meaningful community service with instruction and reflection to enrich the learning experience, teach civic responsibility and strengthen communities."

Students will be able to link their math skills to real life while creating and giving to their community. Both boys and girls have become excited about this project and use any extra time beyond lesson time they have to work on their project. Many adults and middle school staff members have volunteered their time to help students. Students will also acquire a lifelong hobby.

It takes approximately a skein of yarn to make two hats. If you have extra yarn or would like to make a donation, please contact me, Gretchen Rice at (231) 547-3206.

The middle school students would greatly appreciate any contributions you may be able to make to support them in their efforts to serve their community. Gretchen Rice

Saltonstall's COA appointment contested

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

District One Charlevoix County Commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, will now serve on the Commission on Aging board after one of the most contested board appointments in years.

According to outgoing District Two Commissioner, Randolph Frykberg, he doesn't remember ever having to vote on an appointment in the past.

"It's usually a recommendation (from the individual commission) unless there's opposition, but the commission has a right to question an appointment if they have a different opinion," Frykberg said. "Generally the process works best if you look at people who are interested or recommended by a group."

But, he added, "The board has to make the decision of what's best for the county."

Frykberg, Saltonstall, chairman of the board, Vic Patriek and Dennis Jason voted in favor of Saltonstall, while District Three Commissioner, Ronald Reinhardt abstained and District Six Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, voted no.

Frykberg said he believes Saltonstall will do a good job on the Commission on Aging board and added, "I think she'll look into things."

Saltonstall originally asked to be appointed to the board during the Thursday, Nov. 16 Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting and was appointed by Patrick.

The proceedings were cut short when Roloff asked Patrick to hold Saltonstall's appointment until Saltonstall appeared with her concerns before the Commission on Aging board on Nov. 20. During the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 13, Roloff discovered the minutes of a previous meeting reflected that Saltonstall had been appointed to the board.

"I hate to bring this up, but in the commissioners comments where Connie asked to be appointed to a three-year term on the COA board, I did ask you to hold that up until we had that meeting, but the only thing is I guess you went ahead and I see it in the minutes here," Roloff said. "But in the bylaws in the Commission on Aging, they can have up to 11 members. They have two from Boyne area, two from East Jordan, one from (Charlevoix) City Council — that's three from Charlevoix and one from Beaver Island and I don't really think we want to make an 11 member team right now."

She added, "Too, I thought this was supposed to be an appointment by the board of county commissioners, that's what it says in their bylaws and we didn't vote on it."

Patrick asked acting legal counsel and assistant Charlevoix County Prosecutor, Mark Muniak, for an opinion on the matter.

"I would read this as it can be one minimum from the board, so it can be more than one," Muniak said. "In the COA bylaws it states members are to be appointed by the board of commissioners on the recommendation of the COA."

He added, "If there are not 11 members, then technically there could be a vacancy."

Charlevoix County Clerk, Jane

Connie Saltonstall

Brannon, said the Commission on Aging's bylaws are created by the Commission on Aging.

"They are not adopted by this county board for that agency or commission as are any of the other bylaws that any others other than the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority," Brannon said. "Whatever rules or guidelines they go by is strictly their own doing."

Director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, Sue Bergmann, said, "We're going to have some unhappy constituents from Boyne area and East Jordan, because now you're going to have five people from the Charlevoix area."

During an interview in the days following the Dec. 13 meeting, both Saltonstall and Bergmann opined on the matter.

"My impression is they don't want me to be a member of the COA. I think they felt I was interfering with the investment fund," Saltonstall said. "I think they feel that, because I represented the Charlevoix Senior Center (Inc.) trying to get millage funds, that we were adversaries."

She added, "I'd like to see the services for the seniors expanded so that we are using the funds that are raised each year for the services for the people who are paying the taxes."

Bergmann said she doesn't see Saltonstall as an enemy at all.

"It wasn't a concern with her (Saltonstall) being appointed — there wasn't an advertised vacancy and it was an arbitrary appointment by the board of commissioners," she said. "The weight of representation (is) off so the board members may feel that's unfair. The decisions made by the board will lean to Charlevoix. We may have to in fact change our bylaws. Maybe they (county board) should have researched what the pleasure of our advisory board was."

Bergmann said the Commission on Aging will not fight the commissioner's new appointment.

"As long as she represents our board appropriately and can work with our board, then we don't have a problem," she said. "We'll be able to work with her and anything that the commissioners recommend."

The Commission on Aging meets at various locations throughout the county on the third Monday of each month. For more information call, (231) 237-0103.

Trial date set for Family Video robbery

Suspect pleads not guilty to five felonies

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The trial of the man accused of robbing a Charlevoix Family Video clerk at gunpoint has been scheduled for March 7, 8, 9, 14 and 15 of 2007.

According to Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema, 45-year-old, Daniel Lee Russell of Charlevoix has until Feb. 2, 2007 to change his plea of not guilty if he so chooses. "They (Russell's defense) said that they are going to file a couple motions. They didn't say what they are yet...

one is perhaps the counseling records of some of the witnesses— obviously I would oppose those. The judge would have to make a ruling in the (surveillance) camera and not out in public," Jarema said. "Other than that, we're waiting for some of the lab stuff to come back and we're going to gear up for trial."

He added, "It's really hard to get counseling records. Obviously the judge would have to make that call. If he wants to go farther, the judge could look at those records in chambers to see if there's anything exculpatory (to clear of guilt or blame) or that would help the defense."

On Sunday, Aug. 27, 21-year-old Bethany Reeves was robbed in the Charlevoix Family Video parking lot by an armed assailant wearing a ski mask.

The alleged gunman stole an estimated $800 contained in the store's night deposit envelopes before stuffing Reeves in the trunk of her car where she was trapped for 15 to 20 minutes.

Russell's son turned him in nearly two months after the robbery occurred telling police his father had confessed the crime to him.

If found guilty, Russell could face five felonies: The armed robbery count carries a life sentence or any term of years; the unlawful imprisonment count carries a 15-year sentence; the felony firearm count carries a mandatory consecutive two-year term; the felon in possession of a firearm is a five-year felony; and carrying a weapon with unlawful intent is also a five-year felony.

Russell, whose only prior conviction for larceny by conversion, landed him in jail for 180 days — he was released two weeks before the Family Video crime was committed.

Russell remains lodged in Charlevoix County jail on $500,000 bond.

Historical society awarded $34,000 grant for lighthouse

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix's signature lighthouse got a leg up on Dec. 8 when the State Historic Preservation Office announced that financial help is on the way.

The South Pier lighthouse was one of eight to be awarded a Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program grant for 2007. Of the $233,300 allocated, the Charlevoix Historical Society, a historic lease holder on the lighthouse property, was given $34,000 to execute structural repairs. Recipients must provide 50 percent of the grant award as matching funds.

Mary Adams, chairperson of the Keeper of the Light lighthouse restoration committee and a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society finance committee, said the group has raised over $20,000 and will be able to match the grant.

Half of the money raised came from an anonymous commitment of $10,000 a year for five years. The other half includes a one-year, $5,000 anonymous donation and proceeds from the sale of Keeper of the Light memberships and merchandise.

"It (the fund-raising effort) involves the entire community. If you donate a dollar you can help the lighthouse," Adams said.

She explained that the $51,000 will be directed to roof, window and door repairs, the addition of drainage holes, installation of lowered grates in the floor and metal flashing as well as repairs to the warping steel plate exterior.

While the list sounds extensive, Adams said it's just the tip of the iceberg in relation to the overall project which will cost about $180,000 over five years. The goal to fund two-thirds of the project, or $120,000, through state grants and the balance through community support. They plan to reapply every year for the state program. Applications are due in August 2007.

Funds for the Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program which recently announced a $34,000 grant for repairs of the local lighthouse, are generated through the sale of "Save Our Lights" lighthouse license plates pictured above. Since the program's inception in 2000, more than $985,000 has been awarded.

Before the group can pursue these repairs they will need to request bids for architectural and engineering drawings. Awarding of all contracts will require the state's blessing, Adams said work will likely extend through 2007 into 2008.

Phase two, which includes removal of paint that may be lead based, will be their most challenging.

"It will make it a little challenging — it's out over the water. There we are hanging in the Lake Michigan breezes. We have to be careful and treat it as if there is lead based paint," Adams said.

This is the second grant the local lighthouse restoration group has received through the state Lighthouse

CHARLEVOIX COURIER 11

The program arose from a concern about the disposal of over 70 lighthouses in Michigan, including Charlevoix's, by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The City of Charlevoix has applied for ownership of the lighthouse which was built in 1948 in Milwaukee, Wis. as an aid to navigation. However, the transfer of title from the Coast Guard to the city won't happen until the Department of Environmental Quality and the Army Corps of Engineers can iron out their ownership issues.

Adams said the two groups are fighting over who owns the land on which the lighthouse sits. The Army Corps owns the pier and the state claims to own the lake.

"We expect to be substantially through the restoration project before title transfers," Adams said.

Once the transfer of title takes place, there will be a partnership between the city, as owners and the Charlevoix Historical Society, as stewards. However, the title issue won't slow the project, the Charlevoix Historical Society and the City of Charlevoix share a 25-year historic lease which they entered into in June.

The Coast Guard will continue to operate the light as an aid to navigation and the Army Corps of Engineers will maintain the pier.

NOTICE OF SHOW CAUSE HEARING AND JUDICIAL FORECLOSURE HEARING NON-PAYMENT OF PROPERTY TAXES

On March 1, 2006 real estate with unpaid 2004 and/or prior years property taxes was forfeited to the Charlevoix County Treasurer pursuant to the General Property Tax Act, Public Act 206 of 1893, PA 206, MCL 211.1 to 211.157, as amended.

The Charlevoix County Treasurer is acting as the Foreclosing Governmental Unit in proceedings to foreclose on this property for unpaid property taxes.

There are two hearings scheduled to finalize the foreclosure process. This publication is intended to provide additional notice to parties of interest in these parcels as to the nature, time, and location of these hearings.

A Show Cause Hearing is scheduled for 10:00am-1:00pm, January 17, 2007 at the Treasurer's Office, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Any person with an interest in the property forfeited to the County Treasurer may appear at the show cause hearing and redeem that property or show cause why absolute title to that property should not vest in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

A Judicial Foreclosure Hearing is scheduled for 2:15pm, February 16 2007 at the 33rd Circuit Court, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the Charlevoix County Treasurer, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 06-264-21-CZ.

If you are a person with an interest in property being foreclosed:

- * You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- * You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- * The title to the property shall vest absolutely in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit unless all forfeited unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, penalties, and fees are paid by April 2, 2007.

PLEASE NOTE :

The following list represents parties that appear to have title, lien, or other apparent rights to the parcels being foreclosed by the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

This notice is required to be given by law, even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

Listing of a party does NOT necessarily indicate that they are the owner of a parcel, or that they are liable for the property taxes.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction after July of 2007. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2006. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

City budget changes on immediate horizon

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Big changes may be coming down the pipe for the City of Charlevoix including hiring of a full-time city attorney, the merger of Charlevoix Township and city emergency groups and funding of recreation through an area authority.

When Charlevoix City Council met with the Charlevoix Citizens Advisory Committee on Dec. 12, they learned that tax hikes aren't on the committee's agenda for solving the city's looming budget woes — cutting the pork is.

"You have to be more critical from here on out. They (city residents) don't have it (money for higher taxes)," citizens committee member, Chris Papineau, said.

The central theme throughout the committee's lengthy list of recommendations is the need for city offerings like the airport and golf course to break even.

The underlying solution that both groups agreed on is the establishment of a school district-wide recreation authority, similar to that which covers the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, to cover city beaches, Mt. McSaubia and the golf course as well as Charlevoix Township recreation facilities like Shanahan Field.

The golf course has been in the red for the past couple of years. This year, the city paid $85,000 from the general fund to operate the course.

Mt. McSaubia is anticipated to draw $76,000 from the general fund this year.

Third ward councilman, Sherm Chamberlain, said, "If we (the city and surrounding townships) don't work together, we are all going to lose."

The committee's break even or bust philosophy was met with less nods from council as it applies to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. Some committee members said the object of their exercise is to balance the budget and funding the chamber isn't a necessary service.

Currently, the city holds a $6,700 contract with the chamber to promote the area.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr., said, "You (the citizens advisory committee) were asked to present the good, the bad and the ugly. And it might be saying something no one wants to hear."

"What I took out of this (recommendations with regards to the chamber) is if the city can't afford to run itself and we're looking for ways to cut, we shouldn't be supporting other people. I think that it's one hand washing the other, you would hope the chamber provides service to the city. It's a balancing act for council."

Some council members were receptive to restructuring the way city attorney services are provided for. Currently, the city contracts with attorney, Jim Young, for $96,400 per year, plus health care costs which are around $14,000.

"I see $200,000 to $300,000 in legal fees as too much," said Don Voisin, chairman of the Charlevoix Citizens Advisory Committee.

City Council to integrate citizens committee's budget findings

Third ward council member, Shirley Gibson, added, "Maybe we need a full-time city attorney for $75,000 a year to save money."

Another necessary service that may be restructured is the city's fire and rescue system. Carlson said he is working with Charlevoix Township supervisor, Dale Glass, to merge the city and township emergency responders into a fire and rescue authority.

Treasurer for the City of Charlevoix, Rick Brandt said it would save the city money. Currently both the city and township pay annually for future emergency vehicles. This costs the city $30,000 a year.

Other areas the committee recommended reviewing are health care costs and salaries, the electric department which faces the indefinite realities of deregulation and the airport.

The recommendations did not fall on deaf ears and will not lie fallow for long. City council agreed to include the advisory committee during upcoming discussions of the 2007-2008 city budget.

"You guys are the foundation for maintaining the quality of life for the Charlevoix area and that's the good thing about the committee. You've looked at things and pointed out how we can maintain that quality without burdening the taxpayers at a greater amount," Chamberlain said.

Voisin added, "Hopefully, our time will end up being a win-win situation for all the taxpayers in Charlevoix."

The Citizens Advisory Committee was formed in November 2005.

Committee members are Kirby Dipert, Bill Bellows, Pete Phillips, Don Voisin, Ken Staley, Curt Thompson, Ed Johnson, June Cross, Birdie Whitley, Tom Conlan, Chris Papineau, Dan Nuttle, John Elzinga and students Kevin Greyerbiehl, Chuck Mason and Caitlin Cole.

The group met over 20 times from November 2005 to the present to review operating procedures and city department budgets to establish these cost cutting recommendations.

Budget projections show the city will be short about $50,000 in its general fund by 2008. Currently, city manager Mike Wiesner said the city is supplementing the general fund with infrastructure dollars to get it to the break even point. Over the past two years, $220,000 has been turned over to the general fund from the infrastructure millage.

County resident victim of recent mail order bride scam

A Charlevoix County resident was scammed out of thousands of dollars by a female and her co-conspirators from the Republic of Ghana.

The Charlevoix County male resident became involved with the female from Ghana through a dating service on the Internet.

After they met on-line, photos of two strong boxes full of gold bricks that would be the Charlevoix County citizen's once the couple were married were exchanged.

The Charlevoix County citizen then received a request that he Western Union the Ghana perpetrator $10,000 to be used for making preparations to come to the U.S. And this request was complied with.

An additional $17,000 request followed so she could pay her attorney for the gold transfer before leaving for Charlevoix County. This request was not complied with.

The perpetrator in Ghana sent photographs of the proposed wife-to-be along with documents that were forged including a passport, a traditional marriage certificate, a certificate of deportation from a security company and photographs of gold bars.

The Charlevoix County citizen came to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office. Sheriff Lasater confirmed with the FBI this was a scam and there is no possibility of prosecuting the scam artist in Ghana because there is no way of regaining the Charlevoix County citizen's money due to lack of infrastructure of enforcement in the Republic.

The citizen wanted to go public to hopefully educate and save other citizens from being taken advantage of and going through the same financial loss and emotional crisis.

Our country is still at war this Christmas and it finds over 150,000 of our Sailors, Marines, Army, and Air Force personnel in battle. The short hymn above is the Arlington Cemetery Hymn for the fallen.

The wreath picture tells a wonderful Christmas story and that story is of a small wreath maker in Harrington, Maine. Its caring owner Merrill Worcester, came up with the idea of having his company donate and place some 5,000 wreaths on the tombstones of the fallen in Arlington Cemetery. He has done this for 15 years. So even though these young men and women who have given their lives for us and their last measure of devotion. They are not forgotten this Christmas Holiday even though they are no longer with us. This is an example of humanity and caring that all of us show to others, particularly during the Christmas season.

Karen and I visited Arlington Cemetery this week to help lay these wreaths. I hope that you have a chance to visit Arlington Cemetery to see the memorial wreaths – it is very sad but also very heart warming. To help a little bit next year Karen and I are going to match the wreaths that have been given by Mr. Worcester. For 5,000 wreaths only represent a small fraction of those heroes that are buried there. In your Christmas prayers on Christmas day, please mention all of those that rest in peace in this sacred ground.

With thankful hearts and in the Christmas spirit this little wreath company in Harrington, Maine has shown us all the meaning of Christmas.

Sounds of the season

In a tradition which goes back more than 15 years, teachers, administrators and support staff of the Charlevoix Public Schools sang Christmas carols for the residents of Boulder Park Terrace.

Three CHS band students honored by state association

Charlevoix High School band students were recently selected to perform in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association's District Honors Band concert which took place on Dec. 3 in the auditorium at Gaylord High School.

Charlevoix students, Alina Dhasleer on flute, Elizabeth Kur on oboe and Emily Westenbroek on trumpet were three of over 300 students from 30 schools who auditioned in November at Charlevoix High School to be a part of this 88-member ensemble.

This fine group of musicians rehearsed with acclaimed director, Joe Dobos of Lapeer, on Saturday Dec. 2 and performed a concert the very next day.

Knights of Columbus establishes charitable fund

When the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Council sold its building on Bells Bay Road recently, members knew they wanted to put the proceeds to good use — and that's just what they've done.

A new charitable fund called The Father Pierre Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Council 7172 Endowment has been established at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to benefit worthy causes in the Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Central Lake areas.

"We wanted to recognize and reward all those who have sustained the Knights over the years, and this was an excellent solution," said Steven W. Seely, Grand Knight of the council. "Our fund creates an ongoing legacy that honors our founders, says 'thank you' to our community, and allows us to continue supporting the ideals we believe in — youth, family, parish, community and council."

The fund is donor-advised, which will let Knights continue their involvement in directing what kinds of projects to support and how grants will be made. Individuals can also help the fund grow by making tax-deductible contributions — something that had not been possible under the Knights of Columbus existing tax status.

In the past few years, rental revenue from the Knights of Columbus hall had fallen, while expenses for property maintenance continued to increase. Seely says members of the organization looked at a number of alternatives before deciding to sell. Once that conclusion was reached, the Knights faced the issue of how to reinvest the building's assets.

"The officers of the Knights Council are to be applauded for facing a big challenge and making a tough decision. Their vote to remove the burden of property management and establish this fund was a vote for responsible stewardship, gratitude, and unselfishness on behalf of the entire council. Five, 10, 20 years down the road, this endowment fund will be a valuable and visible resource for our community."

Foundation president, Bob Tambellini, who helped the council create their fund, concurs.

"This is a wonderful example of far-reaching vision and re-directing change into something positive. All of us are grateful to the Knights for their generous act that will accomplish so much good for their community now, and in the future," Tambellini said.

The Knights of Columbus is now moving back to St. Mary's Church Parish Center, where they will hold monthly meetings at 7 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month. Meanwhile, the Knights plan to continue traditional fundraising activities — including a Free-throw Contest to benefit youth in mid-January, a Bowling Tournament in February and the popular Annual Cash

Raffle Party this spring. Seely says money raised will be directed to the new fund — "a win-win for everyone."

For more information about upcoming Knights of Columbus events, call Steve Seely at (231)

547-5125. Additional information about their fund, or other charitable funds, is available by calling the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, (231) 536-2440, or visiting the foundation's Web site at www.c3f.org.

VPN, Boyne Realty merge with Prudential Preferred Realtors

On Dec. 5, Vacation Properties Network and Boyne Realty of Emmet and Charlevoix counties announced its merger with Prudential Preferred Realtors of west Michigan.

The seven northern offices, with over 70 agents, will operate as Prudential Preferred Properties Network. Prudential Preferred Realtors will continue to operate in west Michigan under its existing name. Combined, Prudential Preferred Realtors and Prudential Preferred Properties Network will be the largest Prudential franchise on the Great Lakes with a sales team of over 420 agents and 19 offices.

"This is a culmination of four years of discussions and planning between VPN/Boyne and Prudential Preferred Realtors," explains Steve Fase, president and owner of Prudential Preferred. "We have been looking to establish a presence in northern Michigan, and there was no better way than to join forces with the area's leader. This is one of the country's most beautiful areas, and we are thrilled to link up with VPN — Boyne's outstanding team of real estate professionals. There are also many opportunities for referrals between both of our regions."

According to Rik Lohenherz, president and owner of Vacation Properties Network and Boyne Realty. "Both Steve and I are equally excited about the dynamics of this new partnership. Prudential Preferred Realtors is on the cutting edge of technology and systems to help us better serve our customers and clients and to continue to grow and thrive. We are taking the best of what we can offer, and the best of what they can offer, and creating a more effective way to support our agents and be more productive for our clients."

The merger creates the only real estate company to span from the Michigan-Indiana border to the Straits of Mackinac.

Along with Prudential Preferred Properties Network's presence throughout northern Michigan, it has offices in Grand Rapids, Rockford, Howard City, Kalamazoo, Portage, Battle Creek, Richland, Plainwell, Three Rivers and South Haven. Find out more and view over 20,000 Michigan properties at www.ppmi.com.

Laurie Hughes is back on the bagel scene

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Lottie's locally legendary bagels are back.

Laurie Hughes, a longtime Charlevoix resident who owned and operated Lottie's Bagels from 1995-1997 in downtown Charlevoix, has resurrected her bagel business.

According to Hughes, slow business isn't what ended her Bridge Street bagel shop, booming business was. She said she opted to close the store in 1997 when the stress of working 12 hour days and raising her two children was more than she wanted to take on.

"It was chaotic — it just wasn't worth it," she said.

Since then, she has worked full-time in banking and now as a payroll administrator with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. With her 23-year-old daughter, Emily Hughes out on her own and her 17-year-old son, Ian, preparing for his first year as an engineering student at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Hughes said she saw an opportunity to make college tuition cash by resurrecting her once profitable bagel business from her licensed commercial kitchen in her home.

In June, she reopened Lottie's Bagels from her home at 604 Bridge St., which is also the location of her husband Greg's established antiques store, Shop of All Crafters, which specializes in mission furniture. After opening, her first order of business was bagel sales at Boyne City's Saturday Farmer's Market. She baked and sold 300 bagels there in two hours.

She now sells her bagels locally at Woolly Bugger coffee shop on Bridge Street and takes phone and e-mail orders of all sizes from just a bag of bagels to dozens.

Mouthwatering varieties include plain, parmesan, lemon pepper, jalapeno jack, cranberry, raisin cinnamon, mustard salt, salt, sesame, everything and cheddar dill.

The business that has bloomed to include sweet and salty varieties of bagels actually started with croissants. In 1990, Hughes bought a new cookbook and set out to become a croissant creator.

After six hours of work for a batch of croissants that lasted about 15 minutes, she searched the book for another recipe and that's when she stumbled across the ingredients and steps that have made her a bonafide bagel haker.

Lottie's Bagels are offered baked and frozen. Frozen options are sold in big and small quantities, can be used over time and served fresh out of the oven at home. The cost for fresh or frozen orders is $1 each or $10 a dozen.

To order a batch of Lottie's Bagels, customers should contact Hughes 24 hours in advance at (231) 547-0257 or by e-mail at sales@lottesbagels.com. To learn more about the business, visit www.lottesbagels.com.

Chairman announced for broadband council

Eric Grandstaff

Broadband Council. Grandstaff holds the position of Director of Library and Academic Technologies at North Central Michigan College (NCMC). He is also a charter member of the Link NLEA Broadband Council.

"Our area is fortunate to have someone with Eric's skills, dedication and leadership abilities lead this effort. He is respected throughout the region and within technology circles," said Northern Lakes Economic Alliance president, Andy Hayes.

"We're looking forward to making a four-county high speed broadband (Internet) expansion effort in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties for the private and public sectors, as well as the increased demand for high speed residential and home business Internet services," said Grandstaff. "We'll not only focus on the need for high speed Internet in our service area, but the global business services and positive economic impact Internet will have upon our region. We also intend to take some of the 'mystique' out of what Internet means to a small business here in northern Michigan, so that everyone has reasonable access to it and knows how to use it effectively."

The Link NLEA Broadband Council was formed by the Board of the NLEA after the completion of the LinkNLEA Report in 2004. This report, funded by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, is a telecommunication's strategy designed to improve the availability, cost and quantity of advanced Internet and telecommunications services in the NLEA service area.

The Link NLEA Broadband Council acts as an advocate of broadband matters within both the public and private sectors of the area. The council encourages the education of broadband technologies among local leaders.

Island court action

Beaver Island Islanders were more than ready to welcome the Ojibwe Eagles and to get their winter seasons started. The Islanders volleyball and basketball teams both easily dispatched the Eagles Friday night, Dec. 15, then repeated the feat Saturday morning. The volleyball team claimed a 25-6, 25-5, 25-12 win Friday, then followed up the next day with an equally impressive 25-19, 25-9, 25-7 match victory. The Islanders basketball squad also flew past the Eagles, winning Friday night 61-36, and Saturday morning 67-51. (Above) Beaver Island junior, Dan Runberg, sails towards the basket during Friday night action against the Ojibwe Eagles. Runberg finished with 10 points.

Rayder basketball opens season with three straight wins

SPORTS WRITER

The Charlevoix Rayders opened their season with three straight wins, two in non-conference play against Glen Lake, 77-46 and Suttons Bay, 80-76 and one in league play, 95-82 over Harbor Springs.

"It has been a good start," Rayder coach, Keith Haske, said. Charlevoix started fast against Glen Lake, leading 7-0 minutes into the game, but the Lakers battled back to trim the lead to 15-11 after the first quarter of play. Glen Lake took its first lead of the game at 16-15 with 6:16 left in the half and moments later led 17-16.

Haske responded by putting in his "pirate" group off the bench, consisting of Darren Munson, Chase Beatty, Brad Cyr, Nate LaBlance and Jared Hunt.

The pirates forced a flurry of Laker turnovers and translated them into eight straight points — a bucket by Beatty, a Hunt lay-up off a LaBlance assist, two Beatty free throws and a LaBlance drive off the glass, to take a 24-17 lead.

The game was never again in doubt as Glen Lake never pulled any closer than five.

"We were real lethargic in the first half and let them back into the game," Haske said. "I thought we played a very good second half though. Our bench really gave us a big spark in the second quarter and got us going."

Mitch Crandall led the Rayders with 19 points, eight rebounds, eight steals and three assists. Corey Gotshall scored 13 points.

Derek Friske had nine points. Ty Haske had eight points, nine assists and five steals.

The Suttons Bay contest was tighter, with Charlevoix leading 23-19 after one quarter but clinging only to a 40-39 half-time lead. The Rayders trailed 57-56 headed into the final stanza.

"It was a strange game," Haske commented. "There were a lot of fouls called, we couldn't be real aggressive."

Crandall again was the leading scorer with 25 points. Gotshall had 16 points, six rebounds, five steals and three assists. Friske scored nine points. Haske dished out 11 assists.

In their Lake Michigan Conference opener at Harbor, Charlevoix got out to an early lead and never looked back. The Rayders led by seven after the first quarter and 13 at the half.

Charlevoix extended the lead to 70-51 after three quarters but the Rams cut the lead to 10 early in the fourth quarter.

"It was a typical Charlevoix-Harbor Springs game," Haske noted. "It was up and down, back and forth, with both teams pressing."

"I thought we played well for three quarters but made some poor decisions in the first half of the fourth quarter."

Crandall led all scorers with 28 points. He also pulled down 11 rebounds and had four steals. Haske also posted a double-double with 12 points and 15 assists.

Friske contributed 12 points and five rebounds. Cliff Jones had six assists. Trevor Mays added eight points.

Before breaking for the holidays, Charlevoix (3-0 overall, 1-0 conference) hosted Grayling in league action on Tuesday, Dec. 19. Results will be in next week's Courier.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Appellate court says insurance provider not liable

Municipal League Liability and Property Pool.

The Michigan Court of Appeals ruled in favor of the Michigan Municipal League.

"We were quite confident that the city's position was correct here," Robert L. DeJong of Miller Canfield in Grand Rapids, who represented the city said. "...This is a huge disappointment to me personally. I'm very disappointed for the city."

"I don't like having to deliver this kind of news," DeJong said the Michigan Municipal League should have defended the city in a lawsuit and covered the city's losses.

During a construction project in 2001, checks should have been written to both

The case stems from a lawsuit filed against the city. During a construction project in 2001, checks should have been written to both CCMS, a contracting firm, and CCMS' insurance company, United Fire & Casualty, an Iowa corporation, for work done on an infrastructure project along Michigan Avenue and Belvedere Avenue. Instead, one check was written to CCMS of Sault Ste. Marie, which never paid its subcontractors, leaving United Fire & Casualty with the tab.

The city believes their insurance provider should cover the error. The insurance provider believes it was a breach of contract.

CCMS, a contracting firm, and CCMS' insurance company, United Fire & Casualty, an Iowa corporation, for work done on an infrastructure project along Michigan Avenue and Belvedere Avenue.

Instead, one check was written to CCMS of Sault Ste. Marie, which never paid its subcontractors, leaving United Fire & Casualty with the tab.

The check was written when city treasurer Riek Brandt was under a treasurer bond. The league did not cover the full cost.

The city requested that the league reimburse the additional $123,000 under the errors and omissions provision provided under the insurance package. The city was denied insurance coverage from the league, who claimed the loss arose from a breach of contract.

City manager Mike Wiesner said he was surprised by the appellate court's decision.

Wiesner said city council will meet with the city attorneys in closed session to determine the next step.

DeJong said the options include requesting the Court of Appeals reconsider and reverse their decision, or requesting the Michigan State Supreme Court to review the decision.

"Or we could just take our lumps," DeJong said.

The decision was in favor of the insurance provider. The court ruled that the United Fire & Casualty claim was a breach of contract. The league specifically excludes from coverage any claim based upon a breach of contract.

Although the contract was between CCMS and United Fire & Casualty, the court ruled that if there was a contract involved even if the city was not a party the city was responsible for the circumstances.

"I do not understand or agree with the reasoning that got them to the decision they reached," DeJong said.

Is the schools' library buy really a good deal?

EDITORIAL

Thank heaven the image of Charlevoix Public Schools will no longer be tarnished by that eyesore, central office.

The district is in the throes of purchasing the former Charlevoix Public Library property from the library for $300,000.

Administration plans to move one block from their shabby quarters at 208 Clinton St. to 109 Clinton St. A move from the ramshackle house, which over the years has served as a sorry excuse for administrative headquarters, is well overdue.

But are we the taxpayers really winning on this friendly exchange?

At first blush one might argue, no. While the school district is getting a screaming deal on the property which was last appraised at $720,000, the taxpayers are paying for a building they already own. Both the library and the school district share the same tax base, the Charlevoix Public School District.

However, what is happening now, is what should have shook out two years ago when a proposal was on the table for the two entities to exchange properties — the library getting the old Charlevoix Middle School and the school district getting the former library property. The school district declined the offer and the taxpayers bought the old school for $635,000.

The current decision shows what a couple of years and an election can bring. With new faces came minds more willing to compromise.

When the library moved to its new facility at 220

Clinton St., ownership of the 109 Clinton St. property was called into question. The school district claims a reverter clause exists in the deed that requires the property to be transferred to the school district if it ceases to be used as a library. But the deed was never signed. And of course the library claimed to be the rightful owner.

After years of arguing, they decided to sell the property and split the proceeds.

This was the first step toward a positive cooperative relationship between the two — Charlevoix doesn't need to be entangled in another legal battle that would cost the taxpayers money.

There was an offer on the table from a law firm for $550,000 that was later withdrawn for reasons that haven't been disclosed. That would be a better financial solution with $275,000 each going to the schools and the library. But as any Charlevoix resident knows, buildings are for sale all over town and aren't moving quickly. So why should we continue to maintain, insure and heat a vacant building?

Arguments that the tax base will ultimately suffer are trumped by the eventual sale of the existing central office to a private owner.

While this is a solution that should have been realized years ago, it's here now and we should support two boards that are working together toward the betterment of the community.

Builders Club members learn life lessons through acts of kindness

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The inner soul of a child is fresh, forgiving and fearless.

Knowing that, it only makes sense to involve our children in programs that provide an outlet to exhibit these

■ qualities. The Charlevoix Middle School

Builders Club does just that. It was only four short years ago that the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, an organization of men and women dedicated to community service, decided to tap into this resource.

The Kiwanis Club recognized that our young people wanted to take an active role in solving problems and meet the needs of others in our own community and worldwide. The Builders Club is a great match for our youth as it teaches leadership skills, teamwork and parliamentary procedure. The club is open to all fifth, sixth and seventh graders interested in helping others.

This active group of girls and boys put together a Halloween Haunted House and raised close to $200 that was shared with a family they adopted in need during this holiday season. If you happened to take part in our local health department's flu pandemic training, you may have been assisted by one of the club members who didn't think twice about seeing what they could do to help out. You may have read about their joint effort with Charlevoix Middle School student council collecting over 7,000 non-perishable food items for the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

Future projects include their "Pennies for Patients" program, collecting pennies for leukemia/lymphoma research and "April is Autism Education Month" providing literature educating teachers and fellow students about this disability. The club's hot chocolate sales during recess have earned them $100 a week which will be utilized to help their causes.

If you've walked around the outside of the Charlevoix Middle School building towards the science and art room area you may have taken in the beauty of the Butterfly Garden. This breathtaking piece of landscape was created with many hands, big and small, as our local garden club joined efforts with the Builders Club to create this serene setting. During the winter months while flowers are hibernating, the Builders Club members will be creating decorative tiles for the garden under the direction of Caroline Smith, the Charlevoix Middle School art teacher.

Other middle school staff recognizing this active group, put together recycling containers to keep our school involved with creating renewable resources. Club members are responsible to collect recycled paper and educate others about recycling and what we can do to protect our environment.

Recently, the club involved themselves with bell ringing for the Salvation Army. Last year's participation brought an added $300. They also entertained the residents at Pine River Place and made a surprise visit to one of their favorite teachers, Mrs. Marina LaBlanc, singing Christmas carols learned under her tutelage.

I am proud of the Builders Club's accomplishments and the support given by school counselors: Karrie Gaffney and Sue Goss as well as the local Kiwanis Club. Their combined efforts will be noticed for years to come.

Leo Buscaglia once said, "Too often we underestimate the smallest act of caring, there is potential to turn a life around." Thank you to all involved, as your smiles, kind words, and gestures of kindness, help so many and have instilled the power of what one good deed can bring.

KNOW YOUR RELIGIOUS FREEDOMS

Editor:
In this age of computers, capable of processing almost unlimited amounts of information, the fact still remains that the human brain is superior.

When witnessing an event, we often disagree with those around us as to what occurred and this may be caused by how we use our senses or that we all process information differently. Our conception, or misconception, of the facts often relies on the quantity or quality of those facts.

When writing a letter to the editor, or an opinion editorial, we are limited to space, or the number of words by some publications, that calls for editing. Through the editing process the intent of the author may be altered, thus leading to misconceptions by the reader.

A case in point concerns a recent letter regarding religious expression at Christmas time where a readers' negative response may have been due to a misconception. The letter's intent was to dispel the myths perpetuated, through their lawsuits, by the "American Communist Lawyers Union" in their attempt to eliminate our religious freedoms and move our nation closer to "A One World Government."

The few court decisions, fisted, in the letter upholding the First Amendment, did not allow Americans to do anything, rather they prevented the ACLU (the American Civil Liberties Union) from compromising the First Amendment. The intent was to forewarn the public that they need not be intimidated or coerced by the ACLU or their allies. Should our religious freedoms be threatened, there are several legal assistance organizations who will represent individuals, organizations, schools, churches or government officials, free of any charge, and to name a few they are: The Alliance Defense Fund, The American Center For Law & Justice, The Heritage Foundation and The Rutherford Institute. All have web sites and three have toll free phone lines. Resources are available on request.

For evil to exist and prosper, good citizens need only do nothing. One of the duties of citizenship is to defend the Constitution, so let your voice be heard and may God bless America.

RECYCLE RESPONSIBLY

Editor:
The Charlevoix County Recycling Committee is asking for the help of all the folks who are taking advantage of the recycling program. During this holiday season, and especially after Christmas day, there will be an abundance of packing materials that need to be recycled. Please flatten all cardboard, tin and plastic. It makes more room for all and keeps us from having to pay to haul air. If you arrive and the bins are full, please do not leave recyclables on the ground. This is littering.

Our haulers deserve a merry Christmas, too, and we cannot all recycle everything on the same day. Please return another day after the bins have been emptied.

Please remember, no styrofoam — not blocks and not "packing peanuts." If a load is contaminated, we have to pay for hauling plus a landfilling fee.

Thank negates everyone's recycling efforts.
Thank you for your help, and enjoy the holidays.

LUCKY TO HAVE OUR LOCAL PAPER

Editor:
Thank you from the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project..

A special thanks to Julie Withhoef and her staff for running the articles on St. Mary's Giving Tree and the local banks sponsoring the Mitten Tree for the Christmas project.

Bringing community awareness to those two projects has helped in both groups meeting their goals this year. The Giving Tree Project filled 243 Christmas requests from the generosity of church members in the area, businesses and a very special project from the youth group of the Congregational Church. Local banks involved in the Mitten Tree Project all boosted generous donations of socks, mittens, hats and scarves.

We are fortunate to have a local paper in our community, keeping us informed of daily events and allowing us to share our views. So when we stop for gas, groceries or that cup of coffee and plop down our 50 cents, we should feel grateful we have the Courier as part of our community.

A special thank you goes to Joe Vogelheim and Bob and Gay Pung. Not only did they always have a nutritious meal arranged for us after far away games, but were quick to offer positive encouragement and praise whether we won or lost.

We would also like to extend a special thank you to Ann Gorney and Toni Felter who came to every game to help with keeping stats and running the clock. Just as you always said to us, we say to you. "Great job ladies."

Last but not least, a special thank you to Larry Numemaker. Thank you for conscientiously videotaping all of our games and some of our opponents. It takes a good guy with a good sense of humor to put up with all of us girls on the bus.

Without you our season would not have run as smoothly or successfully as it did. We are proud to have your continued support.

Lastly, thanks to all of our parents for the extra meals and treats that kept us working hard and for all the cool signs, banners and pompoms you made during tournament time. And thanks to all our fans. Your cheers and encouragement kept us going during even our toughest games. One of the most important things we learned this year is how wonderful it is to be a part of such a great community.

Merry Christmas and happy New Year to you all.

Son sponsors father's Lions Club membership

On a Monday in late September, a young man, carrying a white cane, and another man, acting as his guide, showed up before the Charlevoix Lions Club's regular noon meeting, downstairs at the Weatherlane.

Each expressed an interest in the club's service activities — the young man, particularly in its vision-related work. The other man expressed greater interest in the club's assistance at local Red Cross blood drives.

The younger man, Mark Rybicki, has drastically limited vision due to a rare severe version of macular degeneration. Assisting Mark was Dick Vance, a friend from their church, whose wife Shirley is a volunteer at the same local blood drives as the Lions. The two were guests of the club for several meetings, hit it off with the members and were inducted. As Mark was heard to comment enthusiastically, that on the club's White Cane Safety Days fund-raisers, one of all those white cane-carrying Lions, about town will truly suffer severe vision impairment.

Mark's father, Ron was also interested in coming aboard. And so the unusual son-sponsorship of his father's membership into the Charlevoix Lions was realized.

The Rybicki Lions have both expressed an interest in forwarding the club's eye-related work, such as the Lions-supported Low-Vision Center at the city's new library.

Top two vehicular mishaps of 2006

Even Henry Ford had to know that joining man, machine and horse power would lead to no good. These are the top two vehicular bloopers and blunders that happened in Charlevoix in 2006. They resulted in no injury to drivers and passengers but remind all of us that a little torque can do a lot of damage. (Above) A woman drove through her yard and home at 320 Mason St. in September. After losing control of her vehicle while attempting to park, she ran off the roadway, over the grass and sidewalk and struck the house. (Below) This spring an elderly person went in to get a prescription. After returning to their parked car and preparing to leave, they thought the car was in reverse, hit the gas and soon found the car was in drive. The vehicle lurched forward and through the Rite Aid building.

City reviews material storage in Molon contract

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix city attorney, Jim Young, is reviewing the $1.6 million marina contract with Molon Excavating Inc., of Traverse City, to see whether they can store steel in East Park and at the foot of Clinton Street.

Steel to be used to rebuild the existing sea wall was delivered by 16 trucks, three weeks ahead of schedule. When Molon representatives asked city manager, Mike Wiesner, if the materials could be stored in East Park, his answer was, "Yes."

"It didn't make any sense to demand off-site storage of the steel when we have the room and can accommodate them," Wiesner said. "Why encumber the project, if anything it would slow it down."

But Molon's competition is shouting, "Not fair."

Ben Cunningham, owner of R.B. Lyons Inc., a local marine construction specialist, whose bid came in $105,000 higher than Molon's for the Charlevoix marina project, claims he had known on-site material storage was an option, he would have won the bid.

"As one of the bidders on the project, we and all the other con-

Charlevoix city attorney, Jim Young, is reviewing the $1.6 million marina contract with Molon Excavating Inc., of Traverse City, to see whether they can store steel in East Park and at the foot of Clinton Street.

"We were told, as is shown on the plans, that the city had provided a storage area for materials, along the channel, by the fish hatchery."

In the plans, the site Cunningham referred to is marked and it reads,

"Contractor may use this site on the south side of the channel for barge unloading/loading areas for steel sheet piling, fabricated steel and removed steel items from project site."

Cunningham claims materials were to be picked up by barge and brought to the job site. He calculated the cost of barge and tug rental, crew time and other transportation and man hours associated with material storage and retrieval at around $134,000.

"I don't understand why the contractor who was hired has been given concessions that we were not," Cunningham states.

Second ward councilman, Gene Beer took Cunningham's side and said, "The local bid may have been different. I sure don't think it's fair to the local bidder (Cunningham)."

John Winn, a former Waterways Commissioner and self-described supporter of Cunningham's work, backs Wiesner's decision to allow park storage of steel.

"Frankly, I don't see the difference. Ben had the same information. Molon didn't have any inside information that they would be able to unload," Winn said.

Young will now review the contract to see if in fact it stipulates off-site storage of materials. He plans to have a response to city council at their Jan. 2 meeting.

City mayor, Norman Carlson Jr., said if in fact the contract language requires steel to be stored elsewhere, the city will pursue a deduct in its contract with Molon.

"We aren't going to re-bid the whole project, that's not fair to anyone, including Ben Cunningham," Carlson said.

The Molon crew has been working in the park since late November. The full scope of their work will include removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new, sheet pile running the length of park, 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. Their targeted completion date is near the end of April 2007.

The Charlevoix County Treasurer is acting as the Foreclosing Governmental Unit in proceedings to foreclose on this property for unpaid property taxes.

There are two hearings scheduled to finalize the foreclosure process. This publication is intended to provide additional notice to parties of interest in these parcels as to the nature, time, and location of these hearings.

A Show Cause Hearing is scheduled for 10:00am-1:00pm, January 17, 2007 at the Treasurer's Office, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Any person with an interest in the property forfeited to the County Treasurer may appear at the show cause hearing and redeem that property or show cause why absolute title to that property should not vest in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

A Judicial Foreclosure Hearing is scheduled for 2:15pm, February 16 2007 at the 33rd Circuit Court, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the Charlevoix County Treasurer, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 06-264-21-CZ.

If you are a person with an interest in property being foreclosed:

- You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- The title to the property shall vest absolutely in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit unless all forfeited unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, penalties, and fees are paid by April 2, 2007

PLEASE NOTE:

The following list represents parties that appear to have title, lien, or other apparent rights to the parcels being foreclosed by the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

This notice is required to be given by law, even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

Listing of a party does NOT necessarily indicate that they are the owner of a parcel, or that they are liable for the property taxes.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction after July of 2007. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2006. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

Community Mental Health awards employees

North Country Community Mental Health recently held its annual "Employee Recognition" at Boyne Mountain.

Two individuals were given the highest form of recognition — the "Achievement Award." This award recognizes exemplary service or extraordinary performance. Their peers nominate staff and a committee reviews the nominations and makes a selection based on established criteria.

This year's winners were Debbie Hiltz and Nona Becker. Hiltz has worked for North Country Community Mental Health for eight years and is a clinical secretary for Community Support Services in Rapid City. Becker has worked for North Country Community Mental Health for 25 years and is the Assertive Community Treatment supervisor in Petoskey.

The Team Award went to the Adult Family Program. The members of this team are Susan Finn, RN and Matt Manker, a licensed master social worker, both from the Petoskey Assertive Community Treatment Program. Derek Johnson, a licensed baccalaureate social worker, with the Petoskey Community Support Services for Persons with Mental Illness is also a member of the team. The Adult Family program is an evidence-based practice that is designed to help consumers and families better understand and develop coping skills for handling problems posed by serious mental illness.

Other employees recognized include executive director, Alexis Kaczynski, for 25 years of service; supervisor of the Petoskey Assertive

A state-of-the-art GPS (Global Positioning System) reference station has been installed at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

These high technology GPS reference stations will provide centimeter real-time positioning for all of the county, city, township and state agencies that require geo-positioning.

"This is a very exciting time for the Charlevoix County Geographical Information System, the remonumentation department as well as the road commission and surveying operations across the county," said Larry Feindt, Charlevoix County surveyor. "We now have the capacity to map the county's infrastructure with a level of precision only dreamed of in the past. This system will enable us to locate all of our county assets with accuracy and maintain a highly reliable digital map of these features."

He said everything from road alignments to manholes can now be readily surveyed and accurately mapped in three dimensions. Feindt said the benefit is the county now has the capability of using real-time kinematic surveying techniques that are fully integrated with agencies across the state of Michigan giving Charlevoix County both a strategic and tactical advantage. He said this will result in costs savings across the board for the Charlevoix County Geographical Information System program and is critical to long-term utilization of the county's mapping operations.

Global Positioning System is not a new thing. It has been used since the early 1980's to do precision relative surveying. However, in 2000, Michigan took it to a new level with the full implementation of the Michigan Spatial Reference Network. The network is the brainchild of the Michigan Department of Transportation Design Survey Division and Leica Geosystems Inc. This system was designed to integrate all Michigan Spatial Reference Network stations via high-speed Internet lines throughout the state to a central bank of computers located at the Michigan Department of Transportation in Lansing. All data collected from the local stations is checked in real-time and returned to the county via the wireless Web to any roving receiver equipped with a wireless modem. As a result of these "corrected" Global Positioning System signals, roving receivers can enjoy centimeter accuracy in 3-D in real-time with absolute certainty of accuracy and precision.

"The benefactors to this system in Charlevoix County are numerous, including the Charlevoix County Remonumentation Program," Feindt said.

He explained that between 1830 and 1850, prior to the sale of any property in the then "Territory of Michigan," all lands by law were required to be surveyed by the federal Government Land Office (GLO). The Government Land Office surveyors accurately placed a surveying marker every mile throughout the state of Michigan. The original placement of these monuments to this date still describe property conveyance throughout the state.

It is the responsibility of the Charlevoix County Remonumentation Program to re-establish these exact positions, monument them and provide high precision coordinates on these points so they can never be lost again. The remonumentation program was initiated in Charlevoix County in 1993, and since then, approximately 571 corners have been recovered.

"Now that we have a Michigan Spatial Reference Network station in the center of the county integrated into the other networks in the region (Traverse City, Gaylord, St. Ignace and Kalkaska) we can begin the process of coordinating these stations into the county and state surveyors office database so they will never be lost or obliterated again," Feindt said.

According to Feindt, the installation of the Michigan Spatial Reference Network Station in Charlevoix, and its resulting high precision surveying capabilities has the potential to reap significant benefits for Charlevoix County. Agencies such as the road commission, health department, Geographical Information System, drain commission, sheriff's department, townships and cities will now have the capacity to obtain high precision geographical coordinates which will enable all this work to be properly plotted on the county map. All agencies in the county will be working from the same starting point for all surveying activities in Charlevoix County and will by definition, be on the same mapping datum.

"It will be the first time in the history of Charlevoix County that all mapping and field surveying operations will be completely integrated," Feindt said.

Funding for the Charlevoix

County Michigan Spatial Reference Network came from the State of Michigan Remonumentation Program and Michigan Department of Transportation Design Survey Division who monitor the station, back up the raw data, maintain the Web site for raw binary data (www.mdotcors.org) and export the validated data to the wireless web.

"We are very pleased that Charlevoix County has partnered with us and installed a Michigan Spatial Reference Network station. This will enable all of the Michigan Department of Transportation high precision surveys to be automatically linked with the county's survey activities, which will result in the elimination of duplicate surveying activities," said Andrew Semenchuk, director of the Michigan Spatial Reference Network, Michigan Department of Transportation Design Survey Division.

The Charlevoix County Michigan Spatial Reference Network Station is the seventy-fifth station in Michigan.

The local project was spearheaded by Feindt with the assistance of Charlevoix County grant administrator, Cheryl Browe.

New year, new leadership at Charlevoix State Bank

BY JULIE WITTHOFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix State Bank is preparing for a change in command. John Kurtz, the bank's 59-year-old chief executive officer and president, recently announced his staged retirement plan. The bank's current executive vice-president and chief loan officer, Mike Hinkle, 40, of Charlevoix, will step in.

"I'll miss seeing customers on a daily basis but I've been doing this for 38 years. I'm ready for something different," Kurtz said.

While Kurtz looks to wind down and travel with his wife, Elaine, and possibly pursue a business venture with his son, Luther Kurtz, Hinkle said he's fired up to fill the bank's lead position.

"I've been in banking since 1991, primarily on the lending side. And I have a thorough knowledge of the community and how our local economy works," Hinkle said.

He has worked for Charlevoix State Bank since 1997 when he accepted the position of lender after leaving CB North (now Citizens Bank). He was promoted to chief loan officer about four years ago.

Hinkle's transition into the president and CEO's seat will begin on Jan. 1, 2007 when Kurtz steps down as CEO. Then, on July 1, 2007, he'll assume the president's role as well.

"He's got a good team. This will be a smooth transition," said Kurtz, who will maintain a seat on the Charlevoix State Bank board of directors.

Hinkle added, "I'm happy we can continue the same culture of high customer service and deep community involvement that started with Lou Hollow and continued with John Kurtz. You worry when you go with someone outside the bank that the culture will change."

His primary responsibility as executive vice-president and chief loan officer is overseeing of the bank's loan portfolio.

"Now I'll be responsible for the entire bank — strategic decision making and following the board's directives," Hinkle said. "The board sets the directives and the bank president manages day-to-day operations to lead the bank in that direction."

At this point, Hinkle said he is not planning any changes to the bank's operating procedures. He said his plan is to fine-tune the overall operation focusing on two major additions that were recently initiated — a new branch office in Ellsworth and Internet banking. He said maintaining their signature customer service while expanding banking opportunities is a key goal.

Other shifts that followed Hinkle's promotion include the promotions of Tim LaBlance to chief loan officer, Gerald Russell to consumer loan manager and security officer, Marilyne Joy to secretary of the Charlevoix State Bank eight-person board of directors and current auditor Lisa Spang to vice-president of operations. No new hiring is expected at this time. Charlevoix State Bank currently employs 44 people at offices in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Ellsworth and on Beaver Island.

Charlevoix State Bank, a locally owned and operated corporation, was founded on Aug. 16, 1994. Since Kurtz and Hinkle came aboard in 1997, the bank's assets have grown from $33 million to $125 million.

Charlevoix Area Hospital offers MRI technology

Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), the futuristic technology that produces detailed pictures of bone, tissue or organs, is now available to patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Through a collaborative arrangement with Munson Mobile Imaging, the state-of-the-art equipment — along with two MRI technologists — comes to Charlevoix Area Hospital by way of a 48-foot semi-trailer each Thursday, where patients are scheduled from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Booked solid since its first visit, hospital officials claim the on-site MRI is a great benefit to patients.

According to Charlevoix Area Hospital Imaging Department manager, Gary Vergon, the weekly MRI visits are a welcome addition to the hospital's diagnostic capabilities.

"The MRI offers significant advantages when it comes to identifying and treating so many conditions. Now, instead of waiting for an out-of-town appointment, we can schedule the procedure quickly, right here in Charlevoix," he said.

Performed on an outpatient basis,

"The MRI offers significant advantages when it comes to identifying and treating so many conditions. Now, instead of waiting for an out-of-town appointment, we can schedule the procedure quickly, right here in Charlevoix."

Gary Vergon

CHARLEVOIX AREA HOSPITAL IMAGING DEPARTMENT MANAGER

the MRI is a painless, non-invasive procedure that usually takes less than an hour to complete. The process uses a magnetic field and radiofrequency waves to generate remarkably clear, cellular-level images. Two and three-dimensional pictures — so precise they provide as much detail as looking directly inside the body — are produced immediately.

MRI can be used to analyze a broad range of conditions in all parts of the body including the spine, ligaments and musculoskeletal system, as well as the brain, heart, organs, other soft tissues and the vascular system.

The Siemens Medical Solutions Symphony MRI that comes to Charlevoix Area Hospital is considered to be cutting-edge. The unit, which costs well in excess of $1.5 million, is shared by Munson and three other hospitals, resulting in considerable savings for all.

"This is an excellent means of providing a sophisticated medical service to our patients in a convenient, cost-effective manner," Vergon said, adding that, if demand continues, the hospital may add another half-day to the schedule this summer.

An MRI must be ordered by a patient's physician and is covered by most health insurance plans.

For more information about the new service, call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Imaging Department at (231) 547-8594.

Sharp-shooting Shepherd heats up for Wesleyan University

BY ANDY SNEDDON
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS EDITOR

Jim Shepherd

Jim Shepherd is on a tear. Shepherd, a senior at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., made six of his eight 3-point attempts en route to a season-high 27 points Dec. 11 in leading the Cardinals to a 98-71 men's basketball victory over Albertus Magnus (New Haven, Conn.).

It was the third straight game that Shepherd, a 2002 Charlevoix High School graduate, has led Wesleyan, 4-4, in scoring.

On Thursday, Shepherd

nailed five triples and finished with 18 points in a 69-63 win over Emmanuel (New York) College. Two nights before, Shepherd scored 23 points in a 79-76 loss to Hamilton (New York) College. Shepherd made five 3-pointers in the contest, the last coming with 37 seconds remaining to put the Cardinals up, 76-75.

Shepherd, a senior co-captain, has started all eight of the Cardinals' games and is averaging 15.9 points per game. He has made 27 of his 66 3-point attempts (41 percent) and is 16-for-19 from the free throw line (84 percent). He is averaging 3.38 triples per game. He set the school record last season with 3.0 per game.

Charlevoix basketball 61-46 win over Grayling

BY ALLEN TELGENHOF
SPORTS WRITER

It looked to be a game between two of the top teams in the Lake Michigan Conference on Dec. 19 as Grayling visited Charlevoix but the Rayders blew the game wide open with a dominating first half en route to a 61-46 win.

"I was real happy with our play in the first half," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "We dictated the tempo and had the game where we wanted it."

The Rayders led 40-20 at half-time, led by Mitch Crandall's nine first quarter points. Grayling used two time-outs in the first four minutes and three in the

The Vikings featured 6'10" and 6'8" players in their front-line, compared with the Rayders' tallest starters at 6'3".

Crandall led all scorers with 23 points. Darren Munson finished with eight points, eight assists and six steals.

"Darren made some nice steals and then some nice passes to lead to baskets for us," Haske noted.

Ty Haske handed out six assists and Corey Gotshall pulled down seven rebounds.

Charlevoix (4-0 overall, 2-0 conference) returns to action after the holiday break on Jan. 2 at home against Cheboygan.

Readers connect at the library

For the bibliophile in each of us, the Charlevoix Public Library is now hosting two separate book discussion groups.

The classics book discussion group will meet at 6 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 8, in the Armstrong Conference Room. The book selected for this first meeting is "The Razor's Edge," by Somerset Maugham. Maugham's reflections on the nature of the human spirit are threaded throughout this journey through World War II and the Great Depression. Subsequent dates for this group are Feb. 19 and March 26, with titles to be announced at a later date.

A general book discussion group will be held at 6 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 15, in the Armstrong Conference Room. This group will be discussing "The Tender Bar," by J.R. Moenchinger. Moenchinger brings to life his childhood where he turned to the patrons of an old New York saloon as father figures. There, the flamboyant characters along the bar taught him, tended him and provided a kind of joint fatherhood. The group will choose books to be read for Feb. 26 and April 9 meetings.

The library is also now hosting a writers group. Since October, a small group of men and women have been meeting on Wednesday nights to share and encourage each other with their own creative writing experiences. If you have ever thought about writing for yourself, your family or for publication, this support group might be just what you need to start or sustain your writing endeavors.

For more information or to register for any of these programs, call the Charlevoix Public Library information services desk at (231) 237-7340.

city fire chief, Paul Ivan, for a formal evaluation of the carnival's safety with regards to buildings on Mason Street that he feels could be at risk.

"I'm still waiting. I want it addressed. I think it's a huge safety issue and I'm not going to let it lie still," Gennett said.

Wiesner said Ivan is on vacation and the two will meet to finalize the report once he returns later this week. Gennett has asked that Wiesner and Ivan sign the document and submit it to all of city council.

Gennett's request specifically asks for a letter from Ivan evaluating whether his crew could safely fight a structure fire in the vicinity of the Masonic Lodge at 100 Mason St. when the Venetian Festival carnival is staged on the 100 block of Mason Street.

"How would it be fought without having problems," Gennett, who retired from the city fire department in June 2005 after 25 years of service, said. "I can't comprehend in my mind that Paul (Ivan) would not agree with me."

Other buildings of concern include Birdie's Beauty Shoppe and the apartments in the Beacon Center.

He added that these possible fires could be fought using laid hand hoses that extend from a distance from a truck — but that scenario is anything but ideal.

"To use the ladder truck and set up pumps you have to have Mason Street to do the job you need to do," he said. "We already had a lawsuit because of the fire-works (accident in July 1997). When you confine people to an area like that, and the power situation is maxed out, to take and have an area blocked off like that during that time is a liability and a lawsuit waiting to happen. It's a super, super, super safety issue."

Gennett's ultimate goal is to have the carnival moved from its current, Mason Street location.

"Then the question is, well where should it go? I'm not sure where. But I feel there has to be a better place where you don't close streets and restrict the ability to have things done safely," he said.

Gennett's efforts will likely be fought by downtown merchants who thrive on the business the festival carnival brings to their stores. Talk of moving the carnival in the past has been met with opposition.

First ward Charlevoix City Councilman, Lyle Gennett, has asked city staff to prepare a report regarding whether their emergency personnel can adequately respond to a fire at a Mason Street building when the Venetian Festival carnival is staged there. Pictured above is an overhead view of the carnival.

Terry Amick, who owns the Subway at Mason and Bridge street inside the Masonic Lodge building, said the threat of the loss of business if the carnival is moved is greater than any fire danger.

"I'm not saying that fire isn't a concern, of course. But all the buildings have been remodeled and are up to electrical code. If I didn't have it (the carnival downtown), I wouldn't be here," he said.

With East Park under construction and likely unavailable to serve as the 2007 Venetian Festival headquarters, Amick said it's that much more important that the carnival maintain its Mason Street home.

"It's huge. With the park out of commission this summer we really need the draw. It's going to hurt so bad already. It's just not going to work. The whole aesthetics of Venetian is to have it downtown, period," he said. "I'll battle that until the end. It just has to be. Everyone downtown wants it."

While Amick does have many supporters for the carnival staying on Mason Street, one of his neighbors, Birdie Whitley, owner of Birdie's Beauty Shoppe at 101

Mason St. isn't a believer.

"My clientele is 80 plus, are we protected? Could you get in here if we have someone who is ill, could you get here in a reasonable amount of time?" she questioned.

"I don't want to see anyone go out of business. But at the same token I don't want to see someone get fried in here because no one can get to them."

Gennett agrees and said the city has to find a safe solution that won't hurt the merchants.

"I'm all for pulling people into town, I just want to find a place that will be safe without closing streets. I know businesses downtown like having the carnival there but they would think differently if they had a fire in their building and access was limited because of that," Gennett said.

Public opposition kills live fire plan

LIVE FIRE

Coast Guard men and women to train on equipment essential to their missions."

Crowley attributed internal review, community leaders and input from the public for the withdrawal of the plan.

"We are committed to addressing the concerns that training be safe, preserve the diverse uses of the lakes and protect the environment. As a native son of the region, I take the Coast Guard's role as guardians of the Great Lakes very seriously. The current (plan) is unsatisfactory and I will take the time to get this right," Crowley stated in a Dec. 18 press release. "We will not conduct live-fire training on the Great Lakes to satisfy non-emergency training requirements unless we publish a rule, and I intend to reconsider the number, frequency of use, and location of water training areas as well as other concerns raised by the public."

He further stated, "I am also committed to pursuing environmentally-friendly alternatives to the lead ammunition we currently use."

No official date has been set for when the new plan will be unveiled.

"There's never been a weapon, that I know of, fired in an armed confrontation, but you have smuggling that does occur on the Great Lakes," Lanier said. "Whether it's (smuggling) narcotics, alcohol, cigarettes or humans, where there's a border, people may try to do things like that."

Local environmental and peace activist, Ellis Boal, said Charlevoix succeeded in defeating Wal-Mart two years ago, "Now we've defeated live fire in the Great Lakes and of course we're thrilled about this."

He added, "We only wish the (Charlevoix) City Council had the courage to join with us on this."

Boal's main concerns were the militarization and pollution of the Great Lakes.

"This country already went into one military venture in Iraq on bogus information and fortunately we avoided doing the same thing here on Lake Michigan," he said. "It was going to put 7,000 pounds of lead into the lakes every year. Lead is a neurotoxin. Lead is a carcinogen and we don't need it in the Great Lakes."

Boal believes the Coast Guard should only use lead ammunition on land or it should convert to an environmentally sound ammunition on the water.

"When they come back, we'll be waiting for them," he said. "There are potential terrorist targets on the lakes, but those can be effectively monitored with guards and cameras. I think the job can be done without firing lead into the water."

U.S. Congressman, Bart Stupak, said, though the Coast Guard began the proposal process by ignoring public comment, he is happy with their recent decision.

"I have always said that, while it is critical that the Coast Guard be well prepared for all homeland security threats, it is also important that the public's concerns be taken into account before the Coast Guard conducts live fire exercises," he stated in a Dec. 18 press release. "That is why I helped secure a public meeting with the Coast Guard in Charlevoix and worked with Congressman (Dave) Obey (D-Wisconsin) to pass as part of the Homeland Security appropriations bill language requiring the Coast Guard to provide enhanced public notification before conducting any live-fire exercises."

Stupak's press secretary, Alex Haurek, said Crowley's announcement is good news for Stupak's constituents, the people of Charlevoix and the Great Lakes region and said Stupak was reassured by the Coast Guard's acknowledgment of the concerns of northern Michigan citizens.

From January to September, the Coast Guard participated in 24 live fire exercises across the Great Lakes with their newly implemented M240 Bravo machine gun.

SANE, city police execute warrant

The Charlevoix City Police Department assisted the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) team in executing a search warrant during the evening of Dec. 20 at a Bridge Street apartment near Van Pelt Alley in downtown Charlevoix.

SANE lieutenant, Ken Mills, said in their search for drugs, no arrests were made. However, he said the investigation is ongoing and warrants will be sought at a later date.

"It's not anything huge, but the investigation is ongoing," he said. "It could potentially turn into something bigger. Every one of our investigations could."
